FILES OF BOARD YIELD EVIDENCE OF FAVORITISM

Protest by Relative of Roosevelt Told.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—The house committee investigating the administration of the Wagner Labor act today heard about a trial examiner for the National Labor Relations board who achieved promotions and raises in pay by engaging in union organization activities.

The confidential files of the labor board revealed this story which left the committee wide eyed with amazement. The same files also disclosed that John Boettiger, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, had protested a decision of the board as based upon a distortion of facts.

These two revelations highlighted the committee's second open hearing which follows several months of private investigation. The committee was empowered at the last session of congress to inquire whether the labor act was being impartially administered by the board headed by J. Warren Madden.

Organizes for C. I. O.

Maurice W. Howard, a trial examiner in the Los Angeles area, was named as the government official who not only favored the C. I. O. of John L. Lewis in hearings he conducted, but engaged in organization work for the union. Howard recently resigned after the board's policy became more "conservative."

Howard received raises in pay and transfers to more important areas as he engaged in union activities, according to the evidence. His conduct of his office was a subject of investigation as long ago as 1936, but he was not urged to resign until late this year after William M. Leiserson became a member of the board.

In a confidential report to the board by Benedict Wolf, former secretary, Howard's activities were described as follows:

"Howard, according to Charles Hope [another Los Angeles official for the labor board] is completely unable to settle cases. Hope criticized Howard's tendency to go out and investigate a case in its initial stages, advise the union how to perfect its organization, and then return to Seattle [where Howard was trial examiner at the time] without having bothered to interview the employer.

Favors Board Helping Organize.

"I had quite a long talk with Howard and he is very frank in his attitude that the board's chief value is in actively helping labor to organize rather than just to protect their right to organize. He doesn't think that the board is doing enough for labor at the present time [1936] and believes that hearings should be held even when the board obviously has no jurisdiction, since the holding of such hearings will help labor organize.

"He was unwilling to see anything done about the boilermakers' claim for representation in the Longview Fibre case because he thought that any such action on the part of the board would hurt the C. I. O. and help the A. F. of L. Hope is constantly fearful that Howard's actions will finally give the regional office a black eye and prejudice the employers and conservative unions to the extent of diminishing the usefulness of the office."

Warned by Madden.

Chairman Madden warned Howard against associating with C. I. O. officials, the files disclosed, and Howard replied as follows:

"For me, a former pedagogue who has heretofore been safely sheltered from life's evil ways, to become suddenly identified as a labor factionalist is something which I cannot avoid viewing with mixed emotions. It is so reminiscent of the chaste cleric, who, thrilled at the accusation of being a roué, is ashamed to confess his innocence."

Despite this knowledge by the board of Howard's activities, he was permitted to continue his activities for at least three years after the foregoing report.

Tells Boettiger's Protest.

The disclosure about Boettiger's criticism of the labor board came when Committee Counsel Edmund M.

A Rake Handle Becomes Thing of Fury in Dark

John Edward Curran, a Northwestern university student, would have no objection if the warring nations overseas would beat their swords into plowshares. But he would protest firmly if they tried to transform their weapons into garden rakes.

Curran, who is 20 years old, drove his automobile last evening into the garage behind the home of his sister, Mrs. Philip A. Paulsen, 920 Elmwood avenue, Evanston. Leaving the engine running, he closed the large doors of the building. In the semi-darkness the visibility was poor.

Bang! Something Hits Him.

As he turned to go back to the car he unwittingly stepped on a rake lurking on the floor. As to what happened after that he has only vague notions. Apparently it was this:

The rake handle flew up. It smashed Curran's glasses. It struck him such a blow on the forehead that he was knocked unconscious. Then, as he lay on the floor, carbon monoxide gas from the motor went into his lungs.

Half an hour later Mrs. Paulsen, who had heard him drive into the garage, wondered what was keeping her brother. There was no answer to her call and she went to investigate. He still lay on the floor unconscious and with his pulse barely perceptible.

He's Expected to Recover.

The Evanston police were notified. Patrolmen Edgar Fellows and Rudolph Mueller responded. They gave Curran artificial respiration, and he was revived.

"Something hit me," he said. "Something I stepped on."

"It was a garden rake," said Fellows.

Curran moaned. The policemen took him to the St Francis hospital in Evanston, where it was said he would recover.

BREMEN HOME; JOY; IRE

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

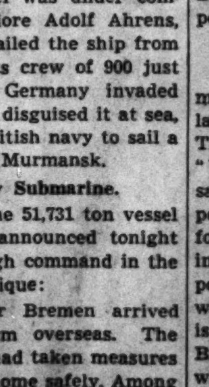
BERLIN, Dec. 12.—Germany rejoiced tonight over the return of the luxury liner Bremen to a home port from Murmansk, Russian arctic port, after an adventurous journey that began three and one-half months ago and during which the ship twice outwitted the British sea blockade. Nazi officials hailed the latest exploit of the $20,000,000 vessel as new evidence that the nerve of England's navy is weakening and that Germany holds mastery of the North sea.



Commodore Adolf Ahrens.

The German port to which the Bremen returned was not announced, but it was believed to be Bremerhaven. The vessel was under command of Commodore Adolf Ahrens, the skipper who sailed the ship from New York with its crew of 900 just 36 hours before Germany invaded Poland on Sept. 1, disguised it at sea, and evaded the British navy to sail a northern route to Murmansk.

Attacked by Submarine.

The return of the 51,731 ton vessel to Germany was announced tonight by the German high command in the following communique:

"The fast liner Bremen arrived home tonight from overseas. The navy department had taken measures to bring the ship home safely. Among them, airplanes were detailed to give the ship the necessary protection. A British submarine in the North sea attempted to attack the Bremen. One of the planes sent to protect the Bremen forced the submarine so far under the water that the attack was thwarted."

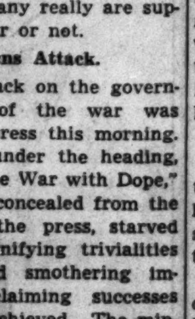
Scoff at British Claim.

German officials scoffed at the assertion in London that the British submarine which sighted the Bremen within torpedoing range refrained from attacking it out of respect for international law.

"The English would have sunk her if they could have," one German official said. "The British navy has respected the international rules of naval warfare only when it could not do otherwise."

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 13, Wednesday.—The escape of the German luxury liner Bremen from the vigilance of the British navy may involve Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in difficulties, it appeared today. The question puzzling all Britain is why the British submarine which the admiralty claims got within torpedo range did not sink or cripple the crack German liner to prevent her from reaching Germany.



Winston Churchill.

Political circles and the public were mystified by the explanation handed out here that the submarine was observing the rules of sea warfare. The question was posed whether Britain and Germany really are supposed to be at war or not.

Press Opens Attack.

A smashing attack on the government's conduct of the war was launched in the press this morning. The Daily Mail, under the heading, "We Can't Win the War with Dope," says the truth is concealed from the people and that the press, starved for news, is magnifying trivialities into triumphs and smothering important facts, claiming successes where none was achieved. The ministry of information and the British Broadcasting corporation are charged with sponsoring the game of subterfuge.

The paper warns against rumors being prominently displayed about Germany cracking up and charges that, on the contrary, burocratic muddling is gumming up the British war machinery.

Churchill Faces Hot Time.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail insists that the Bremen was a legitimate object of attack and bluntly queries, "Are we at war or not?" Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express objects because the Bremen was not called upon to surrender and sunk, if armed, or at least taken prisoner if unarmed.

It seems certain that Churchill is going to have a hot time in the house of commons dealing with critics of the admiralty's policy.

ARGENTINA ACTS AS REDS SPURN MEDIATION PLAN

Break with Britain and France Looms.

GENEVA, Dec. 13, Wednesday (AP).—Rodolfo Freyre of Argentina told the league of nations assembly today Argentina will resign from the league unless soviet Russia is ejected. The Argentine delegate said his country cannot consider herself a member as long as the soviet remains in the "family of nations." He declared his government's decision is "unalterable."

Freyre's speech opened the assembly's meeting to consider ejection of the soviet union and started the league machinery for a vote on the issue.

Karl J. Hambro of Norway, league assembly president, read a telegram received last night from Premier-Foreign Commissar Vacheslaff Molotoff rejecting the league's proposal to mediate the Russian-Finnish dispute, then called upon Freyre to make the only address of the morning session.

Decision Is Unalterable.

Freyre concluded with the words:

"Acting as an interpreter of my government's unalterable decision, I find it my duty to state with the greatest regret that the Argentine Republic can no longer consider itself a member of the league as long as the soviet union is able to claim that title."

Freyre said he considers that "no peace exists," and that "we need not be restrained by a desire to act cautiously and to weigh our responsibilities with the view to the preservation of peace."

Issue Is of "Life or Death."

He outlined Argentina's participation in various league and American moves against aggression and said the league now is faced with an issue of life or death.

"The league has no doubt lost all coercive force," the Argentine leader said. "But there is still one gesture that it has to make, one gesture that it cannot refuse to make, unless it is prepared to resign its function in the spirit of a truly suicidal defeat.

"That gesture consists in excluding from its midst those who, after having proclaimed themselves defenders of essential principles for whose establishment this institute was founded, have repudiated those same principles.

"They have not exhibited the slightest scruple; they have given no reason, thus placing themselves outside what still remains of the league's heritage—the honor we hold dear."

RUSSIA REJECTS DEMAND

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 12 (AP).—Russia tonight rejected a league of nations proposal to mediate the Russian-Finnish war. Her action opened the way for league condemnation of the soviet union as an aggressor and possible banishment from Geneva.

The rejection was included in a telegram from the soviet premier and foreign commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov, to Joseph A. C. Avenol, secretary general of the league. The message was a reply to a diplomatic invitation to Russia to take part in proposed league mediation resulting from Finland's appeal to Geneva.

Molotov's Telegram.

"The government of soviet Russia thanks you, M. President, for your kind invitation to take part in discussion of the Finnish question," Molotov's telegram said.

[Molotov's reference to "M. President" meant José Cdero da Matta, Portuguese delegate. He is chairman of the 13 nation committee handling the Russian-Finnish conflict.]

"At the same time the government of the U. S. S. R. brings to your attention the fact that it can not accept this invitation for reasons outlined in its telegram of Dec. 4, sent in response to M. Avenol's communication."

In his previous communication Molotov said that Russia considered Finland's appeal "unfounded"; that she did not consider herself in a state of war with Finland; that Moscow was maintaining "peaceful relations" with the soviet sponsored, communist headed Finnish "people's" government; and that the regular Helsingfors government had "resigned its powers" and was not authorized to make representations on behalf of the Finnish people.

Molotov's telegram arrived more than three hours after expiration of a

COMMONS BOLTS DOORS TODAY AT SECRET SESSION

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The house of commons will hold its first secret session of the war tomorrow to debate the organization of supplies to Great Britain's armed forces. Any member of parliament who divulges what is said may be expelled, and any one who publishes secrets of the session may be arrested.

Sir Kingsley Wood, air minister.

Old-time machinery will be invoked to inaugurate the secret session. After the question hour, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will arise and formally observe that "strangers are present." Then he will move "that the strangers be ordered to withdraw." When his motion is carried, out they go and the doors will be locked and bolted.

Members Are Tolerated.

Parliament survives in wartime, but does not flourish. Its members talk a lot but don't carry much weight. They are tolerated rather than listened to by those who have defense regulations in their hands and really pull the strings. At most the parliamentarians get vague and evasive answers to their questions.

Today I went to the house of commons to see the men who are shaping England's policy.

There isn't much room in parliament and you must have a special pass. First you go to the ministry of information, gray and modern and almost obscured in fog. Armed with the pass you trundle down the hill to Whitehall until you come to the parliament building, Gothic and medieval as the ministry of information is modern. In the fog it seems to be a weird mass of gargoyles and spires.

Shade All Lights.

You sign a registry book and wind thru the narrow passageways until an usher shows you into the parliament gallery. In the halls all lights are shaded and air raid precaution signs are abundant.

Opposite the gallery sits the bewigged speaker. All around the rectangle on five tiers of benches sit the politicians and members of parliament. Diplomats, newspapermen and curious visitors study them from the gallery.

Attendance is good today because everybody wants to hear what Sir Kingsley Wood, the air secretary, has to say about the air force. Wood is a small baldheaded man with a cherubic face and a high pitched voice. He doesn't say much. Hugh Dalton from the opposition bench challenges him about German mine-laying airplanes.

A Vigorous Laborite.

Dalton is a vigorous and intellectual Laborite. Beside him lounges C. R. Attlee, the baldheaded Labor leader, and at the end of the bench is one-eyed Herbert Morrison, the stocky and able boss of the London municipal government. Back of these Labor leaders sit the smaller fry such as sandy-haired Ellen Wilkinson, glowering J. R. Maxton, and R. J. G. Boothby and Geoffrey le M. Manders, two inquiring Liberals.

Opposite them on the front row of benches sit members of the government at a large table. Some of the ministers put their feet on the table which separates them from the Laborite opposition. Some opposition critics describe the benchful of ministers as a row of spent volcanoes.

Chamberlain comes in shortly after the opening of the session. He walks

FINNS SMASH BIG SCALE DRIVE ON 200 MILE FRONT

Mow Down 3 of Foe's Battalions in East.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 12 (AP).—Finnish troops and war planes smashed a large scale Russian offensive today, wiping out "three enemy battalions" and leaving "hundreds of the fallen enemy lying before our positions," a Finnish communique reported.

The Russians were repulsed with "tremendous losses," in hard fighting on a 200 mile front from the Karelian isthmus to Tolvajaervi, about 75 miles north of Lake Ladoga, the Finns said.

The Finnish military communique indicated that today's fighting was some of the most severe since the war started.

Attack in Several Sectors.

"The enemy launched a powerful attack today along several sectors of the Karelian isthmus," the communique reported.

"Hard fighting took place all day, especially on a hill overlooking a church at Muola. Almost a constant series of attacks were repulsed, the enemy suffering tremendous losses. We destroyed many tanks and left hundreds of the fallen enemy lying before our positions," the Finns continued.

"Severe fighting took place also on the eastern front, particularly at Tolvajaervi, and cost the Russians a severe defeat. Three enemy battalions were destroyed. We captured 27 machine guns, 25 express rifles, 13 machine pistols and other materials and in addition destroyed several tanks."

Aided by Artillery Fire.

"Near Loimola the enemy launched several attacks under the cover of artillery fire," the communique continued. "The attacks were repulsed. Elsewhere on the eastern front heavy battles continued.

"On the sea nothing worth mentioning happened. In the air the enemy made only a few exploratory flights besides bombing Hyrynsalmi and outer islands in the Gulf of Finland. The bombardments caused no damage."

The communique concluded by reporting that the comparatively small Finnish air force which recently had been supplemented by Italian and British planes bombed and machine gunned Russian troops.

"Our own air forces made numerous scouting flights and bombed and gunned enemy columns and supply bases at many points," the communique said.

Antiaircraft Effective.

Despite favorable flying weather, Helsingfors was not bombed. Finnish military authorities said the reason was the effectiveness of antiaircraft defenses. They asserted that within the last week numerous enemy planes have been driven off by batteries on islands in the Gulf of Finland.

Official Finnish sources said three-fourths of the Russian casualties so far in the war had been caused by exposure and cold. Only one Russian casualty in four had been due to bullets or shellfire, they declared.

The Finns, the officials said, have economized in ammunition by waging a sharpshooting war in many sections.

An unconfirmed report, from Petsamo, northern Finland, said Russian political prisoners in labor camps in the Murmansk area had revolted, causing trouble for Red army troops in the north.

500,000 Troops in Attack.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 12 (AP).—Half a million troops of the 9th Red army were reported concentrating their attack on the Tornio-Rovaniemi railway just south of the Arctic circle today and endangering Finnish communications.

The correspondent of the newspaper Dagens Nyheter, who was not permitted to tell the location of Finnish headquarters or state the exact extent of the Russian advance, said hard fighting had taken place along a 15 mile front in the last 40 hours. The battle had swirled about the village of Kohmo, he said.

The Red army, driving in this sector across the frozen steppes attempting to cut Finland in two, already has reported the capture of Markajaervi, 45 miles from the Russian border and approximately one-fifth the distance to the Swedish frontier.

Their objective apparently is Rovaniemi, important communications center on the Kemijoki river, and the deadline set by the league for a reply.

Argentina Acts on Note of Soviet Premier.

Its reception on the eve of Argentina's scheduled formal demand for Russia's ejection from the league increased the odds that this step would be taken. The soviet action automatically killed league efforts at mediation.

Jakob Surits, soviet ambassador to Paris and Moscow's representative here, received the soviet reply at his hotel an hour after it had been communicated to the league. He received no separate communication from his government.

No Surprise to Finns.

Finnish representatives commented that it was "no surprise."

The league's deliberations, meanwhile, threatened to precipitate a race to see whether Great Britain and France or the soviet union would be the first to break off relations with one another.

French intentions of severing relations with Moscow were indicated by French sources shortly after Russia had failed to heed the original 24 hour time limit granted in which to reply to the league's proposal to mediate the war.

Russians Make Threats.

Soviet representatives immediately intimated that if the league voted to oust Russia as an aggressor she might be the first to break off diplomatic ties with France and Britain.

The committee handling the Russian-Finnish war adopted part of its report before adjourning for the night. Delegates said the report included condemnation of Russia as an aggressor, but did not suggest just what steps should be taken by the league.

The committee will meet again tomorrow to consider punitive action.

American Official Admitted.

Altho today's committee meeting was secret, Donald D. Edgar, American vice consul, was admitted as an observer.

The Russians, contending that any league ouster action must be the work of Britain and France, said soviet rupture of relations with those empires would be in the nature of retaliation.

If the league votes to throw out Russia, a French source said, one of Premier Edouard Daladier's first moves will be to sever diplomatic contact with the soviet union.

This source said the French government was anxious to close the soviet embassy in Paris because it was the headquarters of an underground French communist movement.

Support for ousting Russia gained ground as the Finns, who until now had declined to state their views, came out in favor of it. Latin American members were the initial movers behind the ouster movement.

Chief stumbling blocks in any vote to oust Russia appeared to be Latvia and China. Latvia has signed a mutual assistance pact with Russia and China is receiving war materials for her war with Japan from the soviet.

The Finns pushed negotiations with several countries for munitions and other supplies. Some Latin American countries already have pledged themselves to supply nitrates, food and oil.

Finns Bare Soviet Demand.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 12 (AP).—Finland's refusal to give up Hango [Hanko], the "Finnish Gibraltar," was the ultimate stumbling block in negotiations which preceded war with Russia, the Finnish government contends.

A white paper presented by Finland to the league of nations showed the course of the protracted but futile parleys with Russia as follows:

Russia proposed Oct. 14 to lease for 30 years the port of Hango, which is on a peninsula jutting from southwestern Finland into the Baltic Sea.

There she intended to establish a naval base and a protective garrison of 5,000 men, including one infantry regiment, two antiaircraft batteries, two air force regiments, and one battalion of armored cars.

Artillery at the base could have blocked the entrance to the Gulf of Finland in coöperation with the naval base already established by Russia at Baltiski, across the Gulf of Estonia.

Finland refused to yield Hango, but offered to cede Russia the islands of Seiskari, Peninsaari, Pavansaari, and Tytarsaari and secure the interests of both nations on the larger island of Hogland [Suursaari].

She also offered to yield part, but not all, the territory Russia asked on the Karelian isthmus in return for a strip of territory farther north.

Finnish Note Quoted.

Of Hango, a Finnish note of Oct. 23 said:

"The idea that armed forces of a foreign power be stationed on Finnish territory permanently and for a long period cannot be accepted by Finland. These forces could also be used for an attack on Finland. Such an arrangement would continuously create disagreement and unnecessary irritation."

In replying, Russia offered to station only 4,000 men at Hango and limit their presence "to the end of the war between England and France and Germany in Europe." Russia said she already had withdrawn a request for a mutual assistance pact "in order to enable Finland to maintain strict neutrality."

Offers Wider Strip of Land.

On Nov. 3, Finland persisted in refusing to lease Hango, but offered a wider strip of the Karelian isthmus, altho still less than Russia asked.

"Finland would lose areas on the continent as well as islands, and in addition territorial waters of importance to her," the Finnish note said. "The soviet union has admitted that these territories, for military reasons, are of first rate importance.

"Finland, again, would in the exchange of territories obtain districts without corresponding military and economic value."

On Nov. 9, Finland rejected a Russian proposal that, if Hango could not be had, a naval base be made available on islands in the vicinity of Hango.

On the same date, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov of Russia said Finland had misinterpreted his proposal, and that he meant the territory in the district of Hango should be sold to Russia, and if this were impossible, islands in that region be sold.

On Nov. 10, the Finns refused again. Three days later the negotiations ended, the Finns expressing the hope that "at a future date negotiations can be pursued with results satisfactory to both parties."

On Nov. 30 the Red army invaded Finland.

Bremen Writes New Saga of Seas

The broken line traces voyage of the German luxury liner Bremen from New York through northern waters, where it escaped British blockade in the early days of the war and arrived safely at Murmansk, Russia. The $20,000,000 ship reached a German port (believed to be Bremerhaven) on a voyage from Murmansk, again eluding the British navy.

NAZI WHITE BOOK VOWS WAR UNTIL FOE IS DEFEATED

All Blame for Clash Put on Britain.

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (AP).—Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, in a second white book on war causes, today accused Great Britain of being "exclusively responsible for the war by which she desires to destroy Germany."

His statement was included in an introduction to a document covering European diplomacy from the Versailles peace conference, which ended the first world war, to the outbreak of the present war.

Von Ribbentrop shattered any notion that peace might be near by asserting that the German people would not lay down their arms until their objective is reached, that is: "The military destruction of the enemy and the making secure against every future threat of the vital living space which belongs to the German people."

World War Treaty Blamed.

Germans said the 344 page book fixed the war's origin in the Versailles treaty, which gave "2,100,000 Germans to Poland."

The book contains 482 documents. It was published as a reply to Britain's blue book, issued at the beginning of the war. The volume followed one published in September on the subject of the Polish crisis.

Germans said the book's most important document possibly was the friendship treaty Adolf Hitler signed with the late Marshal Joseph Pilsudski of Poland in January, 1934. The book attempts to show that by this treaty the Poles knew their German frontier one day would be altered, the friendship treaty meaning Polish borders were not definite.

Defends Hitler's Munich Stand.

In answer to the charge that Hitler broke his word at Munich regarding the Czechs, the book contains two statements of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. One declared that the Munich pact did not mean "crystallization of the Czech borders," and the other that "the Czech state collapsed from within and no longer exists" when the Slovak minority declared its independence.

BRITISH, FRENCH FINANCES POOLED BY MONEY PACT

Become Partners to Save on War Purchases.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 13.—France and Great Britain today announced a financial alliance which is to last thru the war and for six months after the empires come to terms with Germany. The most important features are:

FIRST—The empires agree to accept each other's money at face value without transferring gold stocks to cover their exchange operations.

SECOND—They will share many common war expenditures and will absorb as partners the drains on their respective war reserves in gold and in dollars.

THIRD—On the basis of proportionate national wealth, Britain will contribute three-fifths to the common war chest and France two-fifths.

Stabilizes Currency Rates.

The agreement was reached on Dec. 4 when Sir John Simon, chancellor of the British exchequer, visited Paris. It was announced in London today by Sir John, and in Paris by Finance Minister Paul Reynaud.

Rates of the franc and the pound will be stabilized during the period of the agreement. Today the pound was quoted on the Paris bourse at 176.625 francs, close to the figure at which it has rested since the start of the war on Sept. 3.

[The pound, at 176.625 francs, would amount to $3.9387, figured on yesterday's valuation of the franc, 2.23 cents. Yesterday the pound was quoted at $3.9325 in New York.]

The arrangement covers the whole of the British and French empires. It will provide for France the pounds she requires to buy raw materials from Britain and for Britain the francs needed to finance the British expeditionary forces in France.

No New Import Duties.

Britain and France will act as one in purchasing war materials, either at home or abroad, and in controling prices. Neither will levy new restrictions on imports from the other. They pledge themselves to launch no foreign loans and obtain no credits without the consent of each other. They will share in the cost of assistance to third powers and in the cost of the Polish Foreign legion now in France.

The figures for the proportionate share of the costs of the war are practically the same as for the world war. Discounting loans to her allies, Britain's direct costs in the last war were 36 billion dollars as against 23½ billion dollars for France.

It is expected that the agreement will greatly diminish speculation in their respective currencies. France by offering her currency will be able to obtain all the pounds she needs without transferring gold and Britain can obtain all the francs she requires by the same process.

Agreement on the division of war costs is expected to eliminate a vexatious debt question similar to the one which arose after the world war.

2 JAPANESE GENERALS ASTOUNDED BY NEW WEAPONS IN GERMANY

TOKIO, Dec. 12.—Germany possesses new weapons which have aroused the wonder interest of two Japanese generals who recently returned from Germany. One of them hinted that novelties in chemical warfare might be expected. Their views were disclosed in statements today.

Maj. Gen. Amei Oba described Germany's condition as excellent. After stating he was "much interested" in the reich's new weapons, he added: "For example, the Frankfort dyeing industry is employing 1,400 doctors, chemists, and special research men."

Lieut. Gen. Heroshi Oshima, ambassador to Berlin, said that Germany has "superior and entirely new weapons was one of the reasons Oshima gave for predicting a German victory.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 12.—The Dionne quintuplets, now 4½ years old, will don skates for the first time this winter. Plans for a skating rink at the quints' home in Callander, Ont., are now being made. Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who has attended the children since their birth, said here today.

The little country doctor said that cold didn't hurt young children and the Dionnes were regularly out in weather when the thermometer registered 20 degrees below zero, "provided there is no wind. A wind at 10 degrees above is far more dangerous."

Christmas presents from all parts of the world are starting to flow into the quints' home, Dr. Dafoe said.

BLACK CLOAKED GERMANS ATTACK FRENCH IN NIGHT

Nazis Widen Operations Near Saar River.

PARIS, Dec. 12 (AP).—Increasingly large German patrols, some wearing black hoods and black cloaks to make themselves invisible at night, were reported by French military sources today to have been repulsed on the western front.

The Germans were reported to be broadening operations thruout the sector between the Saar river and the Wardnt forest. Tonight's communique of the French command told of sharp engagements in that region last night. New engagements and artillery fire took place today.

Fight Rages Near Forbach.

The principal fighting was around a salient near Forbach, where several French outposts close to the Germans' Siegfried line forts were attacked.

German scouts were reported active near the Moselle river, near Saarbruecken and Bitche. Dispatches told also of brisk rifle fire along the southern Rhine front.

British troops repulsed with hand grenades an attack on Sunday by three sections of German troops south of Bueschdorf, near the Moselle valley.

Germans Fly Over England.

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (AP).—Minor allied artillery fire and isolated German reconnaissance flights over England yesterday were reported by the German high command. Its communique today said:

"East of the Moselle, slight artillery annoyance fire aimed at the region in front of the fortifications. The air forces carried out individual scouting flights against Britain."

On the western front, DNB, the German official news agency, reported, French artillery fire was directed at Perl, Ober Perl and Schneeberg and at positions between Mettlach and Pirmasens.

Four Planes Near Gibraltar.

GIBRALTAR, Dec. 12 (AP).—An air raid alarm lasting 40 minutes sounded today upon the approach of four unidentified planes. The planes flew away without reaching this British base.

BELGIANS HINT THEY WILL HELP HOLLAND IN WAR

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 12 (AP).—The foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies today approved a report saying that conditions which led the country to adopt neutrality would be modified if the Netherlands were attacked.

The cabinet arranged to call the 1940 military class earlier than usual to permit demobilization of older classes called because of the war.

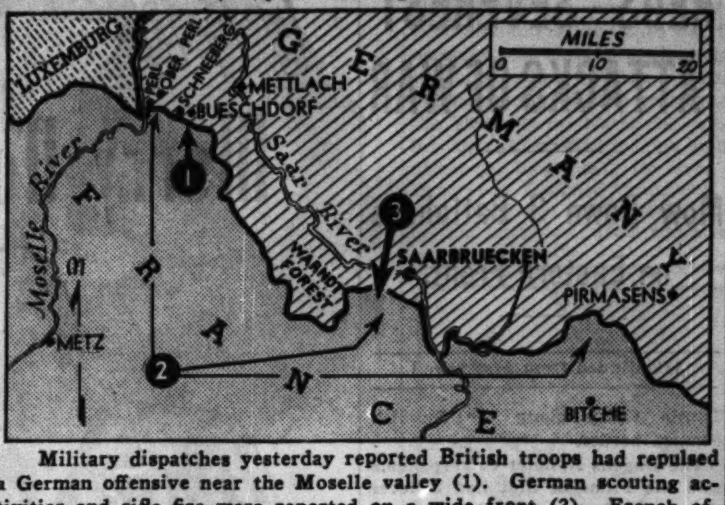
The 1940 class is expected to be extended to bring in more than the average number of recruits.

Nazis Claim Unemployment Reduced by Nearly 300,000

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (AP).—Germany's unemployed numbered 162,000 Nov. 30, compared with 461,000 a year ago, the labor ministry announced today. It showed, officials said, that the nation had changed from a peace to a war basis without friction.

Action on the Western Front

(Story in adjoining column.)



Military dispatches yesterday reported British troops had repulsed a German offensive near the Moselle valley (1). German scouting activities and rifle fire were reported on a wide front (2). French officials said German forces were repulsed in an attack between the Saar river and the Warndt forest (3).

CRUISER REPULSE HIT BY NAZI BOMB BUT KEPT ON GOING, N. Y. HEARS

New York, Dec. 12 [Special].—For six weeks the German official radio has from time to time claimed that the British battle cruiser Repulse had been sunk by an air bomb. The statement has been denied repeatedly by the British.

It now is understood here that nearly two months ago the Repulse was damaged slightly on the bow by a German air bomb while the Repulse was leaving a British port.

After the accident the Repulse continued her trip to a Canadian port as part of a convoy. She returned safely to Britain. The damage is said to have not been serious and the Repulse since has been regularly in convoy service.

POLISH CONSUL'S EX-AID TELLS OF WAR ADVENTURE

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—An erstwhile Polish diplomat, believed killed three months ago, appeared mysteriously in New York today with an amazing story of his adventure. In fleeing from beleaguered Warsaw, he said, he was nearly buried alive in an aerial bombing, fought with two Polish regiments, was captured by Russians and talked his way out, and was captured twice by Germans and escaped both times.

The man is Edward Kulikovsky, press liaison agent in the Warsaw foreign office before the war. He formerly was Polish vice consul in Chicago and a secretary of the Polish embassy in Washington.

A train carrying foreign office officials out of Warsaw Sept. 6 was bombed. Some reports mentioned Kulikovsky as a victim. Instead, he related today, he was buried in débris while dashing for a bomb shelter and missed the train. It was after this incident that his other adventures took place.

Ambassador to Belgium Returns to Make Report

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Joseph E. Davies, United States ambassador to Belgium, returned on the Rex today to report to the state department. Davies said Belgium had a fine army of from 600,000 to 1,000,000 men "and is keeping its powder dry." His principal mission, he said, was to discuss renewal of a trade treaty between this country and Belgium. He expects to be in this country two or three weeks.

Finnish President Thanks Roosevelt for Sympathy

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—President Kyosti Kallio of Finland thanked President Roosevelt today for his sympathy toward Finland, which, he said, has been obliged to defend its independence, liberty, and rights. The Finnish president, replying to Mr. Roosevelt's message of congratulations on Finland's Independence day Dec. 6, said: "The whole Finnish nation is deeply thankful to you and American people."

Turks Ask Empires to Let Four Ships Leave Germany

ANKARA, Turkey, Dec. 12 (AP).—Turkey has asked Great Britain and France to permit the passage of four 5,300 ton merchant vessels from Germany to Turkey, for whom they were built, well informed sources said today. The ships would be manned by Turkish crews. Since the vessels already have been paid for, the Turkish government expects the request will be granted, these sources said.

STREAM OF RED WOUNDED POURS INTO LENINGRAD

Extra Space Requisitioned for Casualties.

MOSCOW, Dec. 12 (AP).—Red army casualties were reported arriving in a steady stream tonight in Leningrad from the nearby Finnish war front.

Unofficial advices from that port city on the Gulf of Finland said its churches had been requisitioned to aid hospitals in caring for the wounded.

The Russian public found but scant news of the war in the soviet press. Nevertheless, it apparently was beginning to dawn upon the people that their army was meeting more formidable resistance than it encountered in Poland.

A Red army communique said the invaders pushed forward "in all directions" during the day and occupied two villages and the railroad station of a third.

45 Miles from Frontier.

The deepest thrust was reported in central Finland where the Russians said they took Markajaervi, 45 miles from the frontier. Markajaervi is seven miles southwest of Salla, occupation of which the high command announced yesterday.

On the Petrozavodsk front the army announced occupation of Huntilla [Huunnukka] on the north bank of Lake Ladoga, and the station at Konpinoja [Koipinoja] on the Pitkaranta-Serdobol railway. Huntilla is about 30 miles from the soviet border and Konpinoja is about 25 miles.

Tass, the official soviet news agency, distributed without comment the text of the league of nations communication calling upon Russia and Finland to cease hostilities and Premier Vyacheslav Molotov's rejection of league mediation.

Assert Troops "Welcomed."

Until issuance of the Tass texts soviet newspapers had ignored the league's action. However, they printed glowing reports asserting that Finns welcomed Russian soldiers as "liberators" in occupied sections of the invaded country.

They also declared workers in the United States, Great Britain and Sweden were welcoming the new communist-dominated, soviet-recognized Finnish "people's" government reported set up in the border town of Terijoki.

Activity on Moscow's diplomatic front was heightened with the arrival of Dr. Joseph Tiso, president of Slovakia, on an undisclosed mission. He stayed at a hotel. It was understood the minister to Moscow from the dismembered Czecho-Slovak republic still was occupying the former republic's legation.

British Send 200 Child Refugees Back to Spain

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Two hundred Basque children who came to England in 1937 as refugees from the bombs raining on Bilbao during the Spanish civil war, tonight sailed for Spain. Trades unions and public subscriptions have supported them, but the Britons now need the money for the war. A total of 580 of the child refugees will be sent back to Spain by Jan. 4. Five hundred more will remain here.

FINNS HURL BACK REDS' SEVEREST ATTACKS OF WAR

Mow Down 3 Battalions on Eastern Front.

Tornio valley along the Swedish-Finnish border.

The Dagens Nyheter correspondent said the Finns at first had believed they were facing an isolated attack on this front but now feared they were facing the really big Russian offensive.

One wing of the Russian attack, he said, apparently was directed at Uleaborg [Oulu], important Finnish port 60 miles south of Tornio.

Lack of fresh snow gave the Russians an advantage by permitting them to build new and repair old Finnish roads.

The Finns were reported to have received reënforcements and to have forced the Russians back in some sectors.

May Use 1,500,000 Men.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Finnish Telegraphic agency reported tonight it had information that soviet Russia, irritated by stubborn and unexpected Finnish resistance, was preparing to throw 1,500,000 first class troops and 1,000 planes into an offensive against Helsingfors. The major thrust, the agency said, was expected in the Karelian isthmus.

The correspondent of the Stockholm Aftonbladet today reported Hyrynsalmi, central Finland, has been cleared of civilians and taken over by the Finnish military.

Highways of the east central part of Finland were crowded with refugees fleeing the war zones.

French Sentence German Tailor to Death for Spying

CHALONS-SUR-MARNE, France, Dec. 12 (AP).—A German tailor who lived in Paris, Wilhelm Maurer, 43 years old, was sentenced to death today for spying. He was arrested at Metz early this year.

along without signs of his recent gout. His hair is black, except for a strand of white over his forehead.

Preserves Severe Countenance.

He takes his place beside the bald-headed and able lawyer, Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer. Chamberlain preserves a severe countenance. Missing from the bench is the round face of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, and Leslie Hore-Belisha, the war minister. Farther along is Walter Elliot, minister of health and a Scotsman. Also there is R. H. Cross, minister of economic warfare, whose job is to squash the German export trade. Cross is youngish.

During the first 65 minutes of the session members of parliament ask and the ministers answer 93 questions which had been previously submitted in writing. Some of these questions seem trivial or a matter for an administrative expert's decision to the foreign observer.

One member asks Hore-Belisha not to buy mares of value for breeding purposes in purchasing horses for the army.

Asks About Canning Factories.

Another questioner is concerned with the canning factories in the Clydeside area. Brig. Gen. E. L. Spears asks how many interpreters with the army in France know the French language. Questions which seem to concern local authorities get evasive answers. The theory is that the crossfire of questions keeps the ministers on their toes.

Neither the Laborites nor the Tories [Conservatives] want any quick peace, so far as one can sense. The truce between them, in fact, seems to depend on no deals with the Germans to switch the war into another direction.

A survey of the British voters' reactions to the Chamberlain government's war policy, as published by the British Institute of Public Opinion, shows that 11 per cent favor calling off the war, 18 per cent oppose the government's methods of conducting the war, 61 per cent are satisfied, and 10 per cent are neutral.

BUILDS SUPER AIRFLEET

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Great Britain disclosed today that she is developing a super airfleet for the dual purpose of meeting and countering German mass attacks anticipated "perhaps soon or in the spring."

Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood told the house of commons Britain is adequately prepared to face "another more strenuous and difficult chapter" in air warfare.

The air minister's statement coincided with an announcement by the admiralty that the crew of four was killed when a naval plane collided with a balloon barrage cable near Southampton.

Wood's prediction that "new and more powerful types of aircraft" would "shortly be able to operate against the enemy" recalled to observers Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax's assertion on Sept. 13 that Britain would hold herself "completely free" to take "appropriate" action in event civilian populations of Britain and France were bombed.

Defense System Sound.

"We can be confident that our air defense system is sound, that our personnel and aircraft are superior to the enemy's and that our strength—defensive and offensive—is growing steadily so that every day we are in better position to establish our ascendancy in the air," Wood said.

He asserted British Hurricane and Spitfire planes had shown a "decisive advantage" over German Dorniers, Junkers and Heinkels and that British fighter squadrons had taken a heavy toll of Germans who "tried to cross our air defenses."

The air minister said squadrons of Royal Canadian airmen soon would be active in Europe, and that Polish squadrons would be reformed under Polish officers attached to the RAF.

Telling of 57 attacks by the coastal air command on submarines, he said that "In 19 cases we can be sure that substantial damage has been caused."

ILLUSIONS OF WAR GONE IN EUROPE, SAYS DR. GILKEY

The European war has failed to inspire the hatreds between peoples which the world war did, Dr. Charles Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, told members of the Medinah Shrine Lunch club yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. Dean Gilkey, who was in Europe at the outbreak of both wars, told of his impressions of them.

He said that in 1914 soldiers marched off to the accompaniment of cheers and gay music. In 1939, he said, there were no cheers and no illusions.

"Even in the churches of England the English are praying for forgiveness for their part in causing the present war," he said.

REP. FISH TELLS PLANS TO ENTER 1940 G. O. P. RACE

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. yesterday told a group of Chicago Republicans who urged him to enter the Presidential fight next year that he would file as a candidate in the Illinois and Wisconsin primaries "unless the Republican Presidential candidates make known their views on our foreign policies and refuse to compromise with the internationalists of the New Deal."

Fish conferred at the La Salle hotel with a group including James W. Breen, 14th ward committeeman; Oscar De Priest, former congressman; David H. Jackson, former chairman of the Illinois commerce commission; Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski of the Circuit court, and Richard W. Wolfe, former commissioner of public works.

Fish and Norman Thomas, three times Socialist candidate for President, agreed last night that the United States can and should keep out of the European war. Their debate in Thorne hall on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university on "Can America Remain Aloof?" turned into a discussion in which their viewpoints often matched.

Enrique Penaranda, who was Bolivian generalissimo in the Chaco war, today accepted last night's proclamation of his nomination by the traditional parties to run for the presidency in the elections on March 10. Penaranda resigned from the ministry of defense last Friday and asked for his retirement from the army to be able to qualify.

GERMAN VESSEL REPORTED SUNK BY SOVIET U-BOAT

Shelled Near Finland; Several Killed.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 12 (AP).—A report from the Finnish port of Mantyluoto tonight said the German freighter Bollheim had been sunk in the Gulf of Bothnia by a submarine which a survivor said he believed was part of the Russian naval blockade of Finland.

The submarine was said to have sunk the steamer with about 15 shells. Several officers were killed. Most of the crew reached land in lifeboats. The Bollheim was en route to Hamburg with a load of grain.

[Lloyd's register lists a German freighter Bolheim. The Bolheim is of 3,324 gross tons and was built at Rotterdam in 1913. It formerly was named the Arundo and is 330 feet long.]

British Steamer Sunk.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—The loss of the British steamer King Egbert in the North sea was disclosed today with the landing of 32 survivors. The King Egbert, 4,500 tons, sank after an explosion. One man was drowned. A neutral steamer picked up the survivors.

The British 496 ton collier Marwick was blown up by a mine off the east coast. Five survivors were landed. Six of the crew were missing. The survivors said the explosion ripped off their clothing.

The British steamer Middlesbro, 989 tons, was reported to have struck a submerged rock off the east coast. The crew of 15 was rescued.

The Torne, a Swedish freighter, 3,792 tons, struck a mine and sank in the Oresund 25 miles south of Copenhagen. The fate of the crew not immediately given.

The 2,653 ton Danish steamer Cimbria was reported aground on the rocks of eastern Scotland.

Seize Four German Ships.

A British prize court officially seized as property of the crown four German vessels captured by the British fleet. They were the 13,615 ton liner Cap Norte, the 2,337 ton steamer Hannah Boge, the 1,375 ton steamer Bianca and the Elvira III, a small auxiliary yacht.

The first report on the blockade of German exports, which began Dec. 4, said that only small quantities of goods of German-origin had been discovered on ships taken to British contraband bases.

The foreign office said it had confirmed that Germany was making full use of its strategic position to prevent war materials reaching Finland from other countries.

Claim British on Defensive.

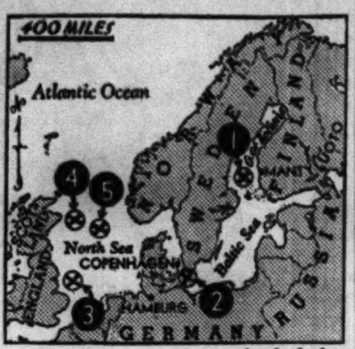
BERLIN, Dec. 12 (AP).—Germany has placed British sea power distinctly on the defensive, the official German news agency, DNB, asserted today.

DNB argued that in announcing that shipping in certain territorial waters and river mouths had been placed under jurisdiction of naval authorities the British have admitted pure trade routes to Britain no longer exist. Even neutral shipping, DNB said, has been placed under British naval protection.

The news agency said that this protection, however, was not proving adequate and that at least six ships had been sunk off the English eastern coast yesterday.

Trouble at Sea

(Story in adjoining column.)



Ship news yesterday included a report that a German freighter had been sunk (1) by a submarine believed to be part of Russian blockade; a Swedish freighter sank (2) near Copenhagen; a British steamer struck a submerged rock (3); a Danish steamer went aground (4) and another British steamer sank in the North sea (5) after an explosion.

RED CROSS SENDS $500,000 ABROAD, ROOSEVELT SAYS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt reported today that the American Red Cross, of which he is president, has spent or is spending more than $500,000 for relief of persons in European war areas.

Of that, he said at his press conference, $25,000 has been sent to Finland for civilian uses and $16,000 has been applied to the purchase of medicines in London for shipment to Finland.

Asked whether he had anything to say about the undertaking of former President Hoover in raising funds for Finnish relief, the chief executive said he thought it was fine and that he understood Hoover had been cooperating with the Red Cross.

FINNS HAIL DEEDS OF SOLDIERS AND WOMEN HEROES

General Staff and Press Publicize Feats.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 12.—Both the Finnish general staff and the newspapers are treating reports of war exploits like sports news, and stories of the individual deeds of both the Finnish soldiers and the members of the famous women's auxiliary organization, the Lotta Svards, named for a Finnish national heroine, have begun to appear in the Finnish press.

Col. Mellblom, commander of Viipuri [Viborg], confirmed the story being circulated along the Mannerheim line that a Finnish sergeant, a member of a former Finnish rifle team that won the world championship, single-handed shot down from 41 to 45 Russians who attempted to cross an open field before the Finnish lines.

One Man Against a Company.

During the early fighting at Petsamo, on the Arctic ocean, another Finnish soldier, hidden in a fir tree and using an automatic rifle, shot down 57 Russians of a company of more than a hundred, the remainder being killed or captured by the Finns.

The Lottas, as the uniformed women are called, are performing many duties at the front. Among them is manning observation towers. One girl who remained at her post while Russian planes peppered the tower with machine gun fire was cited in the dispatches along with others who have performed notable service as couriers behind the lines.

Perform Tasks at Front.

Like the men the Lottas frequently don skis to fulfill their duties, but most of the women are doing prosaic tasks such as cooking, mending, and washing for the troops.

Frans Emil Sillanpaa, Finland's greatest living writer, whom the nation honors for expressing the Finns' love for their country and who recently was awarded the 1939 Nobel prize for literature, crossed the Swedish frontier at Haparanda today. He was en route to Stockholm where the presentation of his prize will be accompanied by special honors. He was accompanied by his family. Sillanpaa, the son of a poor Finnish farmer, is 51 years old.

FINNS ARE DENIED U.S. LOANS TO BUY MUNITIONS OF WAR

Roosevelt Expects Present Policy to Be Continued.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—While Finland was reported negotiating for the purchase in this country of large supplies of war materials, President Roosevelt said today that he does not expect any relaxation in the policy against government loans for war purposes.

The 10 million dollar credit to Finland by the Export-Import bank and the Reconstruction Finance corporation, announced Sunday, was for foodstuffs and other articles for civilian purposes, the President recalled.

Extension of this credit by the bank will just about force it to scrape bottom, Mr. Roosevelt said—a repetition of his argument for increased lending authority above the present 100 million dollar limit, which was denied by the last regular session of congress.

Seek Planes and Guns.

It is understood that the Finns are trying to arrange purchases of airplanes, guns and ammunition. The Finnish minister, Hjalmar Procope, today visited the war department, which maintains a close check on foreign orders to see that they do not interfere with the American defense program.

It is reported that Finland has substantial cash balances in this country with which to purchase war supplies. The administration has withheld application of the neutrality act to the war between Russia and Finland, which automatically would prevent any further extension of credit to Finland.

There is no law which prevents extension of credits for war purposes as long as the neutrality act is not applied.

Adhere to Strict Policy.

Officials of the Export-Import bank, however, said they are operating under a rigid policy against granting loans which might be utilized for direct military purposes, confining the use of such credits to materials for civilian use.

Warren Lee Pierson, president of the bank, said the list of military articles set up by the state department in issuing its export licenses is used as a guide, and that the bank board always has approved this policy.

Actress Divorced

[Acme Photo.]

FAY WRAY.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12 (AP).—Actress Fay Wray won a divorce today from John Monk Saunders, author and film scenarist. She was awarded custody of 3 year old Susan Cary Saunders. Mildred Bloomberg, a maid, said she had heard Saunders threaten his wife's life.

ROBBER SLAYS WOMAN VICTIM WITH HIS AUTO

She Jumps in Front of Purse Snatcher's Car.

A grey haired grandmother, 64 years old, was killed last night when the automobile of a thief who had snatched her purse ran her down as she made frantic efforts to stop him.

The victim was Mrs. Ricka Thompson, 1654 North Lawndale avenue. The thief took her purse, containing change, keys, and several copies of prayers, as she crossed the alley which runs alongside the elevated station on Lawndale avenue just north of North avenue.

The robber leaped into his car, parked in the alley, and headed west and sped away. But the alley comes to a dead end 75 yards west of the "L" station. He turned around, and headed back.

Stands in Front of Car.

A witness, Raymond Kent, 1522 North Central Park avenue, heard Mrs. Thompson scream and saw her standing, hands upraised, in the mouth of the alley as the car bore down on her. She shouted "Stop! Stop!" Tire marks showed the thief slowed down and tried to swerve around her.

Kent ran toward Mrs. Thompson at the same time the robber drove directly at the woman. She was dragged across Lawndale avenue and 45 feet farther east in the alley before she fell free. The car continued east to Monticello avenue, then speeded south.

Another Sees Car.

Kent's story was corroborated by Jack Schaps, 1609 North Lawndale avenue, who heard Mrs. Thompson's screams and got to the window in time to see the car strike her.

Mrs. Thompson was dead when she was brought into Danish-American hospital. She was identified there by Milton Kindt, son of the operator of a rooming house in which she lived. Kindt said she was twice a widow, and has a son, Clarence McCauley.

Mrs. Thompson had been unemployed recently and had applied for relief, according to the Rev. Samuel Carlson, pastor of the Hauge Norwegian Lutheran church.

DECLARES ITALY MUST HAVE FREE EXITS FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN

ROME, Dec. 12 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, said in a broadcast today that "it is necessary for Italy to have certain free exits" from the Mediterranean. He said that at present Britain controls the gates at Gibraltar, Suez, and the Dardanelles. Revision of the colonial system, Gayda asserted, "is among the elementary constructive necessities of the new Europe."

LOVE CUTS LEGAL CHAINS; MODEL WILL WED MODEL

New York, Dec. 12 (AP). — Honey haired Lucille Wilds, 21 years old, the girl in the toothpaste ads, won't have to fork over $10,000 after all to wed Bill Kent, 25, also a model.

The marriage of the models was threatened by a contract containing a clause saying she must pay her agent, Walter Thornton, $10,000 if she went to the altar within six years.

Faced with a suit to break the contract, Thornton said tonight he had agreed to drop all objections to the match upon Miss Wilds' agreement to continue working for him for at least six months after she weds.

THE ROMANS HAD A WORD—

By CALEB

WEARY with much stop-and-go perambulation, but still shiny-eyed, a shopper sank into one of our lounges and sighed: "I feel like an exhausted exclamation mark!"

Following an adventurous survey of our second, third and fifth floors in terms of their paraphernalia for Holiday embellishment, I feel much the same. The optic nerves, I have concluded, can register only so many thousand glints, gleams, flashes and reflections—hues, shades and tints—sizes, shapes and surfaces. After that, a certain paralysis of appreciation sets in, succeeded by a many-colored mental numbness.

And with cause . . . for when the Romans coined their word decus for "ornament," they could hardly have guessed the gamut of inventiveness covered by a modern store's arrays of trees, wreaths, candles and Christmas-tide decorative utensilry in general. Synthetic table trees, for example, of chenille, of silver-painted sipper straw, of bottle-brush fiber, or sparkalite metal ingenuities utilizing for their lovely lighting effects but a single electric bulb. Wreaths of red, green and white cellophane, or non-tarnishing aluminum. Pine and cedar cones, painted, au naturel, and frosted; pine cones of silver and white glass; gleaming white-feather poinsettias, with red holly-berry centers; pompons and Yule logs; graceful arrangements of gold stars and lucite; tiny angel choirs for centerpieces . . .

But somehow one is prompted to award the palm de luxe to this season's candlecrafters, and their innumerable glorifications of that humble element, wax. For in a beautiful abandon their creations populate tables and aisles with shapes of every sort and size. Red-trimmed white waxen bells; jovial busts of Santa Claus; miniature trees modeled in red or white or green; tiny place-card candles; pine-scented, forest-reminiscent candles . . . decorative genius, one delightedly affirms, could do no more!

A happy corollary to the thought of all this iridescent and dreamland-like variety is the realization that in thousands of homes these bright distributors of glamour will mean all the difference between conventional "everydayness" and the "Holidayness" that should especially preside over family interiors at Christmastime. A single wreath, a single candle, a single crystal or silver ornament from among these myriads, suffices to invest some place or personality with extra brightness—and that, in the nature of Yuletide the world round, is as it should be.

LYONS HURLS '32 PLEDGE ON SLUSH BACK AT HORNER

Recalls Old Assault on Political Blackmail.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Richard J. Lyons, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, yesterday quoted Gov. Horner's 1932 campaign pledge to prevent the shakedown of state employés for political contributions.

As Lyons compared Judge Horner's promise with Gov. Horner's performance, there were three other developments concerning the Illinoisans, the Democrats' unincorporated body which is collecting 2 per cent of state employés' salaries for Horner's 1940 campaign fund. These developments were:

1. Another former civil service employé of a state institution charged he had been coerced to give up 2 per cent of his monthly earnings.

2. F. Lynden Smith, downstate manager of the Horner Democratic organization in 1936 and 1938 campaigns, assailed 48 Republican legislators who are demanding that the governor halt the solicitation at once.

3. A. K. Stiles, state chairman of the G. O. P., branded Smith's statement "an admission of the 2 per cent charges which the taxpayers will resent."

Recalls Horner's Speech.

Lyons said that when Horner, then a probate judge, was running for his first term as governor, he criticized his opponent, the late Len Small, for shaking down state employés for campaign donations.

Lyons noted that Horner spoke as follows in Aurora on Oct. 19, 1932:

"I would scorn to have my campaign aided by such methods [levies on employé salaries]. As governor I will do my utmost to make it impossible to levy this form of political blackmail against civil service employés of the state of Illinois."

"I recall vividly those very words, delivered when Judge Horner was running for governor," Lyons said. "Altho Horner made those statements, the company into which he has fallen has evidently changed his morals with regard to government.

"Operation of the Illinoisans means just this: The public is paying for Horner's 1940 campaign. It is a scandal, and the legislature should do something about it.

Seeks Severe Penalties.

"I would like to see the legislature enact a law setting severe penalties—including ouster from office—for any state official attempting the shake down of public employés for political war chests.

"Instead of reducing its stupendous pay rolls, the administration is making them ever larger, to increase their notorious 2 per cent cut."

F. Lynden Smith is director of the vast state department of public roads and buildings, which has appropriations totaling about 94 million dollars for the 1939-'41 biennium.

He said he spoke as a member of the Illinoisans, of which he was made chairman when the unincorporated group was formed in 1938. If all the estimated 20,000 state pay rollers give up 2 per cent of their earnings the Illinoisans would amass $500,000 in one year.

A story published in THE TRIBUNE on Monday quoted Smith as defending the Illinoisans on the ground that regular payments of 2 per cent would not interfere with state employés' budgets, as would lump sum contributions of $50 or $100. Yesterday he said this article was "so absurd and silly that I don't think it needs an answer."

Assails G. O. P. Record.

"To think that the Republican organization with its past reputation should come out with holier than thou statements just tells us another campaign is in the air," Smith Added. "To my knowledge, former Republican politicians were exponents in the art and experts in the collection of funds.

"You know, those fellows have been away from the feed trough for eight years and they are desperate. The present [Horner] administration will probably be charged with everything, but the more charges they make, the more votes we'll get. Whoever heard of running a campaign without money?"

The 2 per cent payments by state employés, Smith said, was a case of "the rank and file voluntarily contributing to the Democratic campaign fund in order to promote the policies and principles of the Democratic party as exemplified by President Roosevelt and Gov. Horner."

Statement Astounds Stiles.

Chairman Stiles of the Republican state central committee said he was astounded that Smith should issue such a statement.

"This Democratic major domo virtually admits the charges leveled against the Illinoisans and defies the tax payers to do anything about it," Stiles said. "I predict that the relatively few people who are still on the giving end of taxes, and not on the receiving end, will resent it.

"Tarnished tribute as exacted by the Illinoisans is not only improper but illegal. But the administration no longer seems to have regard for either the proprieties or the law."

Stiles said Gov. Horner's reply to the charges, and demands for action, are long overdue. Who caused Smith to issue the statement in these circumstances? Stiles asked.

The former civil service employé who told his story yesterday was Robert J. Mautner, 5951 Green street. He passed the civil service examination for prison guard in August, 1938, and had the 26th highest grade among 1,800 applicants.

Assigned to the prison at Menard, he said, he reported Feb. 22, 1939, and was introduced immediately to Russell L. Powers, controler, a brother-in-law of Joseph Ragen, superintendent of state penal institutions.

This is the conversation which took place, Mautner said:

POWERS: You'll have to pay 2 per cent a month out of your salary.

MAUTNER: Why? What for?

POWERS: It goes to the organization. If you want to work here you have to make this contribution.

Mautner said that Clarence Boatwright, a junior civil service clerk, collected the 2 per cent for February and March. On April 20 Boatwright asked him why his April dues had not been paid, Mautner said, and the guard said he was thru paying.

"It will be just too bad if you don't make it," he quoted Boatwright as warning him.

Five days after his suspension, May 7, on a charge of "unsatisfactory service," Boatwright met Mautner in front of the "electric eye" building and asked him when he was going to pay his arrears, the former guard said.

"I'll turn you in to the warden and have you fired," was the reply he charged Boatwright with making to his repeated refusal to pay.

Mautner was fired on May 31 on the "unsatisfactory service" charge.

SIREN ON POLICE SQUAD CAR SCREAMS NEWS OF LOST BOY'S PLIGHT

Raymond Axelstrom Jr.

A barefoot boy clad in pajamas and rubbing his eyes sleepily wandered into the Schiller street "L" station at 11 o'clock last night. He was cold and he was lost.

The cashier called Desk Sergeant Michael Hardiman of the Hudson avenue police. A squad under Policeman Lester Carr brought the boy to the station. It then became Carr's duty to find the boy's parents. He had an idea.

"Give me another squad," he said. "We'll tour the streets near the Schiller "L" with our sireens going. If a family's worried about a lost boy they'll let us know."

Carr's plan worked. A window flew up at 309 West Schiller street, a few doors from the elevated station. Elizabeth Rak, 12 years old, waved to the policemen. She told them the little boy was Raymond Axelstrom Jr., 2½ years old, her cousin, who lives with them.

Raymond's father put him to bed early last evening. How did he get out? Policeman Carr is working on that angle now.

BICYCLES CARRY REFLECTORS.

The Vermont house recently adopted a bill requiring that red reflectors be attached to bicycles. Another bill was presented to require pedestrians walking along state highways to wear similar reflectors at night.

PRESIDENT BACKS WPA WORKERS IN FORMING UNIONS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt, voicing what he called an offhand and horseback opinion, asserted at a press conference today that WPA workers had just as much right to organize as employés of the government in Washington.

His remark was prompted by a reporter's statement that in Minneapolis, the question had been raised whether WPA employés had the right and whether that right could be protected.

SUPREME COURT AGAIN RULES OUT HIGHER GAS RATE

Holds 5% Earnings Are Not Confiscatory.

The Illinois Supreme court in Springfield yesterday affirmed its ruling of last February holding invalid an increase in gas rates which has been in effect for 22 months for more than 800,000 domestic consumers of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company. The rate raise would boost the company's revenues about $3,000,000 a year.

Judge Walter T. Gunn.

On the basis of the higher rate the company has collected an additional $5,600,000 since Feb. 4, 1938. This money has been held in a special fund pending outcome of the litigation.

Will Seek New Hearing.

Late yesterday George A. Ranney, chairman of the company, said another rehearing would be sought in the Supreme court. He said it was his understanding that the decision yesterday involved the question of the high court's jurisdiction to consider whether the lower rates were confiscatory to the company. The new hearing, which must be requested within 20 days, will concern the evidence in the case.

Meanwhile the higher rates will remain in effect, he said, and the $5,600,000 and future excess payments on this basis will be kept in the fund. Should the company finally lose its case, the excess collections will be refunded.

Minimum Bills Increased.

The rate increase, which affected Chicago consumers only, was about 16 per cent. It raised the minimum domestic monthly bill from 60 to 90 cents and added 32 cents to all other domestic bills. The average household bill, without the raise, is $2.07 a month.

The Supreme court decision yesterday, written by Judge Walter T. Gunn of Danville, said the Peoples Gas company has an annual net profit in excess of 5 per cent under the lower rate schedule. Under present economic conditions, Judge Gunn held, such a return cannot be regarded as confiscatory. The company asserted that it was entitled to a return of at least 7 per cent.

OAK PARK VOTE ORDER QUASHED BY HIGH COURT

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield yesterday reversed the order of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher last March that six trustees of the village of Oak Park draw lots to determine which three should remain in office and which three should run in a special election.

All six were elected for terms expiring in 1941. Under an amendment to the cities and villages act, however, village trustees were required to serve staggered terms. The three losers in the drawing ordered by Judge Fisher were to have run last April 4 for new four year terms.

A special election would have cost $7,000, so the trustees appealed Judge Fisher's order and never held the drawing. The decision yesterday quashed a writ of mandamus giving effect to the judge's order. The trustees will now serve out their present terms before a new election is held.

UNION SLAYING STILL MYSTERY AFTER 6 WEEKS

The murder of Paul Peters, union printing pressman, remained an unsolved mystery last night with the passing of the sixth week of the police investigation. Peters was shot to death Oct. 31 in front of his home at 3505 North Oak Park avenue.

Police have announced that they know the identity of the man who drove the car in which the killer escaped. His home is under guard, but thus far he has been too wary to walk into the trap.

The slaying is attributed to a factional fight in the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union, which is dominated by George L. Berry, former Democratic United States senator from Tennessee. Peters' murder was one of seven in Chicago in the last 22 months that were laid to labor troubles. None has been solved.

6TH CORPS AREA LEADS NATION IN ARMY RECRUITS

Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford said yesterday that the 6th corps area had enlisted more recruits between Nov. 7 and Nov. 30 than any of the nation's other eight corps areas.

The general, who commands the corps area, attributed the good results in large part to the coöperation of newspapers and radio stations in giving the public information on the benefits men who enlisted would receive. He also complimented the recruiting officers.

The army quota still requires that about 2,000 recruits be obtained in the 6th corps area in December.

Just touch the throttle . . . flick the gears, and pouf—you vanish. You never felt such get-up-and-go before.

Minutes later, without warning, that engine suddenly "disappears" You can't hear it or feel vibration—but look at the trees whiz by! (You're in that new Fourth Speed Forward).

Is there a laggard in your way? Just toot the horn...tap the throttle—and zing—you leave him wondering what went past. (It's Nash's new Automatic Overtake).

Too late you see that rutted road. You brace yourself for the bang and the bounce . . . but nothing happens. Not a jiggle or a tremor from below.

It's Nash's Arrow-Flight ride—and that traveler on the famed Flying Carpet had nothing on you!

The whistle of the wind . . . the whir of wheels are gone. The world whisks past in pantomime.

When nightfall finds you miles from home, wishing for a place to sleep—pull up beside the road. Wave your hand and lo, those seats in back are easily and quickly converted into a soft double bed.

Yes—these are fanciful words—but here are facts and figures that tell the very same story about this new Nash.

Economy? It's a winner in its class (21.25 miles per gallon). Pick-up? It flashes from 15 to 50 MPH in 12.9 seconds, in high. It's America's only car with a Manifold-Sealed engine . . . and fifty thousand miles is only the beginning of its long life!

That "can't afford me" look? More wizardry . . . for the price tag's only a few dollars above the lowest-priced car.

Come on down today . . . see what new wonders we've added to driving!

Hurry, your new Nash is waiting!

REP. CHURCH ASKS FOR AN AIRING OF NAVAL AFFAIRS

Annapolis 'Aristocracy' Shakeup Sought.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A shakeup of the "naval aristocracy," or Annapolis group, is vitally needed in the reorganization of the navy, Congressman Ralph E. Church of Evanston said yesterday. Another question coming before congress which convenes Jan. 31, he said, is whether a separate aviation branch of the navy should be set up similar to the air corps of the army, with a view of strengthening national defense.

Church, a Republican member of the house committee on naval affairs, holds that the first step in revamping the navy department should be the appointment of a secretary of the navy by President Roosevelt. Since the death of Secretary Claude A. Swanson in July the position has been vacant. Acting head is Assistant Secretary Charles Edison, who has been absent at times because of impaired health. A reorganization bill has been drafted by Representative Carl Vinson [D., Ga], naval committee chairman, and Representative Malvin J. Maas [R., Minn.].

Problems Become Complex.

"As congress approaches its sessions," said Church, "reorganization of our first line of national defense setup becomes more and more important.

"These naval and naval aircraft problems are becoming more complex each day. I am unable to comprehend why the President does not appoint a secretary of the navy. The views of a senate-confirmed secretary will be of importance. Our committee will need responsible witnesses in an endeavor to prepare legislation for a revamping of the navy department and its bureaus, for new yards and docks, for antisubmarine network for harbors and fleet anchorages. Of vast importance will be legislation affecting not only authorization of naval aircraft but naval aircraft official personnel.

"I for one will want to know just who is responsible for the top-heaviness of our new 1,500 ton destroyers, and the reason for changes being made in 36 vessels to improve their stability. I want information not only from the admirals but from a secretary of the navy confirmed by the senate.

Mentions Social Group.

"We shall want to find out if within the bureau of construction and repair and of engineering 100 or more commissioned officers comprise the social group, and if they run the show because they went to Annapolis. We want to learn whether under this group are civilian engineers and naval architects who did not go to Annapolis and are being blamed by the social group for the mistakes which caused the top-heaviness of the navy's brand new warcraft.

"We should give attention to a plan whereby an enlisted man in the navy has real opportunity for a career. It is known that unless a young man is a graduate of the Naval academy he doesn't have much of a chance to rise very far in the service. I think a fine young man from an average American home who enlists for six years should be given a better chance to become a high ranking officer.

Seeks Fairer Treatment.

"They enlist in the navy to serve and not, as so many of the academy appointees do, to get a title and social standing. We would get an even better navy if we had a little less of this naval aristocracy where connections and influence get boys appointed to the Naval academy. As the law now stands, out of all the enlisted men only 100 can be selected each year for the naval academy.

"It is significant that the navy department did not look with much favor on the personnel bill congress adopted in 1938, in which we changed their officer selection system. The admirals don't like innovations and seem opposed to anything that may disturb the naval aristocracy built up over the years. I propose to make this navy the people's, and the most efficient in the world."

Wins Divorce

MADELEINE CARROLL.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Madeleine Carroll, British star of American films, today was granted a divorce from Capt. Philip Astley, to whom she was married in 1931, on grounds of misconduct with a woman named Dorothy Everard. Astley, partner in a London firm of surveyors, did not defend the suit. The actress' testimony was given in an affidavit at Santa Monica, Cal.

BISCUIT CUTTER STARTS SUBWAY WORK IN LOOP

A huge steel shield which will be used to bore the loop sections of the subway tunnel went into operation yesterday from the pit at 11th and State streets. The shield is moving north and is expected to reach Wacker drive by the end of 1940. The shield weighs 190 tons, is 25 feet in diameter, and is shoved forward thru the earth by hydraulic steel jacks. The front part of the shield pierces the soil like a gigantic biscuit cutter.

JUSTICE WEARS JESTER'S ROBE IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Glimpses Show How Cases Are Handled.

[This is the third in a series of articles dealing with the Chicago Municipal court.]

BY GEORGE MORGENSTERN.

The trend of the Municipal court in recent years has been toward concentrating all cases of a particular kind in a single court. In this the court has departed from its original character. At first, each neighborhood court considered all sorts of cases. Now there are some two dozen specialized civil and criminal branches, besides a dozen more district police branches.

Felony court, Safety court, and the combined Auto Theft and Criminal Jury courts, which are housed in the Criminal Courts building at 26th street and California avenue, are examples of the new specialization in the Municipal court.

Jurisdiction Outlined.

Felony court exists because the Municipal court has jurisdiction over all misdemeanors and may apply a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine and one year's imprisonment. The court also has jurisdiction in preliminary examinations of felonies—criminal offenses punishable by a sentence in the penitentiary.

No branch of the Municipal court may impose a penitentiary sentence. If there is presumptive evidence of guilt against a defendant appearing in Felony court on a penitentiary offense, he will be held to the grand jury.

If he is found guilty of a misdemeanor he can be fined in Felony court or sent to jail. Trial is by information, rather than by indictment. That is, the state's attorney brings an original complaint on the statement of an individual that he has been wronged criminally, rather than a formal charge against the defendant returned by the grand jury.

How the Court Works.

This is how Felony court works: It is the job of Judge Gibson Gorman, who sits in Felony court, to segregrate cases demanding grand jury attention from lesser offenses. At this moment a tall boy, 17 years old, is facing the court. Judge Gorman asks:

"Well, son, have you learned anything from your stay in jail?"

The boy nods.

"Probation, then," the judge says. "This is your chance."

A little later the boy comes thru the courtroom from the jail quarters carrying a paper parcel. He is going home.

No Second Chance for This One.

But there is no second chance for the next defendant. He has already had his chance and passed it up.

Before Judge Gorman stands William Nolan, colored, accused of throwing a brick thru a store window and stealing half a dozen bedsheets.

"He dropped all but one sheet," testifies the young policeman on the beat. He points to a soiled bundle on the table. "I chased him five blocks and fired five shots in the air."

"One a block?" inquires the prosecutor. "A methodical man."

The judge consults a record sheet.

"William," he says, "I gave you supervision in Boys' court. You are one of the few boys to come back again. You failed your opportunity."

"I'm willing to take th' opportunity," William says patiently.

"Yes, the opportunity to help yourself. One year in the house of correction."

Gun Case Goes to Jury.

This next case is still another matter. The defendant is older, is charged with robbery. He was carrying two guns when arrested. His lawyer is willing to have him plead guilty of larceny and carrying concealed weapons and settle for 18 months in jail.

"This man will be indicted as a habitual criminal, your honor," says the assistant state's attorney. "He is an ex-convict. He will go to the penitentiary for from 10 years to life."

"We never take a gun case from the grand jury," says the judge. He holds the bandit to the grand jury in $10,000 bail.

Microphone in Safety Court.

In the Safety court, which has been referred to under certain judges as a hippodrome, a microphone stands at the bench, for use when cases are broadcast. When the court was visited, Judge Joseph B. Hermes, who is now hearing civil cases, was sitting there. A schoolboy safety patrol, each boy wearing his white belt, crouched under the flag at the rear of the bench. There was standing room only.

Safety court is where the drunken and reckless drivers appear. Here is a typical plot from Safety court:

A boy is struck by an automobile in the early morning hours and left unconscious in the street. The driver does not stop. He proceeds to a nearby saloon, parks, and goes in.

Boy Picks Out Car.

A friend of the injured boy goes for police. When they arrive the saloon is dark, but two cars are parked in front. Which belongs to the fugitive driver? The two policemen ponder, but the boy who had summoned them thinks of the obvious thing.

He places his hand on the radiator of each car. One is stone cold, the other warm. The car with the warm radiator has been driven quite recently. The license is traced, the driver arrested. Verdict: $100 and costs.

Gives Play to His Wit.

These are serious matters, but Judge Hermes at times sees fit to give play to his wit. For instance, a cab driver charged with drunken driving, who veered to the wrong side of the street and smashed into a parked car, testifies that just before the accident he stopped at a barbecue stand.

"Did you have the strong sauce?" the judge asked. Waiting for the laughter to cease, he adds, "That's comeback stuff."

The cabbie is big and burly. He says he has had only four beers.

Swooning back in his chair in feigned astonishment, the judge demands:

"Do you mean to say you can't take four beers standing up?"

Next case: The clerk calls for a complainant, Harry Moy. No one steps forward.

Clerk Has His Fun, Too.

"This Harry Moy is a Chinaman," says the clerk, who is a comedian of sorts himself. "Are there any Chinamen here?"

The crowd thinks this is funny; so does the clerk.

The defendant in this case is a naturalized citizen, born in Spain.

"You oughta be glad you weren't mixed up in that civil war," volunteers the bench.

The defendant testifies that he walked straight in a test for sobriety.

"He stood up straight like a Spanish soldier," remarks the judge in an aside to the crowd.

Next case:

The defendant says he was driving home from a pinochle party. Drinking? Well, a few beers, perhaps.

The judge accompanies his question with pantomime:

"No whisky?" [Brushing imaginary cobwebs from eyes.] "No wine?" [Coffee grinding motion below chin.] "None of that yaqui?" [Brushing fly from nose.]

By the time the Auto Theft and Criminal Jury court was reached, it was 2 p. m. That is an outlandish hour to find a judge at work, and, in fact, no call was being heard. But Judge Joseph J. Drucker showed himself from time to time in the door of his chambers.

Ward Heeler Before Bench.

A clerk sat in the judge's chair transcribing records. A stocky ward heeler in a cap conversed in front of the bench with a man in a green coat.

In thru the courtroom door trudged Bozo, the old colored man who for years has shined shoes in the building. He came puffing a little pipe and toting his shine box. The clerk stepped down and extended a boot.

His honor entered, ascended the bench, and began to write. All was peace.

A second clerk in alpaca jacket succeeded the first before Bozo. As he received the bootblack's attention, he scratched away at records. At length he laid down his pen and turned to the clerk whose shoes were already shined.

Judge Turns Philosophic.

"Why ain't you doin' some of this work?" he demanded.

The other clerk made some rejoinder. A little cloud of smoke jetted from Bozo's pipe. Judge Drucker looked down on the disputants and observed:

"Why do that, boys, when life is so short?"

As an afterthought he drops a nugget of thought:

"Smile, for tomorrow you die."

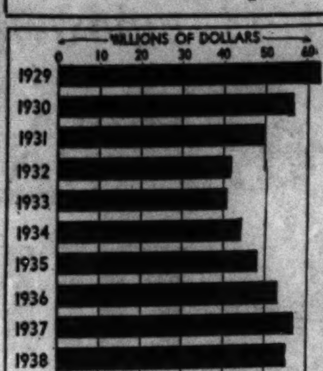
Shaking his poll, Bozo mutters and shines away.

[Another article on the Municipal court will appear in a subsequent issue of THE TRIBUNE.]

ROBBER GETS ONLY $1.

A robber who went into the Stevens candy shop at 138 North State street yesterday obtained only $1 after ordering the clerk, Miss Mildred Woods, to open the cash register.

Postal Receipts



Comparison of postoffice receipts in Chicago for each year since 1929, including the first 11 months of 1939.

Chicago's postoffice is having its best year since the 1929 boom peak, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen announced yesterday. Receipts totaled $51,844,404 in the first 11 months of 1939, compared with $48,850,123 for the corresponding period last year. On the basis of last December Kruetgen predicted the total for 1939 would exceed $58,424,012, the highest since the 1929 total of $63,108,785.

Indicative of the course of business since 1929 are the following yearly total receipts: 1930, $57,171,348; 1931, $50,065,830; 1932, $42,896,142; 1933, $41,872,092; 1934, $44,796,615; 1935, $48,545,832; 1936, $53,832,067; 1937, $57,389,713; 1938, $55,430,737.

Increases were reported in every class of incoming and outgoing mail, as shown in the following computation for 11 months:

Incoming mail—	1938.	1939.

COUNTY ECONOMY PLACED AT DOOR OF OFFICE HEADS

Warned on Duty to Cut Pay Roll Burden.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, yesterday laid the responsibility for pay roll economy at the door of heads of the county offices.

He warned the heads of the fee offices they cannot hide behind the judges of the Circuit court, who refused last week to order the pay roll cuts which they had been warned were necessary to save the county from bankruptcy.

The judges, empowered by law to fix the number of jobs in the fee offices, authorized those offices to increase rather than to decrease the number of pay rollers. But Smith told the office holders yesterday that the judges' duty is only to fix the maximum number of employés and that the office holders may and should reduce that number whenever possible.

Court Ruling Cited.

He cited a Supreme court ruling to that effect, and said:

"That's just as much the law as if it were in the statute books. If office holders don't obey it they are not keeping faith with the taxpayers."

Smith said the rule applies alike to the fee offices, which collect fees for their services, and the nonfee offices.

His warning came after the county board finance committee had cut approximately $640,000 from the county's 1940 operating budget. This brought the total to $22,003,848. The board tentatively accepted the budget and authorized a public hearing Dec. 21. Unless the budget is changed materially at the hearing the board will consider final approval the next day.

Salary Cuts Averted.

The tentative budget will require neither the salary slashes nor the payless vacations contemplated for county employés when the budget stood at more than $27,000,000 in the first draft. Yesterday's reduction was achieved principally by cutting the amount the county will pay next year on the city's $3,200,000 judgment for the county's share of Municipal court costs.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, asked the city finance committee yesterday for $18,112,103 for the 1940 expenditures of the city water department. Controler Robert B. Upham cut the figure to $14,118,685.

The committee took under advisement Hewitt's request that water certificates be sold next year to finance work aggregating $5,189,000 on the new filtration plant and tunnel construction and repairs to cost $10,784,000.

Printing Survey Job Approved.

The finance committee last night approved a recommendation by Hewitt to employ a special man at a salary of $4,500 to make a survey of all printing forms used by city departments. Hewitt said that by standardizing the forms the city might save from 20 to 28 per cent on its printing bill, estimated by the aldermen to run between $230,000 and $250,000 a year.

Thomas Canty, president of local 16 of the Chicago Typographical union, promised to meet today with County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and representatives of the election commissioners to discuss reduction of the election commissioners' printing costs.

The election commissioners assert the union has refused to permit them to save money in printing the election lists and keeping the names in type and making only corrections instead of resetting the lists each time.

President Robert J. Dunham submitted the tentative 1940 operating budget of the Chicago park district to the park commissioners yesterday. It is $11,514,136, or $800,435 less than this year's budget. General decreases have been made in appropriations for all the park departments.

Strayed Lamb

Helen Warren at Anti-Cruelty society with lamb which children found wandering in field near 35th street and Lowe avenue.

Susie and Buttons, the two Scotties in the kennels of the Anti-Cruelty society at 157 West Grand avenue, don't know what to make of it. It's something entirely outside their experience to have a guest answer their doggy "How do you do?" with a plaintive "Baa-aa!" Dr. W. A. Young, the managing director, said the newcomer's name is Merry Christmas. Merry Christmas is small and dun colored, with black ears, black stockings, and a dark nose. Two boys found her in a vacant lot Monday night and took her to the Deering police, who turned her over to the Anti-Cruelty society. It was Dr. Young's guess that the lamb had escaped from a carload destined to be lamb chops.

PRESIDENT BIDS FOR EXTENSION OF TRADE TREATIES

Will Ask Congress to Give Act New Life.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—President Roosevelt today announced he will seek to extend the life of the reciprocal trade treaty act, which allows his administration to make trade pacts without consent of congress. The act expires next year.

The trade treaty program has suffered a barrage of attacks recently from various sections of American life. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, sponsor of the program, took cognizance of these attacks by going to Chicago and defending the pacts before a farm group.

The most severe protests against the trade pacts have come recently from copper producing states, as the state department has begun negotiation of a trade agreement with Chile, which is expected to put copper of the South American country on a list of favored products to the injury of domestic copper producers.

Farmers Oppose Program.

Sentiment against the program has been strong in farm states, because farmers have objected to favored treatment of competing foreign products, notably under the Canadian reciprocal trade treaty.

American labor recently served notice that it would fight any extension of the trade treaty act on the ground that the pacts are unconstitutional in that they are concluded without the consent of the senate.

The trade section of the American Federation of Labor last week adopted a resolution calling upon congress to end the program. The group argued that the program works to the discredit of American products and workers by encouraging importation of foreign goods produced by cheap labor.

Defends Effect of Pacts.

Mr. Roosevelt said he undoubtedly will ask the next session of congress to extend the trade act, because there still are a great number of countries with which pacts have not been concluded, and he feels this potential treaty field should be covered. The treaties have been increasing the country's export trade, the President said.

Mr. Roosevelt said he has no thought of seeking further revision of the neutrality act.

WORK FOR UNION BY LABOR BOARD EXAMINER BARED

Helped Organize C. I. O. During Hearings.

Toland read a memorandum found in the files of the board. Labeled "personal and confidential," it was written Sept. 18 last by Elwyn J. Eagen, a board field examiner from Seattle, in the case of the labor dispute involving the Seattle Post Intelligencer of which Boettiger is publisher.

The memo quoted Boettiger as saying he didn't blame employers for complaining against the board's administration of the labor act. It read in part:

"Boettiger stated that he was very sympathetic with the act but that when it was administered by a board which makes the kind of decision it made in this case, that he didn't blame employers for complaining about the record. He stated very definitely that he did not intend to take up the matter with the President, that he never used his family connections to accomplish anything in which he might be personally interested. He indicated, however, that he would see that his information reached the proper authorities."

The report concluded that Boettiger made reference to the fact that the new member of the board [Leiserson] did not sign the order and that he hoped that this was some indication of a change in policy.

Leiserson on Stand Again.

Leiserson was again on the witness stand thruout the day but his testimony was confined mainly to identification of documents found in the labor board's files.

Attorney Toland read into the record a report of an investigation in the board's Los Angeles office which indicated that Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader, who is now facing deportation proceedings, had led a campaign against Towne Nylander, a board director in Los Angeles, who later resigned.

The report, prepared by George Pratt, chief trial examiner of the board, said the "Harry Bridges group in the C. I. O. was active in the distrust of Nylander."

Nylander resigned after he was reported to have said: "The employer doesn't have a chance in my office before the board."

Toland and Charles Fahy, general counsel for the board, quarreled repeatedly during the hearing, with Fahy interrupting the testimony at times.

Fahy insisted that Chairman Madden and Edwin S. Smith, the other two members of the board, be permitted to testify immediately after Leiserson. Chairman Howard W. Smith [D., Va.] told Fahy that Madden and Smith would be allowed to testify, but that the committee would decide the order of witnesses.

FOSTER ADVISES REDS IN AMERICA TO FORGET BOYCOTT ON GERMANY

New York, Dec. 12 [Special].—William Z. Foster, former head of the communist party, writing in the Daily Worker today, advises his fellow party members to end the boycott of Nazi Germany, now that the "imperialistic war" has upset the soviet union's "peace front."

"The policy of placing an embargo against trade with Nazi Germany," he writes, "was part of the general plan of building an international peace front of the democratic peoples to restrain the Fascist aggressors, a policy championed by the soviet union.

"At that time the boycott of German goods was one of the means for preventing the outbreak of war. Due to the opposition of the British and French imperialists and their social democratic lackeys, however, the international peace front could not be built, and the present hostilities broke out between the allies and Germany."

CAROLS TO RING OUT SUNDAY FOR GOOD FELLOWS

N. U. Group Plans Annual Christmas Sing.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

GOOD FELLOW
1939

Good Fellow Button.

The second annual carol sing in behalf of the Good Fellow campaign by the University college of Northwestern university will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday in Thorne hall on the Northwestern downtown campus. A free will offering will be taken, a portion of the proceeds to go to the purchase of Good Fellow baskets, according to Vladimir de Lissovoy, chairman of a joint committee of the Knights and Themis clubs, which are sponsoring the event. Dr. Samuel Nowell Stevens, dean of the University college, will speak on "A Christmas Message."

The Edgewater choir will sing carols, directed by Dr. Samuel Burkholder. Soloists will be Mair Jones and Marion Huebener, sopranos, and Jane Nelson, contralto, who was chosen the best woman singer in the Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contest last summer. Virginia Payne will give a reading, "Simplicity," and there will be folk dancing by a Croatian group. Kenneth Cutler will be the organist.

"Anonymous" Does His Part.

It is interesting to note the names of some of those who are contributing to Plan No. 2 of this season's Good Fellow work.

Altho "Anonymous" has done his and her part, other signatures to the contributions include Andun This, A Friend, Mr. X., the I Will club, and God Bless You. In order that the money intended for the Good Fellow fund be rightfully assigned to it, the controler of THE TRIBUNE has asked that contributors make their checks or money orders payable to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Good Fellow Fund. Even if the contributor wishes to remain anonymous he is requested to sign something, tho it be just an initial. One reason for this request is that for the first time all contributors to the fund are being listed in some issue of THE TRIBUNE. Money should be addressed to the Good Fellow department, 1 South Dearborn street.

Contributions are coming in not only from Chicago and the suburbs but from widespread points. Among them are Jerome Smith, Robinson, Ill., $1; Miss Mabel Sass, Hammond, Ind., $10; Marie J. Baysen, Urbana, Ill., $1, and Anonymous, Fort Madison, Ia., $5.

Clubwoman Lauds Fund.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, spoke for the Good Fellows yesterday morning on the June Baker Home Management program on W-G-N.

"Being a Good Fellow is synonomous with being a good citizen," said Mrs. Clark. "Christmas must not be a day of disappointment with hungry bodies and even hungrier hearts for any one in our abundant land. We do not want Christmas to be a day of disillusionment, but a day of dreams fulfilled. Christmas must be overflowing with sudden, joyous, childish laughter. Be a Good Fellow and make these dreams come true."

KEOKUK GROCER DIES.

KEOKUK, Iowa, Dec. 12 [Special].—R. E. Falkinburgh, a grocer here for many years, died today at the Graham hospital. He was 68 years old. His widow, a daughter, Mrs. Elmer Barnes, and several sisters and brothers survive.

ROOSEVELT RAPS DIES' COMMITTEE ATTACK ON CONSUMER GROUPS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt made it clear today that he does not approve of the procedure used by the Dies committee in issuing a report linking consumer groups with communism. The report was prepared by J. B. Matthews, the committee's research director. After telling his press conference that a lot of people had mentioned the report to him, Mr. Roosevelt outlined the procedure, as he understood it, as follows:

Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] appointed himself a subcommittee, assumed the rôle of a subcommittee, received the report from Matthews and then directed that the report be received by the full committee and ordered published. This action, the President added, spoke for itself.

Mr. Roosevelt said his understanding was based on newspaper articles quoting Representative H. Jerry Voorhis [D., Cal.], a member of the Dies committee. Voorhis yesterday criticized the way the report was handled.

TAFT PROPOSES BUDGET BALANCE WITHIN 2 YEARS

Boston, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, said tonight that a G. O. P. program for 1940 should demand a balanced national budget in "about two years" and help the development of private enterprise thru an administration friendly to business.

In an address before the Republican club of Massachusetts, he struck out at New Deal spending and administration of internal affairs, but declared there was no conflict between Republicans and the administration on the principles of adequate preparation for defense and the keeping out of war.

Taft asserted that the present deficit in operations and increase in public debt was "a damning indictment of any organization and administration," and added that "ability to make both ends meet has been considered an absolute essential in every form of human organization, and the New Dealers are utterly unable or unwilling to accomplish this purpose."

Trotsky May Not Come to U. S. for Dies Committee

Orange, Tex., Dec. 12 (AP).—Rep. Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee investigating un-Americanism, said tonight Leon Trotsky may not come to the United States to testify about communist activities in the western hemisphere. No assurance that Trotsky will return to Mexico, where the Russian is living in exile, has been given the committee. Dies decided not to proceed with the proposed hearing until the committee as a whole had decided on what course to pursue. There was a possibility an investigator may be sent to Mexico City to interview Trotsky.

SCOTCH WITH A STORY

Ten years ago a handful of men were pioneering the airways of Africa. One of them was Captain White. Among the others was a famous war ace and stunt flier, who decided to fly a tricky monoplane from Eastern Africa to Central Europe. But he cracked up on an uncharted African island. Captain White's old friend and fellow explorer, T. Campbell Black, who later won the Melbourne Cup, set out in search of the missing pilot. Black spotted the wreck but could not bring his ship down on the tiny strip of land. He radioed for help. The disabled flier was snatched from a horrible death. History doesn't record this incident, but it should. For the flier saved that day is now the key man in German aviation. And he was saved by a British Royal Air Force plane. Ten years can bring many changes in the relationship between men, but through the years the quality of White Horse remains steadfast. This famous Scotch continues to hold old friends and make new ones. Why not try White Horse today? You will find it everywhere, but you will never find its equal. Match it if you can!

Captain Harold A. White, explorer and world traveler, relates his fascinating experiences in this White Horse series. Follow it week by week.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

THE PROGRESS OF A FRAUD.

Flood control in the Tennessee valley received some valuable if unappreciated assistance from nature. It was the drouth. One of the constitutional reasons for TVA was served by low water. For the other constitutional purpose of TVA—the maintenance of navigability where very few people want to navigate—the parsimony of nature was not so good.

The socialist state established by the New Deal in the valley to control floods and promote navigation had its eye in the beginning on a mere incident arising from the performance of constitutional duties. TVA happens to produce electric power—legally regarded as a byproduct of its activities—and, although the production of electric power for commercial purposes is not within its authority, if it does produce electric power it may dispose of any surplus.

In disposing of the surplus, the production of which is the primary and not the secondary purpose, TVA went into the light and power business, took over the private light and power companies within its socialist domain after it had driven them to the wall by its tax supported competition and acquired their properties.

Thus flood control and navigation came into the possession of steam plants. The drouth hit the hydro plant and, in order to have a surplus produced as a byproduct incidental to flood control and navigation, TVA had to turn on the steam if there were to be enough byproduct for the consumers. It is reasoned that the authority, having acquired the steam plants in the disposal of its incidental surplus, must certainly have the right to use them to keep up the surplus it doesn't produce.

Now arises the question whether, having acquired steam plants in this fashion, TVA has the authority to build them supposedly as an activity incidental to flood control where there are no floods and to navigation where there is no navigation. Senator Norris, of course, has a clear opinion. He thinks TVA should anticipate drouth and build steam plants. Then the power plant socialists would have the constitutional authority stretched from floods and too much water to drouth and too little. One thing they all agree on: TVA can be authorized to build anything for national defense. If they can't get a drouth they could do with a war.

THE PLACE TO START THE ANNUAL WAGE.

Many people believe that high hourly wages demanded by building trades mechanics are one of the main causes of the continuing slump in the construction industry. Building trades unions argue, however, that uncertain and irregular employment makes the high scale necessary to assure the mechanic a decent annual income.

A solution to the problem which has gained wide popularity is the proposal that employers in the construction trades guarantee their workmen a certain annual wage. Presumably the annual wage would give the workman an income equal to or exceeding his present return under sporadic employment conditions, but since he would work steadily, would cut the high hourly wage rate.

Joseph D. Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, is dubious of this proposal. He admits it is attractive, but doesn't see how it can be put in operation. He fears that a double wage scale, hourly and annual, would in the end restrict rather than stimulate construction, since no contractor paying the hourly rate could compete with the contractor who guaranteed his mechanics a year-round job and thereby benefited by the lower hourly cost of labor. Furthermore, he fears, the contractor paying the annual wage would accept work only if he could fit it into an annual schedule of operations, since otherwise he would have to pay mechanics for whom he had no work.

These objections seem reasonable. It is apparent that the annual wage idea will have to be explored more thoroly than it has been before it can be put into practice. But Mr. Keenan overlooks one field in which the annual wage theory can and should be applied at once.

Chicago local governments carry a large number of building trades mechanics on their pay rolls. These employés are not only assured year-round jobs, they also receive other benefits not commonly enjoyed by fellow union members in private employment, such as pensions and paid vacations. Yet their salaries, in the majority of cases, are based on the high hourly rates that the unions themselves defend only on the ground that they are necessary to deal with the problem of sporadic employment.

Union labor has overdone its efforts to make governmental agencies model employers to the extent that in many instances the effect has been to make the taxpayers model suckers. There is no excuse for the practice, far too common in Chicago, of demanding for union employés on the public pay roll wages higher than those paid by those private employers who regularly negotiate wage contracts with unions.

ARMED EXPEDITIONS.

The sale of eight American fishing trawlers to the French government for use as mine sweepers raised a question in international law for Mr. Morgenthau of the treasury and Mr. Murphy of the department of justice to consider. Mr. Morgenthau passed it to Mr. Murphy. Three of the trawlers slipped out of the Cape Cod canal and were on their way before the coast guard could detain them.

America still has a good memory of a historic instance of fitting out armed expeditions. That was its case against Great Britain for permitting the confederate commerce raider Alabama to get to sea for its depredations on American commerce. Mine sweepers might be regarded not as instruments of destruction but as instruments of prevention. They keep ships from being blown up if they are successful in their work, but an armed trawler might also seize a ship.

The law against the fitting out of armed expeditions in neutral countries finds a new angle in the sale of airplanes here in the United States. It could hardly be doubted that the flight of American built planes in charge of belligerent pilots would come within the prohibition. One or more war planes would constitute an armed expedition and the United States might find that it was held responsible for any damages done by the planes to a country with which America was not at war. Planes in crates or in parts not assembled are assumed not to be armed expeditions.

Some of the planes have been delivered to Canada and one of the methods is by an interesting technical evasion. It is the ruling of the American government that a plane may not cross the frontier in flight but may be landed on this side of the border and pushed across. That method of delivery, it is assumed, relieves the United States of the responsibility of permitting a ship to depart from its territory to carry war to a nation with which it is at peace. Some of the distinctions are being drawn very fine but technically we are supposed to be maintaining our neutrality.

TORTURE FOR DEBTORS.

Judge J. J. O'Brien of Wellsburg, W. Va., a few days ago ordered the sheriff of his county to hang a ball and chain on any husband sent to jail for being delinquent in alimony payments. The judge directed that if the county lacked the necessary equipment it should be bought immediately, so that no time would be lost in putting the objects of the judge's wrath at hard labor on the public highways.

The judge's action served to get his name and that of his county seat into the metropolitan papers, a first rate accomplishment in view of the inherent difficulties and perhaps an unprecedented one. It cannot be said that the publicity so achieved was of a sort to bring much credit upon the judge or his community.

Sending a man to jail for failure to pay alimony is nothing more nor less than imprisoning him for debt without even a jury trial. Humane men and women in progressive states long ago brought about the abolition of debtors' prisons and are seeking today to put an end to imprisonment for nonpayment of alimony as a vestige of an old brutality. Judge O'Brien is so insensitive to the spirit of the times that he has chosen to add physical and mental torture to his jail sentences.

The duty of a man to support his dependent wife and children is not in question in these alimony cases. The law requires support and if a man evades his duty he can be tried for that offense. He should not be sentenced for debt even when it is camouflaged under the high sounding phrase "contempt of court," and he certainly should not be tortured and humiliated for a failure to make money payments.

INVENTION AND NECESSITY.

[Reno (Nev.) Gazette.]

Taking apart the old saw that "necessity is the mother of invention," Lawrence A. Hawkins of the General Electric laboratories denies that this is so. The quick witted falsifier, caught in a jam, may have recourse to the "invention" of an alibi, but few inventors, says Mr. Hawkins, ever invented anything because the public clamored for it.

The inventor as a rule develops his idea over many years of study and experiment. It is not to be doubted that he sees a need for the thing he has in mind, regards it as practical, or he would not waste his time at it. But no public, he declares, stood outside the laboratory of Bell and clamored for a telephone. No busy world, impatient with the comparative slowness and lack of range of telephone and telegraph, egged Marconi on to develop the wireless. No theater weary public urged Edison to perfect the kinetoscope so that it might have a drama on the screen.

Mr. Hawkins says that from his observation the inventor has his hardest time trying to sell his idea to the public, which, if it sees any necessity for the new device at all, sees it only after it has been thoroly propagandized and subjected to high pressure salesmanship in favor of it. The inventor, says Mr. Hawkins, is something like the poet who has the urge to develop something new largely for his own satisfaction.

The proverb ought to be changed, he says, to "Invention is the mother of necessity."

UNCLE TOM DOWN SOUTH.

[Detroit News.]

Seemingly trifling incidents may serve as a measure for great developments. Announcement that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is to be revived by an amateur dramatic group would not ordinarily attract much attention. But it takes on particular significance when the production is staged in a big city away down south.

The New Orleans Group theater recently played Harriet Beecher Stowe's masterpiece and won the approval of an appreciative audience of southern folks. The director explained that the object was not to kid the play. They played it straight, bringing out its pathos, humor, and suspense, and the house judged it on its merits and called it good.

Such an occurrence justifies pride and gratitude on the part of all Americans north and south. It indicates that sectional wounds have healed and the long desired solidarity of the nation has been achieved. The explanation is unimportant that change of attitude toward "Uncle Tom's Cabin" results from shifts of population, northerners going south and southerners coming north. It is a phase of our liberty that Americans go where they please. It is one of the most gratifying indications of the nation's unity that a meritorious production is no longer lacking appreciation anywhere because of sectional prejudices once associated with it.

OF BOOKS AND THINGS.

Adolph Kroch of the bookstores is sending his customers and friends, as a Christmas card, an autographed brochure of his authorship on the subject of bookselling—its history, philosophy, and technique. He describes his business as an eternal busman's holiday. He spends his days selling 'em and his nights reading 'em.

* * *

Mr. Kroch started with a hole in the wall on Monroe street in 1913. After several years he moved to Michigan avenue and stocked up with items for the young intellectuals, who were then babbling about Rémy de Gourmont. In 1923 the Chicago literary renaissance, so-called, seemed to focus around his store.

* * *

Forty years ago, or so, Frank Morris' was the place. The newspaper men of his period were strong for Frank, and his shop on Madison street between La Salle and 5th avenue [Wells] was frequented by them, when they were in a sober and studious mood. We have a first edition of Balzac's "Contes Drolatiques," with illustrations by Gustave Doré, that came from Frank Morris', and the day we bought it is clearer in memory than thousands of more important days.

* * *

Fanny Butcher's shop in the Pullman building was a pleasant place to visit, and Walter Hill's, up in the air in the Marshall Field building, offered the higher bibliophilism. There we bought a first edition of Keats for $15 to give away to an actress; and we suspect that it is worth several thousands now!

* * *

"There are about 1,600,000 retail stores in the United States," says Mr. Kroch in his booklet, "and of these only about 4,000 are retail book outlets."

You Can Learn About Women from This.

Not yet, my love; I must be free. There's many a sunset road I've never followed to dawn; many breezes to face, and many shining trails to trace to the earth's purple rim.

If we married, some noon you'd find my broom upon the floor, the dinner unprepared, my apron hanging by the door. Then you'd climb our winding stairs, call my name through every room, but never find me there.

So for a while I must turn from you and home to face the roads and roam. You've heard them say, "Gather rosebuds while ye may!"

I've always wanted to see those grottoes at Capri. They say they're like caves of iridescent ice. The hills are green in Killarney. Perhaps the Trade Winds will blow me into Rawalpindi. Something whispers, tantalizing me, "There's a certain deserted city where the owls flutter and hoot ceaselessly."

Maybe on the Sulu sea when the first silver beam mingles with the waves I'll find my Grail; or at Chenochane, fabulous Samarkand, or Hafiz Persian tomb where the nightingale resurrects his raptured melody.

Mayhap if I go where the Apostles trod, the hallowed sod would impart what I seek.

I know the Lake of Gennesaret must be lazuli and deep. If I'd splash in its blue, I'd regain the youth I've spent. Tirelessly I'd search in Pompeii, Byron's Isles of Greece, in candlelight at St. Sophia.

At last, when wandering is through, I'll turn my way toward home and you, my dear.

SONNETS TO SUPERMEN—V.

[Thomas Carlyle, 1795-1881.]

His mind was like a castle on the hill,
Well garrisoned with officers of rank,
His heart an island stronghold, and his will
Shaggy as sinews where the sledges clank.
That castle's tiltyard busy was indeed
With muscular encounters, cut and thrust;
The thinking world took note and all agreed
Sir History was worsting Dry-as-Dust.
Sham was impaled and pilloried and burned,
And Idleness despatched with double blows,
Old Luxury to purgatory spurned,
And Work at last triumphant over woes.
Strong to the struggle, in his language queer,
Who will not love the grand Victorian seer!

Portrait of a Ballroom Dancer.

She wasn't beautiful. Her sleek platinum curls hardened the dark unhappy eyes and the slightly Roman nose. She glided to the center of the floor with scarcely a flutter of her chiffon draperies, and stood, drooping slightly, waiting for the music. But when the wild pulsating rhythm of the tango began, a mantle of beauty slipped over her.

One felt the creation of something exquisite as she whirled through the current of music. The smoke gray and dusky pink of her gown billowed in a lovely cloud, and the little silver slippers were like stars twinkling across the floor. Every movement of the dance bespoke the ecstatic passion known only to those who also suffer deeply.

NEOPRONTOSIL HELPFUL IN ULCERATIVE COLITIS.

ULCERATIVE colitis is an unregenerate, piratical disease. It flies the black flag and will attack friend or foe with eagerness. There probably was a time when the malady could be classified as a "small time" thief. Starting as a relatively mild, acute manifestation of the large intestine—thru neglect, indifference, or lack of proper information, the condition was allowed to continue until a chronic stage of irritation fastened itself upon the colon.

No! It is not caused by nervousness. But any one with an upset alimentary tract who fails to display a kaleidoscopic tangle of nerves may be said to be lacking in normal sensibilities.

In this type of disorder we recognize a serious illness. Multiple lesions may exist along the large intestine, and the individual's strength—in consequence—is depleted by the frequent passage of blood mixed with pus. Weight loss is usually rapid and the degree of anemia depends upon the character and faithfulness of the supporting treatment.

Perhaps this sequence of events is not followed exactly, as some cases of dysentery due to a specific germ may pave the way for a true inflammation. The "bloody flux," which took the lives of so many soldiers during the war between the north and the south, was no doubt a bacterial infection at the start; but physicians later encountered many old veterans with a chronic, low grade colitis who gave a history of dysentery during their campaign days.

Recently the suggestion was offered that sulfanilamide, or some similar compound, might be effective, and numerous trials with a derivative of this drug [neoprontosil] indicate that it is not only helpful but of real value. The quantity employed is substantial and the dye is given by mouth. In a report by A. E. Brown and others, 15 men and 14 women were thus treated. Thirteen obtained excellent results, 13 were benefited, while in only three was the remedy without influence. Some had been sufferers for several years with an occasional remission.

Curiously enough, of those in whom the trouble was limited to the rectum and the sigmoid [the lower portion of the bowel], only two failed to secure relief, while the others were definitely improved or practically well. As has been pointed out, the marked success of the Bargen vaccine has hitherto held out reasonable hope for healing. In another group studied by these authors, 19 patients received prontosil plus serum or vaccine. Here the percentage of recoveries was not quite as good as when only the chemical was utilized. Furthermore, failure or poor results occurred in 26 per cent.

Fortunately we have learned much about the method of administration of sulfanilamide—which has been available only for the last two or three years. We know how to control the so-called side or undesirable reactions and to test its concentration in the blood. While its poisonous effects are not fully understood as yet, nevertheless toxic symptoms are now far less likely to occur.

In the instances cited neoprontosil was used because daily allowances could be maintained over a longer period of time. It was observed, however, that there was a tendency to irritation of the bowel and cramps or diarrhea would be exhibited whenever the dose was too large. Some complained of a mild degree of fatigue or headache, but these disturbances were not sufficient to warrant stopping the medication. The ratio was reduced when nausea or vomiting increased.

Altho ulcerative colitis comes and goes—well being may be followed by a relapse—most of the patients responded to this management almost from the outset. Far from a cure-all, it is another hopeful incident in the application of chemical compounds to a disease which has hitherto been attended with grave danger.

TUMOR.

G. writes: I have a fatty tumor on the back, near the right shoulder blade. It is nearly six inches in length. My physician says it is a lipoma. Will this continue to grow larger? Do such tumors ever become cancerous? Is removal a serious operation? Must a general anesthetic be given?

REPLY.

The term lipoma means "fatty tumor." Such growths are benign—that is, not cancerous. Removal is usually accomplished under a local anesthetic. When the mass is as large as you describe a general anesthetic is advised. A skilled surgeon should be in charge. The procedure is not serious. These lumps develop slowly as a rule. Some remain stationary for a long time.

MALARIA.

W. G. writes: What are the symptoms and the treatment of malaria?

REPLY.

Chills, followed by fever, reappearing every three or four days, with little or no discomfort in the interval. The standard treatment is quinine, altho other chemicals such as atabrin or plasmochin are available. A physician should be in charge, as the malady must be conquered.

DRYNESS.

H. B. writes: I suffer with dryness of the nasal passages in the wintertime. Does this indicate any special trouble?

REPLY.

Not likely. Many of us overheat offices and dwellings during the colder seasons. Lack of humidity is probably responsible. A bit of white vaseline morning or evening may be helpful.

ONE TERM; SIX YEARS.

Danville, Ill., Dec. 9.—I wish to interest you in a movement for a bill to change the federal constitution so that the President may serve only one term; make it a six year term if you wish. Such a law is badly needed and would stop the squandering of money in order to build vast political machinery to secure reëlection. If this law were enacted the President would have a little more time to devote to the welfare of his country and could look into the future with a thought for the protection of generations to come. One can only feel ashamed of the present politicians when they insist that Mr. Roosevelt must be reëlected because there is no other man in the party capable of carrying on. There are plenty of good men who with well organized departments could step in and the old United States would go right along and prosper. I would like to see your paper start a movement advocating such a change.

FAULT-FINDING NOT ENOUGH.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—For an immature candidate aspiring to the presidency to devote his entire opening speech to denouncing the every act of our duly elected officials, placed there by the voters themselves, is the absolute low in inaugurating a campaign for this exalted office. It is not constructive criticism.

A child knows it requires no intelligence to find fault with the other fellow, especially if you are envious of him. The office boy has indulged in this practice for many years, but who would accept his views as against those of his experienced superior?

A. M. T.

GOETHE IN LUXEMBURG.

Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 11.—The centennial of the independence of Luxemburg reminds one of the fact that the poet Goethe visited the city in October, 1792, and in classic prose expressed his wonder at the fortifications, now dismantled, and the beauty of the landscape. He concludes his description with the words:

"Here one finds so much sublimity and charm, so much solemnity combined with loveliness, that one could wish a great artist had employed his talents in depicting the scene."

HERMANN S. FICKE,
University of Dubuque.

IS IT PROPAGANDA?

Monticello, Ill., Dec. 7.—In your paper and others I have lately seen letters from Englishmen and Frenchmen published. These letters invariably tell of conditions in Europe in wartime and in each is the offer to correspond with Americans who are interested. Could this possibly be a subtle form of propaganda? The very number of these letters has made me wonder. I am sure you would not want to publish these letters if they were propaganda. You might have some way of tracking them down.

MORE ABOUT DOCTORS' BILLS.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Your article on itemizing doctors' bills is pertinent. When I pay doctors' bills I am sometimes in doubt as to their accuracy, altho I am positive they would not intentionally overcharge me. Why, I wonder, can't they give me the ordinary information on the number of calls, the dates, price per call, etc., so I may know that I am paying a correct bill?

I'm in the coal business. My bill at the end of the month to a doctor customer reading, "To Merchandise—$100," would not be honored without question. He wants a record of dates, items, quantities, and unit prices.

The doctor's fee for an operation is not questioned. That fee, obviously, cannot be itemized.

The point, however, of attending several members of my family, some at home and some at the doctor's office, all lumped in one amount, "To Professional Services," is what irks me. I keep no record of the dates my wife or children go to the doctor's office or when he comes to my house, and when his bill comes, the charge is lumped. I pay it, but I don't feel right about it. Of course, he will itemize it if I request it, but why should I be forced to ask? I did that once and the doctor's cu reply indicated that I had invaded forbidden territory.

The dentist, too, is given to lumping his charges, even when several members of a family are involved. I grant that some professional services cannot be readily itemized, but much of it can.

GULLS OVER THE RIVER.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Did you ever hear a lark tear its ecstasy to pieces and drop the tatters? Well, what has that to do with the gulls' flight over the Chicago river yesterday afternoon?

Just this: I love to watch them cavorting about the airway as I cross the Wells street bridge afoot on the west walk.

There are gulls "fishing" and resting on the surface of the river; there are gulls "taking off" from the surface of the river; there are gulls making a perfect "three point" landing on the surface of the river, while the airway above is a heart quickening symphony of motion as they cleave the air as no man-made airplane can or ever will.

Well, the gulls always amaze me by their weird cry—like a creaking, rusty gate hinge, and it's then that I think of a lark tearing its ecstasy to pieces and dropping the tatters earthward.

NEWS MINUS PROPAGANDA.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 7.—It is refreshing to open my TRIBUNE each morning and know that the news I read will not be prejudiced by false propaganda. This war is not ours and we do not wish any participation. Let us wait until an invader necessitates our being involved.

There were many Americans during the last war who were completely fooled by the false propaganda which at that time was really foul. There are always some who do swallow everything they hear.

Now, when newspapers like the TRIBUNE print only the news, not seasoned with propaganda, the public will be more enlightened as to the true facts.

We have read your paper for over 25 years and no matter where we live always will.

AMERICAN BORN.

A PLEA FOR ANIMALS.

Englewood, N. J., Dec. 8.—At our last meeting several members brought your Gasoline Alley pictures of the attempts to abandon the cat.

We are puzzled to know just what the cartoonist is trying to do. Is he trying to suggest ways of abandoning cats to people? If so, don't you think there are enough heartless people in the world without adding to them by teaching them thru these pictures?

The world itself is a fine place, and an editor should try to teach decency, mercy, and constructiveness. Why not have your cartoonist teach a sense of obligation to animals? They don't harm us—why not give them a square deal?

CHRISTIANA BERTRAM,
Secretary, Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

WHY THE ILLINOISANS?

Chicago, Dec. 11.—The present "Illinoisans" were organized to supersede the Illinois Iroquois League, Inc., with the purpose of avoiding paying income taxes. They were told by legal advisers that as a corporation they were subject to taxation. Some racket to be upheld and sponsored by our governor.

All we need is a leader to show us the way out of this blackmailing mess. If the press will give this thing enough publicity, we'll do the rest.

Republicans, take notice! Put us back under civil service where we belong [Len Small took us out], and put a plank in your platform against this forcible collection of campaign funds.

A STATE HIGHWAY ENGINEER.

ISN'T HE TEMPORARILY SHELVED?

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Pictures in the newspapers showing Judge Eugene L. McGarry resuming his position on the bench are sickening. How can any one in Chicago have respect for law and order when this official is permitted to dispense justice?

If Judge McGarry is allowed to hold his job simply on the theory that he is innocent until proven guilty, then let's invite Al Capone back to Chicago, beg his forgiveness, and let him run the city again.

DO IT WITH DEWEY!

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 9.—The G. O. P. can win without any slogan over the Ickses, Blitzes, and Nixies of the unspeakable New Deal. But a live slogan helps, and out of the events of the week this slogan has entered the ring.

Recover America. Do it with Dewey!

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Dec. 13, 1914.

[138th day of world war; 104th day of present war.]

BUENOS AIRES.—The German cruiser Dresden, one of the squadron defeated by British warships at the Falkland islands recently, and which took to flight, was stranded on the Argentine coast yesterday near the port of Ballegos. It is reported that the Dresden was forced into a corner by the British and, rather than fight against overwhelming odds, the German commander ran the cruiser ashore.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—The Turkish Black sea fleet has bombarded the Russian port of Batum, killing a hundred persons and wounding several hundred.

PETROGRAD.—Dispatches assert the German campaign in Poland has failed. Russian forces have pierced the line of the German army advancing on Warsaw from the north, are holding the Germans in the center, and have defeated the Austro-German forces before Cracow.

BERLIN and PARIS.—Statements as to the war on the western front do not agree, except as to the fact that the allies are pressing their offensive along the whole line.

BERLIN.—The kaiser's physician reports: "His majesty is much improved and will be able to return to the firing line within the next week or ten days."

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

POSSESSION OF FIREARMS.

Chicago, Dec. 8 [Legal Friend of the People].—Kindly enlighten me as to the law governing the carrying of a rifle inside the city limits.

W. S.

Section 193-31 of the new City Code reads: "No person shall at any time discharge or set off anywhere within the city, or have in his possession for such purpose any toy firearm, air rifle, toy cannon, or any gun that discharges projectiles either by air, spring, explosive, substance, or any other force."

The relationship between this and the constitutional privilege of bearing arms is open to question.

ENDS 15 HOUR FILIBUSTER AND THE VOTE'S NO!

North Chicago Alderman Loses Light Plant Fight.

An all night filibuster in the North Chicago city council ended at 11 a. m. yesterday with two aldermen calling each other liars. The wrangle was over a proposal to build a municipal light plant and whether more time should be devoted to investigating the project.

The originator of the filibuster was Ald. Walter Koziol, who favored continuing the investigation. At the end of 15 hours of talking and reading, however, he found himself outvoted, 6 to 2.

Ald. Koziol, who is a Democratic county central committeeman and former secretary to State Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago, was going strong at the end of the filibuster. His coat was off, his collar was unbuttoned, and his tie was askew, but he was undismayed in spirit. He said he had to stop talking in order to save something for a Democratic meeting in the evening.

Plans Appeal to People.

"I will take this to the people," said Koziol, threatening a petition and a referendum to turn the thoughts of obdurate aldermen in a new direction.

"It's a lot of hypocrisy," said Ald. Guy Lunn, who had held the chair for Mayor John P. Dromey as the sun came up.

"I would have said a lot more if it had not been for parliamentary rules," Lunn added.

Ald. Matt Kirn, chairman of the investigating committee, the report of which caused all the trouble, was not held back by any rules. He is the leader of the group opposing the project. Koziol had charged in the debate that Kirn had not coöperated in the investigation and did not seem to want to know anything about the plant. Kirn denied this.

And Away They Go.

"I gave you the 1933 report on the question," said Kirn.

"And that's all you did," retorted Koziol.

"I called meetings, didn't I?" asked Kirn.

"That's a lie," shouted Koziol.

Both sides were agreed on one thing—not to spend much on a new investigation of whether the plant would save money for the city.

"I can get a survey for one dollar," said Koziol. "I wouldn't spend $1,500 as you did in 1933 and waste money."

"You're playing politics," answered Kirn.

"I'm for the people," said Koziol. "You've put obstacles in the way."

"You're a liar," yelled Kirn.

Project Simmering Since 1932.

The council washed its hands of the project, at least temporarily, by voting against further investigation of the plan. The project has been simmering in North Chicago politics since 1932.

In 1933 the RFC offered to lend the city $395,000 to build a plant, but the council turned down the offer after spending $1,500 to investigate the plan and after rates had been reduced somewhat.

Most of the time during the filibuster was taken up by Koziol and his sole supporter, Ald. Casimir Zdanowicz, reading a report of municipal operation in 68 other cities. It was asserted that Wilmette is making a profit every year from its plant. The Public Service company of Northern Illinois now supplies the power in North Chicago.

Al Capone to Spend His Christmas in Hospital

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 12 (AP).—Al Capone, former Chicago gang leader, won't be out of the hospital for Christmas. The office of Dr. Joseph E. Moore, Capone's physician, said today there is no prospect of his immediate transfer from Union Memorial hospital, where he has been since Nov. 16. Capone, suffering from a brain malady, entered the institution immediately after his release from federal prison, where he served seven years for income tax evasion. Dr. Moore's office daily has reported "no change" in his condition.

Bandit Captured

MICHAEL KUZEL.

Michael Kuzel, 22 years old, told detectives at the Central police station last night how he had robbed 25 hosiery and candy shops in and near the loop since Nov. 15. After each robbery, he said, he got into a taxicab, was driven around the block, and became an interested spectator as crowds gathered and police arrived.

Yesterday, however, Kuzel had no time for a taxi ride. Using a toy pistol, he got $6.05 in a hosiery shop at 80 West Washington street. The manager, Mrs. Esther Hartell, 4535 Magnolia avenue, ran after Kuzel. Her screams attracted 50 pedestrians and two policemen, Ray Kelly and Patrick J. Hastings.

They chased Kuzel north in Clark street to an alley, where he ran eastward to Dearborn street. There Policeman Hastings pulled the bandit from his hiding place beneath a parked car, with Mrs. Hartell on hand, ready to help. Kuzel said he was from Ironwood, Mich., and had been living in a North Clark street flophouse.

WILLIAM BIOFF ACTION DROPPED IN LOS ANGELES

William Bioff, motion picture union laborer, was released from technical custody in Municipal court at Los Angeles yesterday when Judge Wilbur C. Curtis was informed that Chicago authorities had made no move to press proceedings to extradite him here to serve out a six month jail sentence imposed on him 17 years ago for pandering.

Members of the state's attorney's staff here said the action was of little importance, since extradition is still pending before Gov. Horner. The hearing was postponed last Friday until Dec. 19 at the request of State Senator A. L. Marovitz [D., Chicago], Bioff's counsel. If the governor signs the extradition papers, Bioff can be rearrested on a fugitive warrant in Los Angeles and held for police.

Bioff had been at liberty on bail in Los Angeles.

BARE INDICTED BERWYN AID AS EX-CONVICT

Prison Terms Revealed at Treasurer's Hearing.

Ernest W. Mau, city treasurer of Berwyn, was revealed yesterday as an ex-convict who served two prison terms in Minnesota for forgery.

This disclosure was made in connection with a hearing in the Criminal court of Judge William J. Lindsay, where Mau and Matthew A. Berg, former treasurer, are under indictment on a charge of embezzling $3,726 from the Berwyn special assessment fund. The alleged embezzlement occurred in December, 1936, while Mau was city controler and Berg was treasurer.

Attorneys James M. Burke and Joseph Harrington had been arguing in court for two days on a motion to dismiss the indictment. They contend Mau and Berg were hoodwinked into signing a waiver of immunity when they testified before the grand jury which indicted them. The lawyers said this was a violation of their clients' constitutional rights.

Admits Facing Charge.

Mau, who is 61 years old, was on the witness stand, testifying in support of this argument when Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright asked:

"This isn't the first time you have faced a criminal trial, is it?"

Over the objections of Attorney Burke, Judge Lindsay ruled that Mau should answer. Mau then admitted facing a criminal charge more than 35 years ago. This was as far as the state was permitted to go in the questioning.

Outside of the courtroom Prosecutors Wright and Vernon Thompson revealed Mau's record in detail. On Oct. 29, 1901, Mau, then 23 years old, pleaded guilty in Minneapolis of forging a bank check. He received an indeterminate sentence in the St. Cloud reformatory.

Record of Release Lacking.

There was no record of his release. On Oct. 3, 1904, again in Minneapolis, Mau was sentenced to three years in the Stillwater penitentiary for forging an indorsement to a check for $98. He was discharged Jan. 21, 1907.

A month later, writing from Milwaukee, Wis., Mau thanked the late Warden Henry Wolfe of Stillwater for the receipt of his citizenship papers. Conviction of a felony deprives a man of citizenship. At that time the warden had the power to restore it.

Mau, who is a certified public accountant, moved to Berwyn several years ago. He was an auditor for the suburb and from 1934 to 1937 was Berwyn controler. He was elected to a four year term as treasurer in 1937.

60th Lottery Defendant Pleads Guilty in Boston

Boston, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP).—James J. Feak, 40 years old, of Toledo, O., pleaded guilty today to three federal grand jury indictments charging him with violations of federal laws in connection with a $20,000,000 nation-wide lottery, and was held for trial by Judge George C. Sweeney, under $1,000 bail. Feak was the 63d defendant arraigned in the case in which 72 defendants were indicted. Sixty defendants have pleaded guilty and three not guilty.

DECLINES TO CUT BOND OF FUGITIVE FROM CHAIN GANG

Judge Joseph Drucker of the Felony court yesterday declined to reduce the $10,000 bond of Thomas Mason, alias Frank Du Bose, pending the arrival of extradition papers from Alabama. Mason, arrrested last Wednesday, was discovered to be a fugitive from the Atmore prison at Alabama City. He escaped on Sept. 13, 1933, after serving six months of a four year larceny sentence. Since then he has been steadily employed by a Chicago trucking concern, has married, and has two children. His employer and his attorney, Charles A. Schreiber, are aiding him to fight extradition. In refusing to lower the bond so that Mason might continue his work, Judge Drucker said it was no use having prisons if prisoners were going to walk away from them. A hearing on the extradition will be held Dec. 21.

TWO DEMOCRATIC CAPTAINS NAMED AS VOTE THIEVES

Frauds in 11th and 14th Wards Charged.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Vote stealing charges were made against Democratic precinct captains in two courts yesterday. Election judges and clerks blamed their miscounts on the party workers who, they said, ordered them to cheat and falsify the returns.

"I have been accused of trying to break up the Democratic organization," said County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, to whom one set of officials was telling a story of a crooked election count. "It's not true. I'm trying to preserve American institutions and give Chicago honest elections."

Judge Jarecki oppoints all election judges and clerks and supervises all contests at the polls. He is now engaged in recounting the votes cast at the last three elections.

Collusion Is Charged.

The case before Judge Jarecki involved the officials of the 41st precinct of the 14th ward, of which Ald. James J. McDermott is Democratic committeeman and Attorney James W. Breen is Republican committeeman. Joseph Hylard, Democratic precinct captain, and Michael Nolan, Republican precinct captain, worked together, Judge Jarecki was told.

Special Prosecutor John F. Cashen Jr. informed the court that as a result of this harmony the Democratic candidates at the April election were given 456 votes and the Republican candidates 12 votes in this precinct. A recount showed that Mayor Kelly, City Clerk Ludwig D. Schreiber, and City Treasurer Thomas S. Gordon actually received only 371 votes in this precinct.

Dwight H. Green, the Republican candidate for mayor, and his running mates actually received 92 votes, according to the recount.

Poll Official Bares Fraud.

Mrs. Marge Curtin, 743 West 54th place, an official of the precinct board, told Judge Jarecki how this happened.

"When I had counted off about 150 straight Democratic ballots in a row, Nolan remarked that if he got as many votes as in the primary he'd be satisfied," Mrs. Curtin stated. "Hylard then told me that since a dozen votes was all Nolan wanted there was no use to do any more counting. He told the clerks what figures to enter on the tally sheets."

Nolan, the Republican precinct captain, had credentials as a Democratic watcher, signed by Patrick A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois and Cook county Democratic chairman.

Mrs. Curtin and the other officials of the precinct board are under indictment. Her associates are Mrs. Frances Hack, 724 West 54th place; Mrs. Edna Hass and Miss Margaret Maahs, both of 5325 Emerald avenue, and William Rau, whose address is the same as Mrs. Curtin's. All were before Judge Jarecki yesterday, and all told the same story.

11th Ward Pair on Trial.

In the Criminal court, Judge Joseph A. Graber was hearing other judges and clerks testify at the trial of Samuel Orlando, 2600 Wallace street, Democratic captain of the 52d precinct of the 11th ward, and Joseph Vinci, 2813 Lowe avenue, assistant Democratic captain. Ald. Hugh Connelly is Democratic committeeman of that ward; Representative William S. Finucane [9th] is the Republican leader.

Mrs. Gladys Spizzirri, 2723 Union avenue, Democratic judge of election in that precinct, testified that at Orlando's insistence she marked x's in the Democratic circle on about 20 ballots.

She and Mrs. Ann Turrisi, 637 West 26th street; Edward Schader, 2707 Union avenue, and Joseph Leonardis, 2631 Lowe avenue, also are under indictment and have pleaded guilty. The fifth member of the precinct board, Harry L. Beck, 2632 Lowe avenue, obtained a separate trial.

Attorney Harold Levy, representing the accused party henchmen who face a maximum of a five years' imprisonment, had the witnesses state they were advised by Judge Jarecki "to squeal on the higherups."

Wife Is Slain After Quarrel

Husband Held

Edward Zelinka, a machinist, was held by the police yesterday after his wife, Lillian, 37 years old, was shot and killed in the basement of their home at 4241 Vernon avenue, Brookfield.

The husband told Capt. Chester Crosby he and Mrs. Zelinka quarreled when he refused to let her use the family car for a Christmas shopping trip. The argument ended, he said, and he went to the basement to mount the head of a deer he recently shot.

"I was busy when Lillian came down where I was," he said. "I was using an acid preparation when I heard a shot. She had fired a .30-.30 caliber hunting rifle which was leaning against a table. I suppose she touched the trigger against a vise on the table, but I didn't see it."

The bullet struck Mrs. Zelinka in the heart and she died at once. Capt. Crosby kept the husband in custody after neighbors told him the couple had been in several fights in which the wife was beaten. Two daughters of the couple, Shirley, 9, and Lillian, 12, were outside playing when the tragedy occurred. Zelinka is employed by the American Can company.

Unconscious a Day After Hiker's Beating, He Says

Hans Herman, 30 years old, of Carpentersville in Kane county, told Desplaines street police yesterday that a hitch hiker hit him on the head Monday at noon and that he remained unconscious in his car for 24 hours. He picked the man up at Sacramento and Jackson boulevards and was slugged, he said, near 2927 Madison street, where he found himself when he revived. The hitch-hiker took $28 from Herman.

BABY SUFFOCATES IN CRIB.

Ann McFarland, 3½ months old, suffocated yesterday when she became entangled in bedding in her crib in her home at 7861 South Shore drive. A fire department rescue squad attempted for an hour to revive the infant.

A HOUSEWIFE'S WARNING TRAPS MAID AS A THIEF

Miss Lorraine Huey, 22 years old, colored, who in 1937 was sentenced to one year in the Bridewell on two charges of larceny, was identified yesterday by three housewives from whom she allegedly stole cash, jewelry, and clothing after working as a maid in their homes. Rogers Park police said they expected at least 10 more complaints to be made against her.

Miss Huey, who said she lived at 1160 Cambridge avenue, was seized by Policemen Joseph Korzyk and Martin Gibbons when she applied for work at the home of Mrs. Jerome Schwartz, 2904 Fitch avenue. Mrs. Schwartz had been warned by telephone against the girl by Mrs. Anne Soloman, 1328 Winona avenue, who had heard Mrs. Schwartz was seeking a maid. Miss Huey previously had been hired by Mrs. Soloman.

Complaints were signed by Mrs. Dorothy J. Gordon, 1932 Pratt boulevard, Mrs. Hazel Cohn, 6512 Bosworth avenue, and Mrs. Soloman.

TWO BANDITS ROB DEALER OF FURS VALUED AT $2,400

Two bandits held up Charles Galler of the firm of Gold and Galler, 191 North State street, last night and escaped with 159 fur pelts valued at $2,400. They also took $45 and $300 in checks.

Galler had stopped near Roosevelt road and Central Park avenue on business. As he was about to drive away, one robber wrenched open the door of his automobile, displayed a gun, and ordered Galler to drive him to Roosevelt road and Francisco avenue.

The bandit's confederate was waiting in a parked car there. The fur cargo was transferred from Galler's automobile to the other and the robbers drove away.

McLEAN COUNTY PIONEER DIES.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 12 [Special].—Lynn Hornish, 71 years old, last survivor of the Hornish family which had much to do with the early settlement of Washington, west of Bloomington, died at his home there last night.

COURT REVERSES GUN CONVICTION OF 'GIMP' SNYDER

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12 (AP).—The District Court of Appeals today reversed the conviction of Martin [The Gimp] Snyder for the attempted murder of Myrl Alderman, present husband of Snyder's former wife, Ruth Etting.

The ruling came only a few days after Snyder's attorney had won his conditional liberty on his own recognizance, pending outcome of the appeal. Snyder was released then because of ill health. Now he faces a new trial.

Snyder spent almost a year in jail after his conviction. Alderman, a pianist, and Miss Etting eloped after Alderman's recovery from a bullet wound allegedly inflicted by Snyder.

SIOUX CITY VETERAN DIES.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 12 [Special].—Paul Fox, 92 years old, a civil war veteran, died here. He was 16 when he enlisted in the 116th Indiana infantry, and was a member of the guard of honor that escorted the body of Abraham Lincoln from Washington to Springfield, Ill. His death leaves only one civil war veteran in Sioux City.

PLAN FAIRBANKS RITES THURSDAY AT LOS ANGELES

Heart Attack Ends Career of Actor at 55.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12 [Special]. —Funeral services for Douglas Fairbanks Sr. are planned for Thursday afternoon in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather in Forest Lawn Memorial park. Fairbanks died at 12:45 a. m. today of heart disease. He was 55 years old.

His widow, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley, was prostrated today and could not be consulted for final approval of funeral plans. She stayed in seclusion with Fairbanks' son, Douglas Jr., who reached his father's Santa Monica beach home a few minutes after he died.

Although retired for six years from motion picture acting which brought his greatest fame, Fairbanks led an energetic life. Last Saturday he and his son attended a football game in celebration of Doug Jr.'s 32d birthday.

Early yesterday, Fairbanks felt a slight heart twinge, and, after an examination, his physician ordered him to bed for a week. A nurse was called, but no one believed his condition was serious. Having built his picture fame upon his athletic ability, Fairbanks had continued daily exercises in his retirement and illnesses had been rare with him.

Starts at $2,000 a Week.

Fairbanks was such a stage favorite in 1914 when he entered pictures that he was able to command a salary of $2,000 a week. Among his most noted films were "The Mark of Zorro," "The Thief of Bagdad," "The Three Musketeers," "Robin Hood," and "The Black Pirate."

Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, and Mary Pickford, his second wife, were the founders of United Artists. He sold his interest in the company in 1937 and tried independent producing for a short time. At the time of his death he was planning to produce an adventure picture with Douglas Jr. in the leading rôle and perhaps himself in a minor part.

Fairbanks was divorced by his first wife, Beth Sully Fairbanks, in 1918, and she took their son, Douglas Jr., with her to live in Paris. Mary Pickford and Fairbanks were married in 1920, soon after she divorced Owen Moore.

Called the Perfect Romance.

The Fairbanks-Pickford marriage was regarded as Hollywood's perfect romance for more than a decade. Their home was the center of the film colony's social activity and they entertained lavishly for virtually every notable who visited Los Angeles.

Mary Pickford announced their separation in 1933, and in 1935 obtained a divorce which became final in 1936. She then became the wife of Charles Rogers, an orchestra leader, whom she now is visiting in Chicago.

A year after the Pickford-Fairbanks separation, Lord Ashley-Cooper of England obtained a divorce from the former Sylvia Hawkes, an actress, naming Fairbanks co-repondent. Fairbanks married Lady Ashley two months after Mary Pickford's decree became final.

Fairbanks was born in Denver, Colo., May 23, 1884. He left the Colorado School of Mines when 17 to try the stage in Shakespearean parts. His work in serious rôles was mediocre, but success came several years later when he was cast in parts which called for spectacular acrobatics.

WARNING ISSUED ON USE OF NEW SYPHILIS DRUG

Announcement of the discovery of a new drug, sobisminol mass, for use in the treatment of syphilis, is accompanied in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association with a warning on self-treatment with the drug. The discoverer of sobisminol is Dr. Paul J. Hanzlik of the Stanford university medical school. Two groups of physicians have reported encouraging results from its use.

"The new drug is not a substitute for the standard syphilis treatments," the journal said, "but must be taken in conjunction with the injection of one of the arsenical compounds. The fact that sobisminol mass is taken by mouth indicates that it may frequently be adapted for self-treatment. This is certainly not advisable except for intelligent, coöperative patients.

"Forgotten doses of treatment or negligent behavior on the part of the patient must inevitably lead to relapse, with consequent possibilities of infection of other persons. It is essential that the patient take the treatment regularly, as directed by the physician, or that the physician demand the injection by muscle method for treatment for uncoöperative patients."

REP. CARL MAPES OF MICHIGAN DIES IN NEW ORLEANS

Heart Seizure Fatal; Was on Oil Inquiry.

Congressman Mapes.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 12 [Special].—Congressman Carl E. Mapes, of Grand Rapids, Mich., died here today of heart disease. He would have been 65 years old in two weeks.

Congressman Mapes, a Republican serving his 14th term in the house of representatives, was on a tour with a house committee which is conducting hearings on the Cole oil regulation bill. The first session of the New Orleans hearing was conducted yesterday and Mapes took a leading part.

Congressman William P. Cole of Maryland, chairman of the committee, left New Orleans at 1 p. m. today to accompany Mapes' body to Grand Rapids. The oil hearings have been adjourned indefinitely.

House Delegation Named.

Speaker John H. Bankhead, at his home in Jasper, Ala., named the entire Michigan delegation to represent the house at the funeral in Grand Rapids Thursday. Both Michigan senators also will attend.

Mapes was serving his second term in the Michigan senate when he resigned in 1912 after being elected to the national house. He entered congress March 4, 1913, and was reëlected 13 times. A special election will be required in the fifth Michigan district to fill the vacancy caused by his death. His successor will serve until the end of 1940.

Born in Michigan.

Mapes was born in Kalamo township, Eaton county, Michigan, Dec. 26, 1874. He was graduated from Olivet college in 1896 and from the University of Michigan law school in 1899. His first public office was prosecuting attorney of Kent county.

As senior Republican in the national house, Mapes was the ranking minority member of the rules committee and the interstate and foreign commerce committee.

Mapes married Julia Pike of Grand Rapids in 1907. Mrs. Mapes, two sons, and a daughter survive.

ENGAGED COUPLE FORCED TO MAKE TOUR BY BANDITS

Two bandits held up an engaged couple parked in their automobile at 34th and Aberdeen streets last night, robbed them, and forced the couple to go on a holdup tour which lasted four hours.

The couple were William Davies, 23 years old, 1265 West 73d street, and Miss Jeannette Blum, 21, of the same address. Davies was taking his fiancée to work at a mail order house, where she was to appear at 10 p. m.

After entering the parked car and robbing the pair of $8.50, the bandits became kidnapers. One took the wheel and drove north and west to Joseph Jambor's tavern at 4301 Cortez street, where Jambor and several patrons surrendered $50. Then they went south to Andrew Balasa's saloon at 3400 South Hermitage avenue and got $40 more.

One of the bandits carried a sawed-off shotgun. He forced Davies to go with him. They finally let the couple out at Cicero avenue and 25th street and gave them 25 cents for car fare.

Stock Needs Iodine.

December 12, 1939.

FAILURE of live stock to maintain health and make proper growth often may be traced to a lack of sufficient iodine in feeds and drinking water, according to a booklet recently sent to members of the Horse and Mule Association of America from the association's headquarters.

Much of the soil in the northern half of the United States has been found deficient in iodine, the booklet says. Even in the southern states, where iodine is more plentiful in the soil, there is not always enough in feeds and drinking water to supply the needs of farm animals.

Deficiency in Illinois.

The states with greatest iodine deficiency in the middle west are Michigan and Wisconsin. Others where much of the soil lacks sufficient iodine for best results in raising live stock are Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Iowa, Minnesota and North Dakota. The booklet suggests that it may be wise to add iodine to rations for farm animals in all those states.

Altho iodine can be added to the rations in the form of potassium iodide, it is suggested that the practical thing for the average stockman to do is to feed iodized salt to his live stock if he thinks they need iodine. This salt can be bought, the booklet says, either loose or in block form and the cost is little more than for ordinary salt.

In addition to causing goiter in both young and mature animals, a deficiency of iodine in rations of breeding animals often leads to weaknesses and deformities in newborn colts, calves, pigs, and lambs.

Blames Poor Soil.

It also is said that poor soils may produce grasses, hays, and grains that are so lacking in lime and phosphate that they make poor feeds for horses and other live stock, regardless of the amount of iodine the animals get.

The booklet attributes most of the so-called diseases and unsound conditions among horses to a failure to feed them well. It says: "Where horses have access to luxuriant grasses and legumes grown on rich, well fertilized pastures and have ample supplies of choice, green hays, at least half alfalfa or red clover, and have enough sound, clean grain to keep the animals in thrifty condition, most of the ills to which horses seem subject do not appear.

"Good green pasture grasses on rich, well fertilized land apparently furnish needed nutrients for stallions, mares, and growing colts; in their absence or when they are deficient in quality, failures in breeding or in growth are apt to result. Poor lands produce grasses deficient in essential nutrients. Rich lands produce grasses that are adequate for growth and reproduction."

AGREE ON SLOW REPLACEMENT OF POLICE SADDLES

Some members of the police traffic detail will get new saddles in 1940, it was learned yesterday. A request of Police Commissioner James P. Allman for $4,000 for new saddles was denied by City Controler Robert B. Upham, but it was decided to replace the 20 year old saddles gradually by buying a few each year.

The action was taken after Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the council finance committee, told Capt. James Conlisk, secretary to Allman, that the saddles are stiff and uncomfortable. Arvey said he rode a police horse in the Memorial Day parade and never has forgotten it.

LIQUOR CONTROL JOB FOR ONE ABLE MAN, SAYS LUND

Would Abolish Board and Cut Costs.

One properly trained man, free from political obligations, could manage the Illinois state liquor commission more efficiently and fairly than three members now do, State Representative Arnold L. Lund said yesterday.

Continuing his single-handed foray against wasteful state spending, the young Republican legislator from Riverside noted that the commissioners give only part time to their duties.

Work Split, Lund Says.

"I am not blaming them," Lund said. "One man's work has been split among three men. The chairman gets $10,000 for the biennium and $19,200 has been appropriated for the salaries of the other two members.

"If the governor had called in persons who are acquainted with this type of work instead of awarding all important jobs as political plums there is little doubt as to what could be accomplished."

When the commission was created in 1933 the appropriation for two years was $185,638. Now the amount to be spent in two years, 1939-'41, is $451,780.

"In the last appropriation half a dozen new jobs were added, and many employés received raises in pay," Lund said. "For example, three senior department clerks were added at a cost of $14,000."

Lists Costs of Board.

Lund said that the following table of comparative expenditures for 1935-'37 and appropriations for 1939-'41 tells its own story:

Item—	1939-'41.	1935-'37.	Reduction recommended.
Salaries and wages	$310,680	$276,143	$125,000
Office expenses	38,000	38,118	18,000
Travel	55,000	43,456	25,000
Repairs	7,500	3,043	*........
Contingencies	1,800	....	1,800
Chairman, salary	10,000	10,000	2,000
Two members, commission	19,200	13,335	4,000
Secretary's salary	9,600	9,600	2,000
Totals	$451,780	$393,695	$177,800

Travel expense has increased by 25 per cent but this is only consistent with the trend in other state divisions, Lund said. He said he would like to study a list of cars used by the liquor commission but is unable to get the information.

Licenses and Inspects.

Duties of the commission include the issuance of licenses to manufacturers and retailers. The commission has the right to inspect taverns, but the responsibility of regulating taverns rests largely with the local liquor commissioners, who usually are municipal officials, Lund said.

"The entire setup is costly not only to the state but to cities that must pay extra salaries to their mayors because of tavern duties," Lund said. "I doubt whether the duty requires actual work to justify additional salaries."

AL SMITH GETS A HAND WITH HIS BOOMPS-A-DAISY

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Alfred E. Smith is the new star dancer of the "Boomps-a-daisy" in which the man backs up and bumps his partner's bustle—to waltz time.

Last night he danced it in a theater aisle with a pretty showgirl, Beverly Crane, and became the hero of the evening. It was at the opening of the new edition of the musical comedy, "Hellzapoppin." Cast and chorus went down the aisles to dance with members of the audience.

While drama critics applauded and his wife smiled approval, the 65 year old former governor did a few steps of the shag, a waltz turn, "boomped" with his partner, and finished with a neat pirouette.

The "Boomps-a-daisy," an English creation, was introduced in New York last August. In waltz time the words go: "Hands and knees and boomps-a-daisy. I like a bustle that bends."

The bustle-bumping is done while the man yodels "Boomps-a-daisy."

EVANSTON WIFE FOUND TO BE ILL OF RABBIT FEVER

The illness of Mrs. Sylvia C. Kidder, 1419 Darrow avenue, Evanston, was diagnosed as tularemia [rabbit fever] yesterday by Dr. Winston H. Tucker, Evanston commissioner of health.

Mrs. Kidder, wife of Percy C. Kidder, Evanston insurance broker and Republican leader, has been ill since Nov. 28. Three days before Kidder brought home a rabbit shot on a hunting trip. In preparing the rabbit, Mrs. Kidder punctured the tip of the first finger of her right hand on a leg bone. The finger became infected and fever set in.

Kidder is seeking to get in touch with persons who have recovered from tularemia in order that serum may be prepared to treat his wife's illness.

Cook County Idle Payments $1,954,000 in November

State unemployment compensation payments in Cook county for November amounted to $1,954,000, Martin P. Durkin, state labor director, reported yesterday. Payments for the entire state during the month were $2,872,050.

Going Up Again

The marriage license business is booming again in Cook county, it was announced yesterday by Sidney Summerfield, chief clerk of the license bureau. The number of licenses issued this year already exceeds the total for 1938.

Michael Flynn, county clerk, estimated that the December total will be 2,200. This will bring the number of licenses issued this year to 35,176, or 4,070 more than the 1938 total of 31,106, a gain of 11.6 per cent.

Flynn credited a considerable part of the increase to betterment in economic conditions. He said, however, that a belief that the United States might get into the war accounted for brisk business in licenses in August and September.

There were 3,921 licenses issued in August, compared with 3,381 in August last year, and 3,490 in September, compared with 3,056 in September last year.

June led all the other months this year with 4,657 licenses. February stood lowest with 1,588 and March was next lowest with 1,733.

DISMISS CUNEO PLEA IN SUIT AGAINST CHICAGO

The Illinois Supreme court in Springfield yesterday dismissed a writ of error thru which John F. Cuneo sought to review the Appellate court decision reversing and remanding for a new trial the judgment of $217,345 he obtained against the city in 1934. Cuneo won a jury verdict in Superior court on the claim that the Randolph street viaduct damaged his property at the northeast corner of Randolph street and Michigan avenue by cutting off display windows and forcing persons to step down to enter the building. He is president of the Cuneo Press.

DEPUTY MACKEY AMONG FIREMEN SOON TO RETIRE

Joseph A. Mackey, second deputy chief fire marshal and one of the heroes of the department, is one of 16 firemen scheduled for compulsory retirement upon reaching the age of 63 next year. Others on the retirement list made public yesterday are: Captains James P. Foster, David T. Lennon, William O'Grady, William G. Reetz, and James J. Walsh; Engineers Edward J. Kellerman and Walter G. Ross, Pilot Charles F. Stengle, and Firemen Thomas J. Brosnan, Harry P. Fitzgerald, Joseph B. Kowalski, Jeremiah Lynch, Edward J. Pfeiffer, Gustave C. Schultz, and Russell F. Stone.

STUDY PROPOSAL TO NAME BRIDGE FOR FT. DEARBORN

The Chicago Park district yesterady took under advisement a proposal by Maj. Harry A. Musham to name the Michigan avenue bridge the Fort Dearborn bridge. Maj. Musham is head of a committee appointed by Mayor Kelly to mark properly the site of old Fort Dearborn. He was told by Robert J. Dunham, park president, that the change would be made if popular sentiment was in favor of affixing the new name. The southern end of the bridge touches the juncture of Michigan avenue and Wacker drive, where the fort stood more than a century ago.

Compensation Is Ordered for Policeman's Widow

The Illinois Supreme court in Springfield yesterday ordered the Illinois industrial commission to grant a workmen's compensation award to the widow of Policeman Paul Krawiec of Chicago Heights. He was killed Feb. 5, 1938, by a bullet fired by a brother officer during the pursuit of a carload of hoodlums. The Supreme court reversed and remanded the commission's previous order denying compensation.

BOOKS for CHRISTMAS

Nonfiction Works Assure 1939 of a Place in Literary History; 50 of Best Reviewed Briefly

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

If, as I said last week, 1939 will be triple starred in the histories of American literature a hundred years from now for its fiction, it probably will receive a diadem for its nonfiction. It is neither wishful thinking nor the quantity of books that makes me certain that this year will be rated one of our greatest from a literary standpoint. Quantity there has been indeed, but the quality has been so high that selecting 50 outstanding novels [as I did last week] and 50 of the best books of nonfiction [as I do this week] from among the year's 8,000 is definitely not easy.

Biographies of Americans

On the other hand, the choice of 1939's most distinguished work of nonfiction is easier than it has ever been before, for this year we have the most important and most widely appealing biography of our day in Carl Sandburg's Abraham Lincoln: The War Years [Harcourt, 4 volumes, $20; 6 volumes, including The Prairie Years, $28]. It is a superb piece of historical research made living and human by a great poet. Carl Sandburg's "Lincoln" not only supersedes but telescopes the best of all previous Lincoln biographies. In literary history 1939 will be noted as "the year the Sandburg 'Lincoln' was finished."

Three other Presidents of the United States were the heroes of memorable biographies this year. Henry F. Pringle gave us The Life and Times of William Howard Taft [Farrar & Rinehart, 2 volumes, $7.50], "authorized but not official," a political biography of the first water, a trenchant portrait of a man and an era which may well become the definitive life.

Incredible Era, by Samuel Hopkins Adams [Houghton Mifflin, $3], is the story not only of the life, but of the rascally times of Warren G. Harding. It tells "all," or at least more than has been told before, about the great speakeasy age and, as every one is saying, "the fair weather President who got caught in a twister."

Old Tippecanoe, by Freeman Cleaves [Scribners, $3.75], is, oddly enough, the first full biography of "Old Tippecanoe," William Henry Harrison, who died in 1840, after having been President for only one month—a man no more distinguished than Harding, but less a dupe. Alexander Hamilton, by David Loth [Carrick & Evans, $3], a brilliant and penetrating study, is the first comprehensive portrait in 25 years of a man with a political influence in his own day and even today greater than many of our forgotten Presidents.

An American whose name is as familiar to every child as the facts of his life heretofore have been unfamiliar to grownups, is the hero of John Bakeless' Daniel Boone [Morrow, $3.50], a painstaking and thoro job of research, a well documented but colorful record which may well be the definitive life of a popular American myth-hero.

The best biography of an American literary man written this year is Henry Seidel Canby's Thoreau [Houghton Mifflin, $3.75]. In it Thoreau doesn't just sit for his portrait but lives as a "cantankerous, witty, shrewd, uncompromising individual," who was at the same time a supremely sane man and deep thinker.

American Autobiographies

Of the outstanding American autobiographies it is only natural that the greater number should be of writers, for it is infinitely easier for a man already trained in self-expression to reveal himself and his fellows than for any one else.

Five American autobiographies are remembered especially this year. The most popular has been William Lyon Phelps' Autobiography with Letters [Oxford University, $3.75]. It is not only a pleasant, unaffected record of a long life devoted to teaching and critical writing but of friendships and less permanent contacts with famous writers, and it contains many hitherto unpublished letters from them.

Another of America's best loved authors and teachers, Mary Ellen Chase, also includes amusing anecdotes and vignettes of other interesting people in the story of her life, A Goodly Fellowship [Macmillan, $2.50]. The place of "Mary Peters" will not be usurped in her readers' minds by her autobiography, but will be endeared to them by it.

In the same fashion will the immensely popular novels of Edna Ferber become more intimately a part of her readers' hearts by her autobiography, A Peculiar Treasure [Doubleday-Doran, $3], which tells of an amazing success against discouraging odds, and tells it with humor and sincerity.

The Mystery Book: an Omnibus.

The autobiographies of Louis Untermeyer and Hutchins Hapgood are as much records of movements and eras as they are the life stories of their authors. Mr. Hapgood, in the vanguard of all new movements in art, literature, the drama, labor, and politics, who has lived 70 years in a swiftly changing world, records not only his private and personal transition, but America's in A Victorian in the Modern World [Harcourt, $5]. Poet Untermeyer's From Another World [Harcourt, $3] is the only complete record of the last romantic era, the 1920s. In these memoirs the great names of that period expand into personalities.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, in Across the Busy Years [Scribners, $3.75] also writes a volume of memoirs rather than autobiography in the strict sense of self-revelation. Dr. Butler's is an exceptionally retentive mind and his reminiscences of great events and great personalities are memorable.

The most devastating and surprising political autobiography of the year was Raymond Moley's After Seven Years [Harpers, $3], a candid and dramatic account of the New Deal and a coolly surgical treatment of President Roosevelt.

Two books as American as green apple pie and as delicious and old fashioned are: Maud, edited by Richard Lee Strout [Macmillan, $3.50], the real journal of Maud Rittenhouse, a glamor girl of the 1880s in Cairo, Ill., "intelligent, entrancing, and an outrageous little flirt," and Country Lawyer, by Bellamy Partridge [Whittlesey, $2.75], a genial book about his father, a lawyer 50 years ago in a small town in New York. These two books about a half century ago in horse and buggy America have been among the most persistent best sellers.

Foreign Autobiographies

The leader of the year's best sellers in nonfiction is the autobiography of a Dutch newspaper man, Pierre Van Paassen, who was "wherever history was being made." In his Days of Our Years [Hillman-Curl, $3.50] is found every figure of international importance during the last two decades. Overlaying the record of facts is the author's deep compassion and love for mankind. Published on Jan. 30, it has been continuously on the best seller lists for the last 10 months.

From England we had two autobiographies as different as it is possible to be, one self-revelatory, one written as detachedly as if it were a novel. Havelock Ellis' My Life [Houghton Mifflin, $3.75] might have been titled "My Love" rather than "My Life," for there has never been, in either fiction or recorded fact, a more honest chronicle of married love. Here the world's best known writer on sex shows that romantic love is a real and creative force and that romance is not dead in a scientific world.

A. A. Milne's Autobiography [Dutton, $3] as frankly tells nothing of his emotional life and only as much as he wants to tell about anything, but it is light-hearted, humorous, and gayly different from most autobiographies and reads more like a novel than like a life story.

Translated from the French, in which he writes naturally, is Julian Green's Personal Record, 1928-'39 [Harpers, $3], a revelation less of a character than of a working artist. In it this brilliant young half American, half French novelist analyzes the impacts of his daily life on his work. Those impacts included knowing Paris' most interesting people and events.

Biographies of Foreigners

Among the outstanding biographies of foreigners this year the title of one book has an ominous implication, Imperial Twilight [Bobbs Merrill, $3.50]. It is not, however, about current affairs, but about the twilight of the Hapsburgs just preceding and during the first world war. In it Bertita Harding tells the story of Karl and Zita of Hungary. She treats her material not as a historian but as a novelist does. The result is truly "romantic history."

Hilaire Belloc writes of royalty also in Charles II.—The Last Rally [Harpers, $3.50], a new and modern interpretation of a great period, as well as of the gayest and most romantic of the Stuart kings.

Also from England comes Lord David Cecil's The Young Melbourne [Bobbs Merrill, $3], my nomination for the year's most brilliant, witty biography. It sparkles with a fire that illuminates a whole period—the Whig society of pre-Victorian England. In it young William Lamb, who later became Queen Victoria's beloved adviser, is the long suffering husband of the fantastic period's most bizarre character, Lady Caroline Lamb.

Also written by an American but about two Russians, one of whom became an international idol and the other the best known and best loved man in the Moscow of his day, is Catherine Drinker Bowen's Free Artist [Random, $3], the biography of the great musicians, the Rubinstein brothers, Anton and Nicholas, which re-creates their turbulent, colorful careers in a picturesque era.

The Russia of our own day is the background for Boris Souvarine's amazing story of the world's most absolute dictator, Stalin [Alliance, $3.75]. In it Stalin is shown as the archbetrayer of the ideals which put him into power.

The World Today

Excellent factual as well as critical records of the state of the world today have been given us in book form this year, all of them written either by experts in their subject, trained observers, or writers deeply moved by their material.

The title of Vincent Sheean's fine eyewitness record and interpretation of events in Spain, Germany, and Czecho-Slovakia before the present war is almost a slogan for this whole group of books, Not Peace but a Sword [Doubleday-Doran, $2.75]. In it a skilled reporter's impressions are run thru the sieve of a mind with a historical screen.

Another brilliant reporter, John Gunther, whose "Inside Europe" clarified the mystery of Europe's politics, this year gave us a political guide and handbook to another continent. Inside Asia [Harpers, $3.50] is a panorama of oriental leaders and countries, a "must" book for the intelligent understanding of current news from Asia.

The Balkans, the most talked about but least known part of Europe, this year have an excellent chronicler and interpreter of their turbulent past and uncertain future in Stoyan Pribichevich, a Jugo-Slav political exile, who gave us World Without End [Reynal, $3.50].

Germany and Naziism are the subject of two of the year's most dramatic books—both powerful indictments of a political ideology altho utterly different in their attacks. Nora Waln's Reaching for the Stars [Little Brown, $3] is a touching and subtly terrifying book about the simple, often unconsciously tragic German people under Nazi dominance. Hermann Rauschning's The Revolution of Nihilism [Alliance, $3], written by a former Nazi, reveals the destructive and voracious character of Hitler's revolution.

England's future in the war was written by her No. 1 military expert, Liddell Hart. According to Vincent Sheean, he is actually directing England's war policy now. His book, The Defence of Britain [Random, $3.50], assumes major importance for that reason.

The momentous year of 1936 which marked the end of the postworld war era and the beginning of the turbulent, uneasy present is the subject of Philip Guedalla's arresting The Hundredth Year [Doubleday-Doran, $3].

About a civilization with problems oddly like our own is Will Durant's mammoth survey, record, and interpretation of The Life of Greece [Simon & Schuster, $3.95], which he has managed to make as fascinating as fiction. Iceland, by Vilhjalmur Stefansson [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50], is a fine history and interpretation of a little known country from 325 B. C. to 1939.

American History

In the field of American history the year's most popular book is America in Midpassage [Macmillan, bound in either one or two volumes, $3.50]. In it Charles and Mary Beard bring their "The Rise of American Civilization" [1927] up to date in a fine history of the last 15 years.

The Heritage of America [Little Brown, $4] is a unique collection of eyewitness accounts of great events in American history, 252 of them cleverly grouped and annotated by Henry Steele Commager and Allan Nevins to form a living panorama.

The Awakening of America, by V. F. Calverton [John Day, $3.75], is an important interpretive study of the origin and growth of democracy in this country.

In Statesmen of the Lost Cause: Jefferson Davis and His Cabinet [Little Brown, $3.75], Burton J. Hendrick draws vivid portraits of men who were responsible thru their diplomatic inadequacy and stupidity for the south's losing the civil war.

Carl Carmer's The Hudson [Farrar

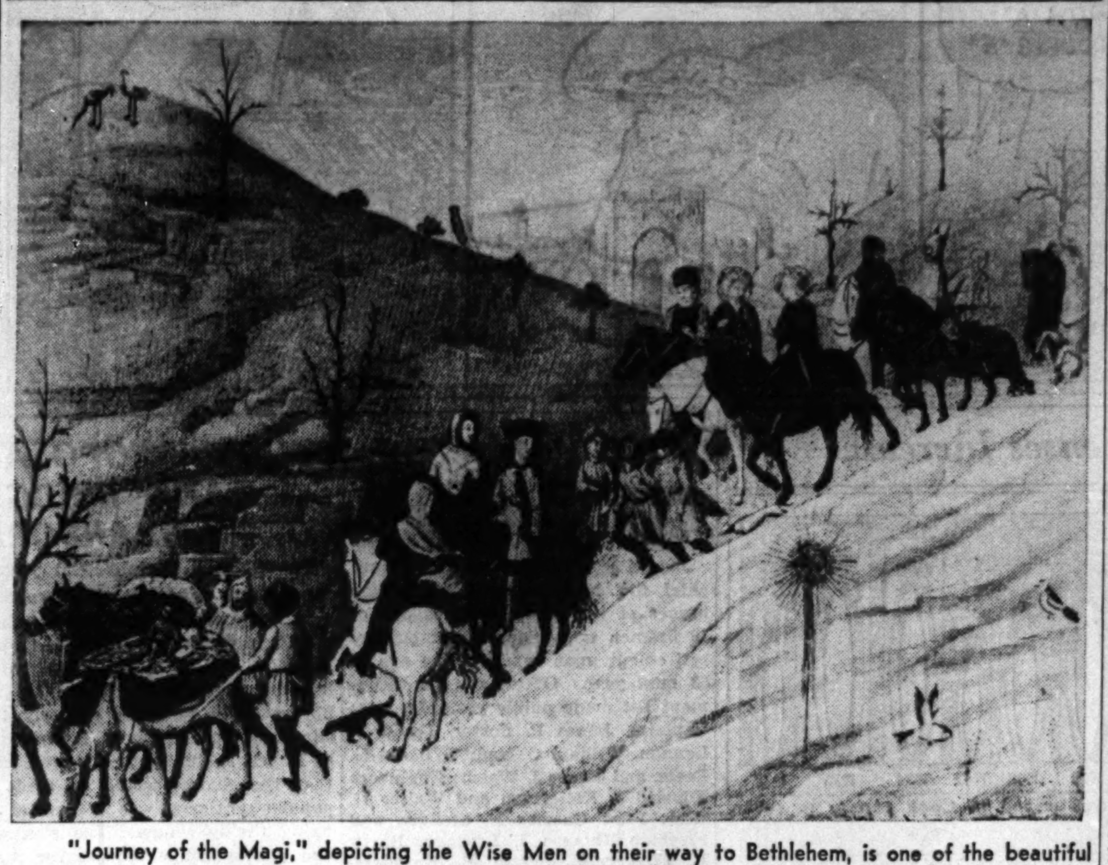
An Age Old Story in an Art Treasure



"Journey of the Magi," depicting the Wise Men on their way to Bethlehem, is one of the beautiful reproductions in "A Treasury of Art Masterpieces," edited by Thomas Craven, the year's outstanding book of art. It was painted by Stefano di Giovanni, known as Sassetta.

Restless Europe Keeps Pens of Statesmen Busy

BY FRANKLIN STURDY.

Dictators Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin have made history so rapidly this year that it has been difficult for the other statesmen of Europe to write books fast enough to keep up with events. All the writing, of course, has been on the side of the victims of Hitler and Stalin, because the associates of the dictators do not write books, if they are prudent.

The English and the French have been most prolific. Interesting among the French offerings is the book by that country's premier, Edouard Daladier, called In Defense of France [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50]. The volume contains certain of Daladier's speeches, frankly acknowledged in an introduction to be designed for American sympathies.

Of the more numerous books by Englishmen, Winston Churchill's Step by Step [Putnam, $4] commands attention from any one interested in getting the viewpoint of the group in Great Britain which has for years advocated a determined "stop Hitler" policy in opposition to Prime Minister Chamberlain's appeasement program. Churchill reprints a series of articles he contributed to an English review over a long period, and pretty well justifies his claim that events proved Churchill was a good guesser.

Much the same can be said of Alfred Duff Cooper's more recent book, The Second World War—First Phase [Scribners, $2.50]. Duff Cooper was first lord of the admiralty in Chamberlain's cabinet until the famous deal at Munich. He resigned, and in his book tells why. He includes speeches in parliament, as well as articles published in the Evening Telegraph.

Eduard Benes, president of Czecho-Slovakia when Hitler wrecked that state, is an educator as well as a statesman. In his book, Democracy Today and Tomorrow [Macmillan, $3], he not only tells about the fall of his country, but discusses democracy's future. As he tells it, that future is not bright.

Europe's political writhings inspired a lot of writing about the history of man's efforts to find a way of government under which peoples and state could live happily.

Dictatorship, by Alfred Cobban [Scribners, $3.75], an English educator, is thoughtful and informative, analytical and far-sighted.

Historical in type is Albert Carr's book, Juggernaut [Viking, $3], which relates the world's greatest events in terms of the lives of the kings, emperors, statesmen, and dictators.

Many other of the year's books by both Europeans and Americans have been part of a stimulating diet for this reader, who is sure of just one thing right now: the most comfortable way to fight those wars is in books, over here.

Important New Books

Tale of London in 1914.

"The Day Before," by H. M. Tomlinson. [Putnam, $2.50.]

H. M. Tomlinson.

Thru the tense days of summer, 1914, moves this absorbing story of London on the brink of war. The sea and the great docks, which Mr. Tomlinson knows so well, are balanced against the excitement of newspaper row on Fleet street. A young fellow named Clem Venner quits his prosaic shipping room job in a burst of glory and is catapulted into the midst of a mystery in which a missing girl, a corpse, a great dock strike, and the rumbles of war all are combined with the consummate skill peculiar to Mr. Tomlinson's custom. Many strange ingredients go to make a smooth and fascinating story. C. L.

Panorama of War in China.

"Humane Endeavor," by Haldore Hanson. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Thursday.

Just at the time when Russia's excursion into western imperialism is indirectly spotlighting the Chinese-Japanese stalemate, Haldore Hanson, a young war correspondent, gives us an exciting three dimensional panorama of that eastern conflict.

Hanson went to Japan and China in 1934 as a steerage passenger, found friends among the natives, ate their food, learned their language, eventually taught their children. When war came he understood the strangely dissimilar philosophies that had so much to do with shaping its course. He can describe the capture of Nanking with vivid simplicity because he was on hand. He was first to get into the guerilla territory. Free lance newspaper work had given him a background of information about China and Japan that lends authenticity to his reports.

The author today is employed on the Chicago staff of the Associated Press, for which he covered the war until early this year. W. D.

Trio for Adventure Shelf.

"In Privateer's Bay," by Robb White. [Harper, $3.]

"Treasure Hunting," by Harold T. Wilkins. [Bruce Humphries, $3.]

"Men, Wind, and Sea, the Story of the Coast Guard," by Riley Brown. [Carlyle House, $2.25.]

There have been several accounts in recent years of young couples who tried a Robinson Crusoe existence on tropical isles. But Robb White's account of life on a tiny West Indian islet is better than the average. It's a surprisingly frank record of a long and lonely struggle by the author and his young wife to establish themselves comfortably in their hand built concrete home, and win back marital happiness they almost lost while living on another island surrounded by uncongenial neighbors.

There never seems to be an off season for books on treasure seeking. Wilkins' new anthology of adventure in search of hidden wealth should find a large list of readers. In "Treasure Hunting" the author covers his subject with unusual thoroness.

The author of "Men, Wind, and Sea" is a radioman, first class, in the Coast Guard, so he writes with an authority sometimes lacking in accounts of this exciting life. His book is compenhensive and tells many exciting stories of heroism. A. C.

THE NATURAL HISTORY OF A WOMAN

"There is scarcely a feminine novelist now writing who could present the feminine viewpoint more convincingly. Half a century hence scholars writing 'definitive criticism' will probably note that the third and major phase of Morley's work began with 'Kitty Foyle', the natural history of a woman." —Sterling North, Chicago Daily News

"Kitty Foyle is an authentic part of young America, smart, shrewd, hard, wise-cracking on the surface and sweet, tender, generous and uncertain beneath. Christopher Morley has created a character that will take its place among lasting American portraits." —Rose Feld, N. Y. Herald-Tribune

From a Memorable Novel

Notable Works by Chicagoans in 1939 Output

Chicago may well be proud of itself this year. From it have come some of the most memorable books of the year. First of all there is Carl Sandburg's monumental Abraham Lincoln: the War Years [Harcourt, 4 volumes, $20], which was actually written, most of it, in Harbert, Mich., but which was conceived during Mr. Sandburg's many years as a Chicagoan.

Another Chicagoan who is not living here at the moment, but whose roots are here, is Donald Peattie. His The Flowering Earth [Putnam, $2.50] is a beautiful book about nature. Likewise no longer a Chicago resident but a true Chicagoan is Martha Dodd, who saw Germany startlingly and intimately Through Embassy Eyes [Harcourt, $3] when her father was United States ambassador. Ben Hecht, longer estranged but still considered a Chicagoan, gave us the brilliant A Book of Miracles [Viking, $2.75].

Fiction

Seven Against the Years [Macmillan, $2.50], one of the interesting novels of the fall, is the work of another Chicagoan, Sterling North. In it Mr. North reviews the critical ten years after graduation from college in the lives of seven young men who were hurtled into the world in 1929 and faced the most chaotic economic decade in American history. The seven were members of the class of 1929 at the University of Chicago and compose a slice thru American society.

Heath Bowman, known heretofore for his travel writings, produced his first novel this year, All Your Born Days [Bobbs Merrill, $2.50], which is about the emotional conflicts in the lives of a young married couple. Dalesacres [Dutton, $2.50] was written by a resident of Batavia, Florence Ward, and tells a pleasing love story with a family stronghold, Dalesacres, as the background.

◆

A historical novel about the Jansenist movement in Illinois in the mid-19th century was the second published work of a Chicagoan, Stuart David Engstrand, and was called They Sought for Paradise [Harpers, $2.50].

Tommy Gallagher's Crusade [Vanguard, $1] is the first of James T. Farrell's books which does not have his native Chicago as locale. A short story, it is packed with an unvoiced cry against man's inhumanity to man.

William Targ and Lewis Herman penned a mystery, The Case of Mr. Cassidy [Phoenix, $2], which concerns the murder of a Chicago book collector. Harry Stephen Keeler, author of a number of mysteries, this year wrote one called The Man with the Magic Eardrums [Dutton, $2].

Nonfiction

Haldore Hanson, Associated Press reporter in Chicago at the present time, has just written a vibrant story of the Chinese war in Humane Endeavour [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50].

Another portrait of Whistler's mother, this time a pen sketch by a former Chicagoan, Elizabeth Mumford, was published this year and is titled Whistler's Mother [Little Brown, $2.50]. It shows the mother of the famous painter, as revealed in family letters, diaries, and records, to be a remarkable woman.

Preston Bradley offers his recipe for more zest and joy in life in Life and You [Harpers, $1.50].

Ralph Habas tells about the man-made madnesses of the modern world and what to do about them in Morals for Moderns [Liveright, $2.50].

Dr. John Kercher tells of his unusual experiences in Fifty Years a Doctor [Meador, $2].

◆

Muriel Elwood, in Pauline Frederick, portrays her very close friend on and off the stage. The book is published by A. Kroch, Chicago bookseller [$3].

Tappan Gregory, whose hobby is photography and who "shoots" wild creatures with his camera, tells about it in Eyes in the Night [Crowell, $3.50]. This unusual book is interesting from the point of view of nature lore as well as from that of photography.

Both the text and the beautiful color plates in two other books are the artistic work of Chicagoans. Traveling with the Birds, by Rudyerd Boulton, and Homes and Habits of Wild Animals, by Karl Patterson Schmidt [Donohue, $1 each], are illustrated by Walter Alois Weber.

David Daiches' The Novel and the Modern World [University of Chicago Press, $2.50] deals with the works of Galsworthy, Conrad, Mansfield, Joyce, Woolf, and Huxley as they influenced and were, in turn, influenced by modern civilization.

Arthur H. Nethercot, professor of English at Northwestern university, presents a study of the history, background, and purposes of Samuel Taylor Coleridge's "Christabel" in The Road to Tryermaine [University of Chicago Press, $3].

New theories of the universe are presented in humorous dialog style by Jacob Levy in Space Moves Thru Time [Zonne company, $1].

The text of one of the funniest picture books of the year, Pierpont [Scribner's, $1.50], is written by a Chicago advertising man, Maurice F. Hanson.

A guide book of New York, by Clara Laughlin, So You're Visiting New York [Houghton Mifflin, $1.35], is full of friendly advice to the tourist, besides containing a wealth of information about the city.

Duncan Hines, former Chicagoan, has a new companion volume to "Adventures in Good Eating" and "Lodging for a Night" in Adventures in Good Cooking [author, $1.50], which compiles famous recipes from the places he has visited.

Poetry

Immortality and Other Poems is the title of a book by Francesca Falk Miller [R. F. Seymour, $2]. The volume holds a compilation of poems selected from "Pink Lightning," "Lakes of Stars," "Prodigal," "Across the Little Space," and "1812."

Jeanne DeLamarter's little book of verse is printed by the same publisher and is called Seven Stars [$1.50]. Many of the sonnets and other poems appeared in the Line o' Type column of THE TRIBUNE and in six issues of the Linebook.

Juvenile

Many Chicago names are found in the field of children's books this year. Max Siegel, a Chicago bookseller, described a group of boys and their problems after they had formed a club in Boys' Club [Houghton Mifflin, $2]. Lena and Valeria Harris tell a delightful tale of youngsters and parents on a jaunt to the West Indies in Tony and Toinette in the Tropics [Whitman, $2].

More of Dorothy Aldis' charming poems for children are found in Before Things Happen [Putnam, $1.50], a slender volume that will delight parents as well as their small sons and daughters. Another attractive volume of poems for children is The Umbrella Bird and Other Verses, by Emilie Fendall Johnson [Falmouth Book House, $1].

◆

An unusual book is William Albee's Kanguk [Little Brown, $2.50], which tells of the life of an Eskimo boy and is illustrated by the drawings of an old man, who was once that boy.

Marie Hall Ets, wife of a Loyola university professor, has written and illustrated The Story of a Baby [Viking, $2.50], which follows the development of a baby thru its embryonic changes to birth.

Olive Beaupre Miller's lively, well illustrated book about characters found in popular American folk tales is called Heroes, Outlaws, and Funny Fellows [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50] and is for older boys and girls. So, too, is the series of selections from the writings of the great naturalist, edited by Bertha Stevens and entitled Thoreau, Reporter of the Universe [John Day, $2.50].

Girls in high school who already have an eye on their future business careers will enjoy E. Evalyn Grumbine's Patsy Breaks Into Advertising [Dodd Mead, $2]. Running Linda, by Marjorie H. Allee [W. A. Wilde, $1.50], is a sweet little story of a child of bygone days. Joystone Manor, by another Chicagoan, Anna Brownell Dunaway [W. A. Wilde, $1.50], is a modern tale of four sisters which will delight early teen-age girls, for it has a mystery slant.

A little book about the early life of Frances Willard is Pioneer Girl, by Clara Ingram Judson [Rand McNally, 50 cents], a true picture of American life 100 years ago.

Paula, by Marguerite Vance [Dodd Mead, $2], tells the story of little 10 year old Paula Madden who lived in a mill town on Lake Michigan at the turn of this century. It will appeal to children 8 to 11 years old. For much smaller children is With Bertram in Africa, by Paul T. Gilbert [Rand McNally, $1], a fanciful tale of the adventures of young Bertram and Ginny.

◆

Other juvenile books by Chicagoans, published this year, are Potluck with Lobsters, by Margaret Friskey [Oxford, $1.50]; Mrs. Goose of Animaltown, by Miriam C. Potter [Stokes, $1.50]; Fridl, by Heluiz Washburne [Winston $2]; Nancy Goes Places, by Marjorie Peters [Macmillan, $1.50]; Little Buffalo Boy, by the Hollings [Garden City, $1], and Homemade Dolls in Foreign Dress, by Nina R. Jordan [Harcourt Brace, $2].

A former Chicagoan, Alida Sims Malkus, has written an appealing story of a little Peruvian boy and his pet llama in The Silver Llama [Winston, $2], and has done the fascinating illustrations in color herself.

De Luxe Editions Delight the Eye as Well as the Mind

Three unusually beautiful volumes—new editions of "The Yearling," by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings; "Anna Karenina," by Tolstoy, and "R. V. R.," by Hendrik Willem van Loon—have appeared recently.

N. C. Wyeth has done 14 full color illustrations for "The Yearling" [Scribners, $3.50]. Before starting work on them he visited the author at her orange plantation in Florida and studied the land and the people.

"Anna Karenina" in two volumes [Random House, $5] is interestingly illustrated by Philip Reisman in the style of the period, in color and in black and white.

One hundred and fifty reproductions of Rembrandt's works illustrate the text of "R. V. R." [Heritage Press, $5]. Mr. Van Loon is quite right in calling this example of typography and printing "a noble volume."

Dawes Writes Journal of His Embassy Days

"Journal as Ambassador to Great Britain," by Charles G. Dawes. [Macmillan, $5.] Published a week ago yesterday.

What happened inside the American embassy in London during the years from 1929 to 1932 is documented in this journal, which was painstakingly kept by our fellow townsman, Charles G. Dawes, when he was ambassador to the Court of St. James's. One might add that all of the secrets of the period are as painstakingly kept—for Gen. Dawes' book is, as Philip Guedalla, the English historian, once said about another book, almost "disgracefully discreet." There is nothing here to curl an eyebrow, little to lift one. Either the journal has been extremely carefully edited to remove all inflammable material, or Gen. Dawes is the same sort of diarist that most of us are, setting down the facts and not bothering to put down either our own or others' reactions to them.

As historical source material Gen. Dawes' journal is, of course, of importance. But he records rather than interprets. He sets down the names of his prominent visitors, occasionally pays them a graceful compliment, but almost never records with any intimacy their conversation and never his own personal reactions, either to them as persons or to their ideas as ideas.

Views of a Bookseller

"A Great Bookstore in Action," by Adolph Kroch. [University of Chicago Press, $1.] Published a week ago yesterday.

Another of our fellow Chicagoans has just given us "the invaluable guidance of his experience." Adolph Kroch, one of the nation's most successful booksellers, read a paper last summer before the Library Institute at the University of Chicago which contained such solid advice, as well as such an honest enthusiasm for making books a more intimate part of the average American's life, that he was persuaded to publish the paper in book form.

In equally interesting parts Mr. Kroch briefly and wittily outlines the history of bookselling [which you may be interested to know started in Egypt with graveyard shops selling inscribed tablets to bury with the dead to comfort the departed], tells how his deep love for books brought him his life's success, describes the psychological requirements and suggests a special course of training for bookselling, and very practically sets forth how a great bookshop is run.

His final sentence suggests "the new definition of a bookseller—a practical idealist." The most perspicacious inscription an eye-weary reviewer ever had in a presentation copy is in mine of "A Great Bookstore in Action" which says: "For Fanny Butcher . . . who, I hope, will appreciate the fact that 32 pages is enough for almost any book."

Delightful Little Fable

"The Satyr's Children," by Edith Franklin Wyatt. [Argus, 50 cents.]

In only 22 pages another of our fellow Chicagoans has told a lovely little fable of the children of a satyr who were left fatherless and motherless, nurtured by a simple woodcutter's wife. They went to school with other children happily until their strangeness was discovered. The story tells of the resentment of the countryside toward them and of their final disappearance, one following after a lovely pipe played, the other on midsummer's eve into a wood. The old woodcutter's wife finally observes: "The old, old wood they all came out of and they all went back to. It is the past—it is death itself?" It is a comforting little fable, and written with rare subtle beauty.

Good Theater Companion

"Today in American Drama," by Frank Hurburt O'Hara. [University of Chicago Press, $2.50.]

Still another fellow Chicagoan gives us much pleasure with his pen—in a book that is as up-to-the-minute "as an orchestra seat for tonight's show," as our reviewer of drama said. Many of the more than 20 plays which he discusses are on the boards at this moment, and it's the next best thing to seeing them with your favorite theater companion to read what Mr. O'Hara says—that is, if your favorite theater companion is clever and amusing and intelligent and fun to talk things over with. If she's beautiful but dumb or his brains are all in his feet, I'd advise you to go with Mr. O'Hara instead. He tells you the story of the play, quotes many long stretches of the dialog [especially of "The Little Foxes" and "The Gentle People"], and discusses the structure of each play. F. B.

A General List of Volumes on Varied Topics

BY WILL O'NEIL.

Now is the time for all book reviewers to come to the aid of the public in selecting books as Christmas gifts.

The Hessian mercenaries who came to this country to prevent our escape from the toils of the British empire have long been assigned an unpleasant rôle in United States history. The coonskin jacketed soldiers of this country, we have long been taught, made fools of the Hessians. That the simple folk from Hesse had been made fools of long before they reached our shores is told in Guns of Burgoyne, by Bruce Lancaster [Stokes, $2.50]. This is the story of the Hessians, the poor peasants who were virtually sold into slavery that they might cross the ocean to lose their lives.

◆

Song of the Valley, by Sholem Asch [Putnam, $2], is a novel based on the efforts of a band of Jews to create for themselves a homeland in a valley of Palestine.

The Delusson Family, by Jacques Ducharme [Funk & Wagnalls, $2.50], is another story of settlement—this time by French-Canadians moving into the New England textile area. Less sensational than "Song of the Valley," it is a solidly built novel.

Western Union, by Zane Grey [Harpers, $2], may not be the best of those turned out by the late untiring author, but it is well worth mention.

Lhasa, the Holy City, by F. Spencer Chapman [Harpers, $5], and Heaven Lies Within Us, by Theos Bernard [Scribners, $2.75], both are accounts of life in the forbidden lands of Tibet, and more especially in the forbidden city of Lhasa.

Rats in the Larder, by Joachim Joesten [Putnam, $2.50], is becoming more and more of a necessity for those who are interested in what goes on in and near the "neutral" countries around the Baltic sea. Altho Mr. Joesten's main subject is Denmark, it is well to read his book with a good map of northern Germany and the Baltic.

◆

Waste Heritage, by Irene Baird [Random House, $2.50], and South of Joplin, by L. S. Davidson [Norton, $2.75], both try a "Grapes of Wrath" in the territories with which they are concerned. Both do a pretty good job, Miss Baird dealing with employment problems in the Canadian northwest, and Miss Davidson with working conditions around the tristate lead mining area.

Last, but far from least, is Vilhjalmur Stefansson, great explorer, equally great scholar, and fine writer, in his book, Iceland, the First American Republic [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50]. His thesis you may doubt, but his story of Iceland you may not.

...the event of a generation

The great book on Lincoln

"The fullest, richest, most understanding of all the Lincoln biographies. . . It has beed a monumental undertaking; it is grandly realized."
—ROBERT E. SHERWOOD, N. Y. TIMES BOOK REVIEW

"A work that is easily the most important of this and many another season. . . . History constantly shadowed by the towering figure of Lincoln . . . the man Carl Sandburg knows better than anyone else ever has."
—THE FORUM

"It can be said that no U. S. biography surpasses it in wealth of documentation and fidelity to fact, that none . . . can compare with it in strength, scope and beauty."
—TIME MAGAZINE

"It is the truest biography of the greatest American. It is written in the racy cadence of American speech by the most Lincolnian of our poets. It is excellently illustrated and wonderfully told."
—CHARLES POORE, NEW YORK TIMES

Carl Sandburg's
ABRAHAM LINCOLN
THE WAR YEARS

"Sandburg was born for this particular job, and it has waited for him. A great American democrat has come at last to his most sympathetic and, at the same time, his most searchingly detailed portrait at the hands of another great American democrat. And the portrait seems, at this writing, destined to be one of the tallest sycamores in the forest of American literature, one of the landmarks in the history of our writing."
—LLOYD LEWIS, NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE "BOOKS"

"Not only one of the greatest biographies of all time, but also one of the greatest histories."
—F. P. A., N. Y. POST

"There is nothing in historical literature that I know quite comparable with it . . . He has sought to depict him on a canvas broader than anything else in American biography."
—MAX LERNER, THE NEW REPUBLIC

"Lincoln's life was itself a masterpiece, but no biographer before Sandburg ever succeeded in making a masterpiece of it."
—GOVERNOR HENRY HORNER OF ILLINOIS

"There is a Lincoln spirit in this Lincoln biographer. In these four volumes you seem to become almost a part of Lincoln."
—LEWIS GANNETT, N. Y. HERALD TRIBUNE

"One of the most extraordinary literary labors of this generation. I feel that in the centuries to come, this study of the last five years of the greatest of all Americans will be deemed worthy of a place next to Petrarch's Canzoniere, Montaigne's Essais, the Beethoven Ninth, and the Brahms Fourth."
—HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON

"A triumphant success . . . From the midst of it rises the one unforgettable figure, so homely yet so full of grandeur, so sombre yet so radiant, so human yet so lonely."
—ALLAN NEVINS, BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB NEWS

"The greatest historical biography of our generation. . . . Lincoln, 76 years ago this month, made one of the great speeches of all time at Gettysburg. . . . One sentence a reviewer inevitably feels impelled to paraphrase as judgment of this monumental biography of Lincoln: The world will very little note nor long remember what we say here; but it can never forget what he did here.'"
—FANNY BUTCHER, CHICAGO TRIBUNE

"Not until Carl Sandburg undertook his great study did any biographer show even a hint of Lincolnian stature. . . . Even the reading of these four tremendous volumes adds inches to one's height. . . . When we reach the final moving lines we feel that we have lived and died with Lincoln."
—STERLING NORTH, CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Van Paassen's Fine Saga Gets a High Ranking

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Pierre Van Paassen's Days of Our Years [Hillman-Curl, $3.50] heads the list of the most interesting books of those we read this year. It is a tremendous, meaty saga of Van Paassen's life and also of world events as he saw them during his many expeditions back and forth across the globe as correspondent for various newspapers. Chapter after chapter exposes man's inhumanity to man, the brutality and futility of war, the diplomatic and political chicanery of dictators and others in authority, and the tragic helplessness of the youth of Europe and Africa.

Nora Waln pictures a section of Mr. Van Paassen's world, and is equally disillusioned, after four years' residence in Germany, in Reaching for the Stars [Little Brown, $3]. The author of "The House of Exile" has written a poignant description of the death of democracy among all classes under Hitlerism. She was acquainted with farmers, city dwellers, members of the old aristocracy, professors, musicians, and officers in the new régime, so her picture is a composite one, and powerful.

In the realm of biography Edith Ellsworth Kinsley has achieved a remarkably vivid portrait of the Brontës in Pattern for Genius [Dutton, $3], for she utilizes excerpts from their writings in which they reveal themselves — their thoughts, their complex emotions, their relations to one another. Their father, who dominated them all, was confident that the genius of the family would be the son, Branwell. He never dreamed that immortality would be given to the name of Brontë by his daughters And neither, indeed, did they.

The evolution of medicine is the subject of The Story of Surgery, by Harvey Graham [Doubleday-Doran, $3]. Its author is a British physician, writing under a pseudonym. To any one interested in medical science from the layman's point of view this book makes fascinating reading.

Hendrik Willem Van Loon wrote a lively introduction to Morals for Moderns, by Ralph Habas [Liveright, $2.50], a readable little volume which is concerned with some of the many man-made madnesses of this modern world and which tells what to do about them. Because of its directness, its understanding of human beings, and its logical reasoning, Mr. Habas' book is both instructive and entertaining.

How to Think Straight, by Robert H. Thouless [Simon & Schuster, $2], is a prophylactic against careless, loose-at-the-ends reasoning. It's a good, stiff mental workout and will remove that excess cranial lethargy and put the reader in intellectual fighting trim.

A real treasure is the pen picture of Vienna from its earliest beginnings to the time of the anchluss which Henry Dwight Sedgwick creates in Vienna [Bobbs Merrill, $3.75]. The author captures that elusive thing, the spirit of the famous old Austrian city, by telling of its rulers, its social life, its architecture, its culture, its atmosphere.

Richard A. Bermann, in Home from the Sea [Bobbs Merrill, $2.75], describes the last years of Robert Louis Stevenson on the Island of Samoa in the South seas. The book is a biography in fiction form and is about the man Stevenson rather than the author.

Caribbean Treasure, by Ivan T. Sanderson [Viking, $3], is a unique piece of writing. The sort of treasure the author sought in the Caribbean was not shipwrecked gold, but knowledge—knowledge of the birds of the air, the small creatures of the land, and the fish of the sea. In Haiti, Trinidad, and Dutch Guiana he journeyed with his laboratory and his sketch book. The results of his findings make as engrossing reading as any narrative we've come across this year, for Mr. Sanderson is master of a highly entertaining prose style, spiced with wit and humor. You'll learn about the vampire bats of Trinidad, the "prick-eared dogs" and little strawberry-roan wild horses of Haiti, about ocelots, ant eaters, squirrel monkeys, and the four-eyed fish of Surinam, and many other small creatures. The marvelous illustrations are by the author.

And last, we liked Hans Otto Storm's Made in U. S. A. [Longmans-Green, $2.50], a dark horse of a novel, not heralded by publicity, but one of those finds that any reader will cherish. This story of a dramatic situation — an unseaworthy around-the-world cruise ship aground on a mud bank in the middle of the South seas —is done in the minimum amount of space, yet with the maximum amount of power. Mr. Storm gets the last ounce of excitement from the "Grand Hotel"-"Bridge of San Luis Rey" method of singling out each human card in the deck, telling its life story, and then shuffling it with the rest to make a terrific climax. You can read this tale in an evening and you will, for, once started, you won't be able to put it down. It's a beauty!

Brief Reviews of Nonfiction's 50 Best Books

& Rinehart, $2.50] sifts much amusing American history into the story of one of America's great rivers. The Trampling Herd, by Paul I. Wellman [Carrick & Evans, $3], is a history of the west in terms of its most romantic enterprise. Iron Brew, by Stewart H. Holbrook [Macmillan, $2.50], is a tough sinewed biography of America's industrial colossus—steel.

Thought Tanglers

H. G. Wells gave us this year the gist of his political and social philosophy of the world's necessity to reshape its "mental superstructure" in his tautly written, passionately conceived Fate of Man [Alliance, $2.50].

America's best loved living philosopher, John Dewey, tells us that one is necessary to the other in Freedom and Culture [Putnam, $2], the publication of which celebrated his 80th birthday. Otto Neurath offered us a new and fascinating method of charting history in his epochal statistical picture book, Modern Man in the Making [Knopf, $2.95].

The big religious book of the year is The Bible of the World, edited by Robert O. Ballou [Viking, $5], which contains the essential writings of the eight great living religions of the world.

Personal Experiences

Some of the year's most interesting books have been the direct result of unusual personal experiences. But before we get to the factual ones I would like to mention the year's outstanding book of poetry—for all poetry may be thought of as experience relived. It is Edna St. Vincent Millay's Huntsman, What Quarry? [Harpers, $2].

Antoine de Saint Exupery's Wind, Sand, and Stars [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.75] freshly and in beautiful prose interprets a new element, the air, to stimulate the imagination. It chronicles epic tests of endurance and is a classic to place beside "Listen, the Wind," by Anne Morrow Lindbergh, who has, incidentally, written a new introduction for it.

The remote and unknown North Borneo is the scene of Agnes Newton Keith's Land Below the Wind [Little Brown, $3], the winner of this year's Atlantic Monthly $5,000 nonfiction prize. Delightfully, with charming wit and with intelligence, the American wife of an English official sets down her experiences.

The fascinations of the world of the small tropical mammals he knows so well are shared by Ivan T. Sanderson in his Caribbean Treasure [Viking, $3]. And 20 years of a love for nature flowers in Donald Culross Peattie's beautiful The Flowering Earth [Putnam, $2.50], a book of essays ostensibly about botany, but which really takes the whole field of nature as its intimate own.

Art

A Treasury of Art Masterpieces, edited by Thomas Craven [Simon & Schuster, $10], is a collection of reproductions of great paintings, with brief interpretive text, and is in the strict sense not a book of creative nonfiction but an annotated album, but with that distinction it should be included among the year's most important books which are not novels. Visually it is almost a complete course in art education.

This Collection Outstanding in Economic Field

BY REUBEN CAHN.

Many will agree that the outstanding book of the year in the field of business and finance that was of general interest was the History of an Advertising Agency, by Ralph M. Hower [Harvard University Press, $3]. The life history of the N. W. Ayer agency, extending from 1869 to the present, covers the period in which advertising developed from humble beginnings into the potent place it now occupies in our national life.

Written by a Harvard professor, the book is authentic and scholarly, as a good history ought to be. Done with the coöperation of the agency, which hid no details of its business, the book is a record of business practices over three-quarters of a century. After contemplating the prodigious number of concerns which have fallen by the wayside in this depression, one must be impressed with any business which has shown steady growth past five depressions.

The outstanding business occurrence of 1939, of course, was the outbreak of the war in Europe. This occurred too late in the year for its influence fully to be felt in book publishing. But there were a number of books in anticipation of war. Among these is a very useful book entitled Adjusting Your Business to War, by Leo M. Cherne [Tax Research Institute, $6.50]. It outlines the plans for mobilizing industry in the event of war [which will interest those who think America will become involved in the war], and tells how the government transacts its business [which will interest those who want to make something of it].

In When War Comes, edited by Larry Nixon, six New York newspaper men outline—often, some will say, too breezily—how war will affect life in America. In The Economic Bases of Peace [McGraw-Hill, $2.50], Prof. Robert Minor Patterson, one of our top-flight economists, reviews the economic hurdles which would have to be surmounted in the sequel of the war.

Houghton-Mifflin & Co. was right on the button, and before the end of November had issued The Handbook of the War, a book which every person needs who wants to keep informed about the conflict. It includes a quick review of the events leading up to the outbreak of hostilities and exceedingly well done chapters on "The Economic Front," "Merchant Shipping," "Paying for the War," and other subjects not exclusively the concern of the economist and business man.

Maybe it was because it wasn't an election year, but there were fewer books than in any recent year, pro or con, about the effect of the New Deal on our economic life. There was one outstanding work, however, which enables us to know the ancient antecedents of the Roosevelt administration. C. J. Bullock, a world authority on public finance, provided in Politics, Finance and Consequences [Harvard University Press, $2.50] a record and appraisal of the results of the ancient world's economic and financial experiments. Financing Government, by Harold Groves [Holt, $5], is a comprehensive treatment of the means followed by governments in raising the money they spend, sympathetic consideration being given to the Roosevelt and La Follette ideas of finance.

Many a business man is called upon to put his facts in graphic form and is at a loss how to do it. In such perplexity W. H. Brinton's new book, Graphic Presentation [Brinton Associates, $5], can now be consulted. Brinton's old work was one of the best in its field, and the new work, tho less comprehensive, is much better, particularly for the amateur. If you are chart minded or if you aren't, you will be entertained by Modern Man in the Making, by Otto Neurath [Knopf, $2.95]. Neurath is the inventor of those cute little figures—men, stars, crosses—which are widely used for illustrative purposes.

Sachar Continues Record of Jews in World Events

Dr. Abram Leon Sachar, who wrote a history of the Jews in 1930, has followed it with another record of their progress, "Sufferance Is the Badge" [Knopf, $3.50], which traces the record of world events from the treaty of Versailles to 1939 as those events influenced their lives. Emphasis is given to economic, social, and environmental factors, as well as to purely political pressures and the internal problems of the various Jewish communities.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

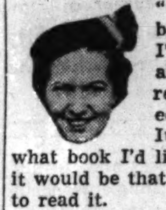
What book would you like most for Christmas?

Where Asked.

At the Michigan avenue bridge.

The Answers.

C. M. Jackson, 21 East Bellevue place, artist—I'd like a new copy of Marjorie Rawlings' "The Yearling," with the N. C. Wyeth illustrations. I've read the book, but I'd like to have this one, particularly because of the illustrations. Being an artist, I admire his work very much.



Grace Eilers, 4236 North Ashland avenue, secretary—I'd like to have "Christ in Concrete," by Pietro di Donato. I've heard so much about it. I heard it reviewed, and it sounded very interesting. It's hard to say really what book I'd like most, but I guess it would be that one. I know I want to read it.

Mario Carrara, 2321 West 23d street, Postal Telegraph messenger—What book? O, "Gone with the Wind." I never read it. I know it's a long book, but there's been so much talk about it. When the picture gets here I want to see it, but I want to read the book first.

Mrs. Sidney Adler, 839 Judson avenue, Evanston, housewife—I think I would like Carl Sandburg's new books on Abraham Lincoln — "The War Years." I'd like them all. I have not read "The Prairie Years" yet, and I would like to. I heard it is magnificent.

Dr. W. A. Young, 639 Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, manager of the Anti-Cruelty society—There are a lot of books I'd like. I'd be more interested in a good book on American history than anything else. I have an interest in American history that I didn't have years ago.

Professor's Wife Is Prize Winner in Mystery Contest

Clarissa Fairchild Cushman.

Clarissa Fairchild Cushman, wife of a Cornell university professor, has been awarded the $1,000 prize in the Mary Roberts Rinehart mystery novel contest for her manuscript, "I Wanted to Murder."

The contest, which was open to all writers who had never before published a mystery in book form, drew more than 250 entries. The judges were Mrs. Rinehart, novelist and mystery writer, and the editors of Farrar & Rinehart, publishers.

"The contest was highly exciting and the average of the stories much higher than I had expected," said Mrs. Rinehart. "'I Wanted to Murder' has everything—interesting and real people, humor, suspense, and a criminal unsuspected until the end. Usually I know the answer in any crime story long before the dénouement, but in this case I never guessed. It was a surprising achievement for a first mystery."

"I Wanted to Murder" will be published by Farrar & Rinehart in February, 1940.

Many Details of Ballets Studied in This Volume

Leonide Massine, famous ballet choreographer, has written an introduction for "The Book of Ballets: Classic and Modern" [Crown, $3], which discusses the stories, musical themes, details of costumes, and choreography of 81 of the most important ballets now being given in the world of the dance. This compendium of ballets will be of great interest to students of the arts as well as to the theater lover. Of the 250 illustrations, 31 are in full colors.

These Volumes Sure to Delight Drama Lovers

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

The drama had much to offer this year, not only for those who attended the theater frequently but for those who added to this experience or substituted for it by reading plays and volumes of stage anecdotes.

Two masters of high comedy were active in publication lists, S. N. Behrman with No Time for Comedy [Random House, $2], and Philip Barry with Here Come the Clowns [Coward-McCann, $2]. Behrman's piece was in his usual vein—brilliant dialog carrying forward a plot with little action. It dealt with a playwright, his wise, cynical wife, and another woman, "a Lorelei with an intellectual patter."

Barry departed from his drawing room characters and wrote a play with mystical overtones. It involved a poetic Irishman and his search for a personal deity. It is still comedy, altho the happy ending is not there.

Rocket to the Moon [Random House, $2] was not Clifford Odets' most popular play, but it is well knit with some strong scenes and swift insights into human behavior. In The Devil to Pay [Harcourt Brace, $1.50], Dorothy Sayers retold the Faust legend with poetry at times magnificent.

The Last Tragedian, by Otis Skinner [Dodd Mead, $3], traced the life of Edwin Booth as revealed by his letters, and Kean, by Giles Playfair [Dutton, $3.50], was the biography of the great English actor of the early years of the 19th century. The lives of both of these men were clouded by tragedy.

In Early Stages [Macmillan, $3], John Gielgud, one of the best Hamlets of our day, wrote an autobiography revealing an actor's capability and willingness to criticize himself. When Gielgud was not at his best on stage, he knew why and told it—wittily. He is the greatnephew of Ellen Terry and the book contains some charming anecdotes about her.

But if it's anecdotes you want, you couldn't do better than to read A Number of People [Harpers, $3.50], the autobiography of Edward Marsh, a talented, cosmopolitan Englishman. This volume has literally hundreds of vignettes of brilliant people—poets, philosophers, novelists, artists—whom Marsh has known and befriended. Also noteworthy is the inclusion of previously unpublished correspondence and poetic fragments of Rupert Brooke.

Edgar Wallace, by Margaret Lane [Doubleday-Doran, $3], is aptly subtitled "the biography of a phenomenon." Wallace's life was as startling and dramatic as that of any character in his long list of detective and adventure stories.

No literary season is complete without a quota of books on Napoleon. In one of the best, Road to Empire [Doubleday-Doran, $3.75], Fletcher Pratt wrote of Bonaparte in his younger, formative years when he was concerned more with victories in the field than at the council table. There are some good word etchings of Josephine and Barras.

A fairly diversified reading list should contain some detective stories. Dead and Done For, by Robert Reeves [Knopf, $2], and Show Business, by Bryant Ford [Dodd Mead, $2], were two of the best of the season. Both dealt with the Broadway scene and involved murders of figures in the theater.

The Case of the Rolling Bones, by Erle Stanley Gardner [Morrow, $2], brought Perry Mason into the picture again. And again Mason's genius at cross-examination in court led to the dénouement. Reno Rendezvous [Farrar & Rinehart, $2] is another of Leslie Ford's stories involving Col. Primrose and the ubiquitous Mrs. Latham.

Captures Interest

Ivan Sanderson, author of "Caribbean Treasure," one of the interesting nonfiction books of 1939 and among the fifty best.

Authors and Their Work

Lin Yutang, a recent distinguished visitor, was a delightfully philosophical soul, calm, untroubled even at the idea of facing literally hundreds of autograph seekers. At one luncheon where we met him he was in western dress and there was a question of his changing into Chinese costume. His utterly charming wife said that she had brought his Chinese suit, jumped up, and efficiently started off for it. "I'd better go with her," the hostess said, "she may get lost." Dr. Lin smiled. "The Chinese have a proverb, 'The way is thru the mouth'—she will ask," he said. Incidentally, Mrs. Lin, who proudly says she's over 40, looks about 20 and Dr. Lin [46] perhaps 25, which made us all not only envious but reminded us that none of us had ever seen an aged Chinese.

Andre Maurois, who at the beginning of the war served as assistant to Jean Giraudoux in the French wartime general commissariat for information, has been transferred to his old world war post as interpreter with the English armies in France. His first book, you remember, was "The Silence of Colonel Branble" [Appleton Century, $2.50]. It describes life in the service he has now rejoined and it is still popular.

Anthony Abbott [Fulton Oursler to you], whose new mystery, "The Creeps" [Farrar & Rinehart, $2], was published recently, probably is the only detective story writer in the world who has a real garden of herbs that murderers have used for years in fact and in fiction to pursue their foul designs. Foxglove, monkshood, and many other lovely but mischievous and deadly plants adorn it.

Meetings and Lectures

Kenneth Horan, Chicago author of "It Isn't My Problem" and other novels, will speak on "The Literary Imagination as Affected by Present Economic Conditions" before the Friends of Literature tomorrow evening at a 6 o'clock dinner program at the Piccadilly tearoom.

Oliver St. John Gogarty, author of "Tumbling in the Hay," will address the English-Speaking union at a luncheon at 12:15 p. m. Friday at the Stevens hotel. His subject will be "Dublin—Where Literature Is Made."

Frances Parkinson Keyes, author of "The Great Tradition," will speak to the St. Gertrude Women's club on current events at 8 p. m. Monday. Mrs. Keyes has been traveling in Europe all summer.

A Selected List Covers a Wide Reading Range

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

To this reader's desk came 73 volumes since the first of the year. From those noted in the following paragraphs the giver should be able to select an appropriate gift for the most varied taste.

Three books in the 1940 war category were memorable. Taking up where he left off in his brilliant "Insanity Fair," Douglas Reed continued his personal history-commentary on the folly of European statesmanship in Disgrace Abounding [Nelson, $3]. The hysteria of pre-Hitler Berlin, when impending political changes cast a gloom of uncertainty and foreboding, is mirrored in every stratum of Berlin's cosmopolitan society by Christopher Isherwood's Good-by to Berlin [Random House, $2.50]. Nevil Shute, his restraint creating a highly realistic effect, wrote of modern war striking an average young couple in England, creating in Ordeal [Morrow, $2.50] a prophetic novel which all too soon may be realized.

For the sheer beauty and power of memorable prose, Sirocco [Random House, $2.50], Ralph Bates' collection of stories, character studies, sketches, and anecdotes covering Spain from 1922 to the civil war, is highly recommended. Of equal importance are two Spanish war books, Men in Battle [Scribners, $2.50] and In Place of Splendor [Harcourt Brace, $3]. In the former Alvah Bessie related how men feel and act while fighting in a modern war. Constancia de la Mora, granddaughter of a Conservative prime minister who elected to fight for the Spanish republic, has given a counterpart in the story of a woman in love during the war.

For the lovers of biography, there are several worthy volumes. Stalin [Alliance, $3.75] is Boris Souvarine's definitive biography of the soviet dictator, a comprehensive study of Stalin's rise to power and analysis of his character. One of the finest biographies of the year was Fremont, Pathmarker of the West, by Allan Nevins [Appleton Century, $5]. It is a scholarly and fascinating account of John Charles Fremont, one of the most adventurous figures in frontier history. Clive of Plassey, by Mervyn Davies [Scribners, $3.75], is a fine study of Lord Clive, the Englishman who made Britain's Indian empire possible. It would be difficult to find a more picaresque rogue than Baron Theodore von Neuoff, who made himself the first and only king of Corsica and became the hero of Valerie Pirie's His Majesty of Corsica [Appleton Century, $3.50].

The significant comment of Felix Frankfurter, from the start of his Harvard law school career to his appointment to the United States Supreme court, has been collected by Archibald MacLeish and E. F. Prichard in Law and Politics [Harcourt Brace, $3], a mental picture of Justice Frankfurter. Also significant are the collected essays of Max Lerner, which he arranged in Ideas Are Weapons [Viking, $3.50]. Included are studies of such widely divergent thinkers as John Marshall, Thoreau, Lincoln, Brandeis, Holmes, William O. Douglas, Adam Smith, Harold J. Laski, Frankfurter, Walter Lippmann, Hitler, Lenin, and James A. Farley.

Here's Quick Way to Keep Informed on World Events

For those who want to keep well informed on world affairs in the minimum amount of time there is an excellent series of booklets published by Farrar & Rinehart, called "Pamphlets on World Affairs" [each 15 cents]. They are written by expert historians, economists, lawyers, and scientists, and they average about 30 pages of easy-to-read type. To date the series numbers 18 titles.

What They Are About

FICTION.

A Half Inch of Candle, by A. Hamilton Gibbs [Little Brown, $2.50], symbolizes the time left to two people in love soon to be separated by war. The characters are a Russian girl and an English-American painter in the French Riviera.

Across the Dark River, by Peter Mendelssohn [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50], tells a story, founded on the most incredible fact, of what happened to a group of Austrian refugees on the Danube. It is by a member of the musician's family, a political exile.

Past the End of the Pavement, by Charles G. Finney [Holt, $2], portrays two precocious small town boys with an unquenchable enthusiasm for wild animals and insect pets. Mr. Finney's first book, "The Circus of Dr. Lao," received the Booksellers' award as the most original book of 1938.

Station Wagon Set, by Faith Baldwin [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50], in light and entertaining vein describes contemporary life in Little Oxford "not too far from Park avenue," where former city dwellers have become pseudo farmers.

The Witch of Bayou Pierre, by Alda Mumford Gilvin and James Everett Mumford [Southwest Press, $2.50], pictures the Louisiana bayou country in the early 19th century.

NONFICTION.

Calabria, the First Italy, by Gertrude Slaughter [University of Wisconsin Press, $4], is a "biography" of southernmost Italy, the "boot," and tells its history from the time of the Homeric legends.

Summer Journeyings Among the English Cathedrals, by the Rev. Kirk B. O'Ferrall [Press of the Round Circle, $2], is a beautiful book of the English countryside and its cathedrals.

Community Schools in Action, by Elsie Ripley Clapp [Viking, $3.75], studies two experimental rural schools.

Stockbridge, 1739-1939, a Chronicle, by Sarah Cabot Sedgwick and Christina Sedgwick Marquand [Stockbridge Bicentennial Book Committee, $2.75], records the history of an old New England town.

How to Be an Aviator, by Dick Merrill and George Daws [McBride, $2], answers the eager questions of hundreds of boys of today. It explains the possibilities and rewards in aviation and the qualifications and training it requires.

1939 Historical Novels Rich in Fact and Fancy

BY MARCIA WINN.

The year 1939 has been rich in historical novels, many of which it has been the privilege of this reader to review. Most of them derive great interest, aside from their general excellence, in the fact that they deal with little known characters and eras.

Arthur Koestler's The Gladiators [Macmillan, $2.50] is a case in point. It deals in vivid, thrilling prose with the Slave wars of 73-71 B. C. and the futile struggle for liberty of 100,000 underlings. Similarly with The Torgets [Stokes, $2.50.], W. L. River's sweeping, panoramic chronicle of the tragic migration of the Torgut Mongols in the year 1771, which also was a futile, poignant effort.

Probably one of the most gallant heroes in history, one given only brief mention in standard histories, was that stalwart, intrepid Scot, the Marquis of Montrose, who single-handed set out to raise all Scotland for Charles I. The Bride, by Margaret Irwin [Harcourt, $2.50], is the fascinating story of Montrose and his love for Louise, the madcap niece of his king. Hilaire Belloc's biography, Charles II. [Harpers, $3.50], analyzing the last of the Stuarts in a new, sympathetic light, makes an excellent companion piece for this.

* * *

Much has been written about the various kings and turbulences of 18th century France, but it remained for Anne Green's The Silent Duchess [Harpers, $2.50] to amalgamate the entire century in one novel. Written as the memoirs of a duchess who survived three Louises and the guillotine, it gives a colorful, composite picture of a century.

When Alexandre Dumas wrote his memorable story of the three musketeers, he omitted all mention of Milady de Winter, a seductive, destructive power whose life was linked not only with Athos, but with Buckingham, Richelieu. Tiffany Thayer, well known for his spicy, lusty, amusing novels, discovered this oversight a few years ago and has produced Tiffany Thayer's Three Musketeers [Dial Press, $2.75], revamping Athos, Porthos, Aramis, and d'Artagnan in the light of Milady. The result is spicy, lusty, amusing.

On the American scene, Holmes Alexander's American Nabob [Harpers, $2.50] is a rich, absorbing novel of the civil war and West Virginia and of the part one man, a banker, played in both. A brilliant biography of an earlier and much more important figure, Alexander Hamilton, by David Loth [Carrick & Evans, $3], came off the press early this fall. It is an arresting, commanding portrait of a prodigy, the first comprehensive study of Hamilton in 25 years.

No year's reading would be complete without a touch of Naziism. Anna Reiner has given this in Five Destinies [Knopf, $2.50], the story, told with exquisite beauty and sensitivity, of the tragedy national socialism brought into the lives of five children.

* * *

Out of a potpourri of random reading, several books shine out like jewels. Frigyes Karinthy's Journey Round My Skull [Harpers, $2.50], a man's account of the growth and removal of a tumor on his brain, is unforgettable. Elizabeth Hollister Frost's The Wedding Ring [Coward-McCann, $2.50], a tiny little thing, is the saga, in singing, surging prose, of a French village. Immortal Ease, by Kathleen Coyle [Dutton, $2.50], is the distinguished, subtle story of a sensitive poetess.

In the field of short stories, a new Gorki collection, A Book of Short Stories [Henry Holt, $3], appeared this year. It includes many never before translated, among them "Lullaby" and "The Hermit," both masterpieces. Elaine S. Carrington's All Things Considered [Messner, $2] contains some exceptional bits.

For Kober fans, who thrive on dialect, Arthur Kober's collection of pungent, witty sketches, Pardon Me for Pointing [Simon & Schuster, $2], will be rare wine. He has almost skipped his old hunting ground, the Bronx, to touch on everything else, from barber, stenographer, and movie director to irritated husbands. He subtitles it, "A book about everybody but you."

Many Old Favorites Brought Together in a Colorful Song Book

One of the most picturesque of the songbooks of the year is the new one edited by Hendrik Willem Van Loon and Grace Castagnetta, "Songs America Sings" [Simon & Schuster, $2]. It is a large attractive volume, containing such old favorites [words and music] as "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Dixie," "Oh! Susanna," "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair," and many others. Opposite each song there is a full page illustration in color done in Mr. Van Loon's own inimitable style. He also has written a long foreword, giving the patriotic and cultural background of the melodies.

Author Shows Human Side of Europe on Eve of War

"The Human Side of Europe's March to War" is the subtitle of Hubert P. Earle's book, "Blackout" [Lippincott, $2], which gives his views and experiences in Europe just prior to the present conflict. Mr. Earle, an American, was attached to the United States embassy in Paris for a brief period and also traveled in Germany, Poland, and England.

Story of Rumania Told in Artistic Picture Book

One of the most artistic picture books of the season is "Old Romania," by Juliet Thompson [Scribners, $7.50]. The text recounts the history of the country, and beautiful photographs give the reader an excellent idea of the villages, homes, country estates, and the people of this ancient land that has frontiers against six nations of Europe.

CAIRO IS FAVORED OVER PADUCAH AS GATEWAY TO DIXIE

Thru Route Envisoned as Stimulant to Trade.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 12.—The United States bureau of public roads proposes that U. S. 45 be developed as a superhighway from Chicago to this border city. After driving the route in The Tribune road car it would seem that Washington has not been well advised. The location is not the best for a maximum return on the investment.

Motor transportation—freight and passenger, commercial and recreational—needs a superhighway from Chicago into the south. It would be a trade route, breaking market boundaries that existed before the civil war and have continued since.

Nashville, Tenn., for example, is visited by more traveling salesmen from Atlanta than from Chicago. In crossing latitudinal lines, such a route would make the south more available for winter visits from the north, while the north would become more available for vacationists from the south.

Favored to Effingham.

The U. S. 45 location for such a superhighway from Chicago to below Effingham seems to be warranted by its traffic potentialities in those sections, where the present travel volume does not exceed a maximum for safety and convenience on a two lane pavement under a standard fixed by the United States bureau of public roads.

South from near Effingham, arguments favor Ill. 37 to Cairo, Ill., rather than U. S. 45 to Paducah, as a location for four traffic lanes divided by a center curb or parkway and with grade separations at railroad crossings and at busy highway intersections. The Cairo route heads toward Memphis and New Orleans.

Ill. 37, returning to U. S. 45 by way of Vienna, Ill., slashes 10 miles from the distance between Paducah and Effingham, as compared with U. S. 45 for the entire distance.

Compromise Suggestion.

So if Paducah is favored by the federal road engineers over Cairo as a southern auto gateway to Illinois, Ill. 37 still fits into the superhighway program for most of its length. Surveys show that U. S. 45 between here and Effingham is too far east of important traffic sources.

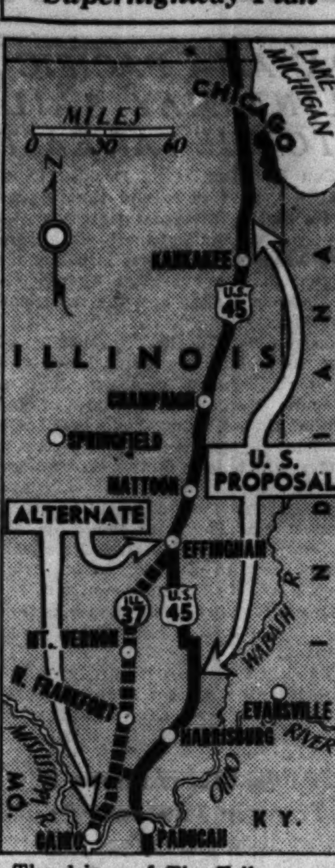
Illinois 37, south from Salem thru Mount Vernon and the populous coal counties of Franklin and Williamson, now carries from two to three times as much traffic as does U. S. 45, paralleling it about 25 miles to the east. Accidents are in approximately the same proportion. The single exception to this general contrast is between Harrisburg and Eldorado, where about 10 miles of superhighway would be useful.

For the bulk of the 384 miles of the U. S. 45 and Ill. 37 routes from Chicago here, comparatively minor improvements, designed to fit into later expansion, would lessen deaths and reduce delays. The same statement applies, and the distance is approximately the same, to Cairo's new bridges over the Ohio and Mississippi rivers as the main gateway to the south.

There are a few sections of pavement, notably in southern Cook county and immediately south of Champaign, that are broken and cracked beyond repair. There is considerable mileage with deep ditches and narrow shoulders that are dangerous. There are heavy concrete culvert walls too close to the edges of the slab. There is congestion in a number of business streets that should be by-passed; Mattoon is one of the worst. Blind spots behind hill crests are not marked with "no passing" zone, as is done in other states.

But the slab itself for almost all the distance still is intact—serviceable for many more years.

Superhighway Plan



The driver of The Tribune road car in a story in the adjoining column points out an improvement on the proposal of the United States bureau of public roads to make U. S. highway 45 a superhighway from Chicago to Paducah.

11 Day Old Transportation Strike Is Settled at Flint

Flint, Mich., Dec. 12 (AP).—An 11 day old transportation strike in this city will end tomorrow morning when the regular bus runs will start. Officials of the Flint Trolley Coach company and the C. I. O. Transport Workers' union tonight signed a contract by which drivers and maintenance men obtain a 5 cent an hour increase in wages. The men had asked a 10 cent increase and a week's vacation with pay.

WHISTLING ROBBER GETS $10.

A whistling robber got $10 in a holdup last night at the women's specialty shop of Mrs. Jeanette Hunt, 41 years old, at 3925 Irving Park road.

BOY, 7, IS KILLED BY TRUCK AS HE CARRIES GIRL, 3

Struck Trying to Cross Division Street.

Joseph Calato, 7 years old, and his niece, Ellen De Maggio, 3, started to cross Division street at Frontier avenue late yesterday. Joseph remembered his mother's admonitions to take care of Ellen.

With an effort Joseph lifted the little girl, and, carrying her in his arms, walked out into the street. But the baby obscured Joseph's vision. He did not see the truck which struck them.

William Polodna, 34, of 5252 Berteau avenue, the truck driver, helped take the children to the Henrotin hospital. There Joseph died a few minutes later. Ellen is in a serious condition. With her parents, Ellen had come from their home in De Kalb to visit the Calatos, who live at 638 Division street.

McHenry County Physician Resigns Because of Illness

Dr. S. Thomas Brand tendered his resignation as McHenry county physician to the county board of supervisors yesterday because of ill health.

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR IS SET FREE IN FELONY COURT

Chester Syslo, 22 years old, a punch press operator, was freed of a charge of manslaughter yesterday when he was arraigned before Judge Joseph J. Drucker in Felony court.

The charge was placed against Syslo by Cragin police on Nov. 24 after his automobile killed a boy 11 years old in front of 5811 Diversey avenue. The victim, Guido Ghilarducci, 2850 North Menard avenue, was dragged 30 feet.

Police said Syslo's car bore a safety lane sticker, but that the windshield was so blurred thru deterioration that it was possible to see thru only one-third of it.

Syslo, who lives at 1452 North Keating avenue, was held blameless by a coroner's jury at the inquest over the boy. No mention of the condition of the windshield was made in court yesterday.

HEROIC LEGENDS CLUSTER AROUND A SINGING RIVER

Pascagoula Hums Story of Indian Romance.

BY BOLTON SMITH.

Yellowstone park has the world's most famous geyser, Old Faithful; the island of Trinidad has a lake of asphalt, Florida has the Everglades, but only Mississippi has a singing river.

Each year hundreds of tourists hear the mysterious music of the Pascagoula river in and around the little gulf coast city of Pascagoula. First the native Pascagoulian shows the visitor the Old Spanish fort—erected by the first white settlers and still occupied as a residence—points out "Bellevue," where Longfellow was entertained, or takes him past the home of Admiral Farragut, hero of the battle of Mobile bay.

Points Out War Relics.

If the tide is low he may point out the wreckage of a federal gunboat or the earthen parapets built by the confederates as a protection against Union gunboats.

After viewing these scenes, the Pascagoulian leads his guest to his favorite spot along the river bank to hear the Pascagoula sing. He may take him out on the toll bridge, or to the railroad bridge. Chances, though, are that the visitor will be led to some haunt a few miles up the river.

After two visits to Pascagoula this year I have as yet to hear the river sing. I am going back this winter and spend a week waiting for the song. Nearly all who have heard it agree that the music sounds like the buzzing of a giant bee. Sometimes the mysterious sound lasts as long as five minutes. There is no particular time to hear it, but the best time is around sundown on any day from May to November. I have talked with persons who heard it in December.

Leaves Science Puzzled.

Scientists have attempted—but all have failed—to explain the cause of the phenomenon. Everything from air currents whipping against the banks to a species of singing fish has been offered as the reason. All scientific explanations later have been proved of no value.

Where science has failed, legend has supplied the answer. One version, told all over Mississippi, is that the Pascagoula Indians, defeated by hostile tribes, chose death to slavery. The braves, old men, women, and children clasped hands and marched singing into the river.

Another Indian tale has it that when the Indians became Christians, the river spirit rose and called them into the water. All the members of the tribe drowned themselves, and their song is still heard. This legend says a priest can stop the singing, provided he reads mass on the bank of the river, blesses the stream with holy water, and then pitches a crucifix into the river. At the instant the cross hits the water the singing will be heard no more and the priest will die.

Rite Called Sacrilege.

But no Pascagoulian has ever heard of a priest performing this ritual. One priest told me that for any one to perform the prescribed ceremony would be sacrilegious.

The third explanation relates that pirates scuttled a vessel in the bay and that all lives aboard were lost. Today many mysterious holes can be seen along the river bank where citizens have been excavating in search of pirate treasure.

Perhaps the logical explanation of the mystery is the story handed down for generations in the family of Walter Lewis.

Lewis' ancestor, Perique Quave, headed an expedition of French and Canadian settlers that colonized the present city of Pascagoula. Quave, as this story goes, was the unwilling cause of the singing.

Two tribes, the Pascagoulas and the Mohocti, lived along the banks of the Pascagoula. The whites built their settlement between the two villages. The Indians learned French and soon adopted the custom of kissing. Baptiste Budreau and Suzanne Quave, daughter of the expedition's head, would spend their afternoons at Lovers' Oak.

Teaches River to Sing.

One day they heard a voice singing. They saw no one. Looking into the tree, they saw Princess Anola, beautiful daughter of Chief Altama of the Pascagoulas. When asked why she was singing, the princess replied that she was teaching the river to sing.

Bullo Quave fell in love with the daughter of the chief of the Mohocti. She was christened Helen Highwater. Shortly afterward Cosauh, son of the chief of the war loving Biloxis, became lost while hunting in the marshes. He was found by Bullo Quave and Baptiste Budreau and carried into the Pascagoula village.

The Biloxis and the Pascagoulas were bitter enemies. Chief Altama knew that the Biloxi chief would kill the Pascagoula Indian bringing him the news that his son was ill. Altama gave Bullo Quave the message to carry to the Biloxi camp, as so far no Frenchman had been harmed by the Biloxis.

In order not to cause the chief worry over his son's condition, Bullo told him that his son was madly in love with Princess Anola of the Pascagoulas. Bullo explained that Cosauh was madly in love with Anola and would return as soon as she became his bride.

Chief Orders Attack.

The Biloxi chief became enraged and ordered his tribe to attack the Pascagoula village. Bullo stole out of the Biloxi camp and went to Helen Highwater to work out a plan to foil the raid. Cosauh was not well enough to return to his father and halt the raid. At the same time a fever broke out among the Pascagoulas and only twenty-five families were left living.

Bullo and Baptiste moved Cosauh five miles upstream to the Mohocti settlement, where he was nursed by Helen Highwater. He recovered and fell in love with her.

Somehow or another Cosauh never knew the real reason for his father's attack on the Pascagoulas. While the Biloxis feasted and danced to celebrate their victory over their enemies, Cosauh, Bullo, Helen Highwater, Baptiste, Budreau, and Suzanne Quave rushed to warn the Pascagoulas. These five had formulated a plan to avert war.

The following morning Bullo and Baptiste guided the Biloxis to the village of the Pascagoulas. They entered with weapons ready for an attack. No volley of arrows greeted them. A few old men and women stared at them.

Singer Averts Raid.

The silence was ended by a beautiful song coming from the Lovers' Oak. It was Anola singing.

"Where are the men of Pascagoula?" Baptiste asked.

"They were warned of the coming of the Biloxi," she answered. "They were too sick and weak to fight, and they would not remain to be slaves. They marched into the river, singing. They were brave men who wished to die free men rather than live as slaves. Listen—you can hear their song."

Then those assembled heard the river sing. The Biloxi returned to the Mohocti village.

Champions from Chicago

By catching seven sailfish in one day Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thornton Bolender of 550 Surf street, Chicago, have established a season's record for anglers in Miami. In addition to hooking and landing seven "sails," Mr. and Mrs. Bolender caught four dolphin and a kingfish and had on their lines five other sailfish which they failed to land. It was the first time the Chicagoans ever had fished out of Miami and the first time they ever had gone after sailfish. Mrs. Bolender (at the right) caught the most and the largest fish.

EXCAVATORS IN ROME FIND JULIUS CAESAR'S VILLA FOR CLEOPATRA

ROME, Dec. 12 [Special].—Cleopatra's Roman villa, long buried, has been brought back to the surface.

Unearthed several weeks ago near the Basilica of St. Peter's, the building has been identified by archeologists as the house belonging to Julius Cæsar and occupied by his guest, the queen of Egypt, for two years some 1,900 years ago.

Walls and arched ceilings of the rooms are adorned with frescoes. The floors are paved with multi-colored geometrical mosaics, decorated in the Alexandrine style and representing pleasure boats propelled by oarsmen. The frescoes are believed to have been the work of artists who accompanied the queen to Rome.

The discovery was made during excavations for the Rome Universal exposition in 1942. Hand work replaces steam shovel operations whenever a ruin is brought to light. Thousands of pieces of statuary have been found.

CHILE'S MAGIC CRUSOE ISLAND LURES TOURISTS

Bay Once a Haven for Pirates.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile [By Mail].—There is an opening this year for an enterprising American steamship company or tourist agency to include the "Robinson Crusoe" island of Juan Fernandez in a round South America ticket for a winter sunshine cruise.

Hitherto the single annual trip to that island has been a virtual British monopoly, organized by a company which has a century's connection with shipping on the west coast of South America. The exigencies of war threaten a break, and Chileans are wondering whether an excursion will be squeezed in for the swarms of American tourists who will prefer their cruising vacations in the all-American safety belt.

Exiled Waters of Moby Dick Fame.

Juan Fernandez is less than 400 miles from Valparaiso, on the Chilean mainland. A three day trip there has been called the cheapest $50 of romance in pleasure cruising.

These are the exiled waters of "Moby Dick" fame. But there is sunshine the whole way. The stretch of water is an unchanging blue.

The accidental meeting of Daniel Defoe and Alexander Selkirk in Bristol, England, converted Juan Fernandez from a bizarre isle to a paramount place in romantic literature. It become Robinson Crusoe's Island.

Daniel Defoe was a true reporter. He saw all the possibilities of a big story as soon as he tumbled on the returned sailor who went into voluntary exile on the island two and a quarter centuries ago. Defoe, of course, shifted the scene to the tropics, but Selkirk's solitary sojourn on Juan Fernandez was his inspiration.

The modern traveler is deposited, within 30 hours, in Cumberland bay—to ride, like Lord Nelson, "in 40 fathom of water . . . the most commodious road of the island." For years this was the refuge of pirates and smugglers. The German cruiser Dresden, sunk by the British in the early days of the first war, rests in the bay. On a clear day it can be seen on the ocean bed.

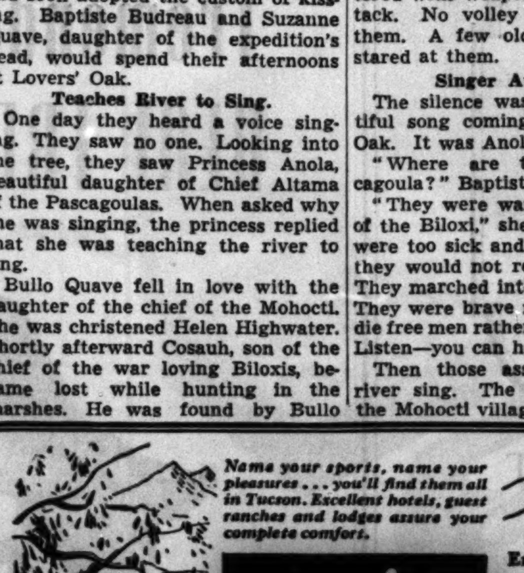
Anvil Shadows Island.

The first excursion view of the island is a midnight glimpse of the anvil mountain, perhaps with a fast-rising moon chasing away the clouds that disturb its enchanting outline.

The huge volcanic anvil casts its physical shadow over the whole island. It is the irresistible and all-embracing background of every picture. It stands 1,500 feet high and seldom has been climbed.

Ship's passengers picnic in a picturesque wood on one of the footslopes. It is a rich repast—the most famous in the annals of the hundred islanders who watch and wait. Afterward the natives feast on the crumbs from the visitors' table—with the huge crayfish that is their daily bread.

When the sun has set the excursionists go back in a whirl of gayety—carnival dinner, fancy dress dances, and deck races. But they never forget the bewitching hillsides and grottoes and the moon rising over the mountain.



Name your sports, name your pleasures . . . you'll find them all in Tucson. Excellent hotels, guest ranches and lodges assure your complete comfort.

Enjoy the journey over the comfortable Golden State Route on either of Rock Island's fine trains, daily from Chicago—the de luxe GOLDEN STATE LIMITED or the friendly CALIFORNIAN. Every travel ease.

PANAMA PACIFIC LINE MAY SAIL TO THE FAR EAST

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12 [Special].—A plan to extend the regular route of the intercoastal steamers of the Panama Pacific Line to Singapore and other far east ports is being discussed in San Francisco by officials of Panama Pacific and the American President Lines.

Joseph R. Sheehan, president of the American President Line, and Kenneth Dawson, vice president of Panama Pacific, an affiliate of the United States Lines, have been considering a proposed joint service under which four of the six Panama Pacific vessels would add a round trip of the Pacific to their intercoastal run. The ships would operate in conjunction with the President liners now in service, sailing from New York, thru the Panama canal, to California points, and thence to Manila, Hongkong, Singapore, and Penang.

The six liners are the City of Los Angeles, City of San Francisco, City of Newport News, City of Baltimore, City of Norfolk, and the Maui.

NEW PORT EVERY DAY ON CRUISES TO WEST INDIES

Travelers Find Winter Climate Ideal.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

Of all the cruises leaving American shores, those to the West Indies for years have had the greatest appeal. The main reason for this is that they carry their passengers to the widest variety of places in the shortest possible time.

A world cruise takes from three to five months. One around South America or to the Mediterranean consumes from six to eight weeks. Those to the Caribbean last from 9 to 18 days. The time spent in getting there and returning is held to the minimum.

Winter Climate Is Ideal.

The cruise ships in the West Indies service call at a new port almost daily, and each port is a part of, or under the control of, a different country. Thus the travelers encounter a weird mixture of old world and new world customs, combined with a winter climate that is generally regarded as ideal.

Because of the war this winter's Caribbean cruises will be restricted to ships representing the neutral countries, such as the United States, Sweden, Norway, the Netherlands, and Italy. Ports of call will be limited to neutral countries and possessions, or to those, such as Bermuda, the Bahamas, and Jamaica, that have been placed in the safety zone. The cruising will be done thru neutral waters.

One of the trans-Atlantic steamship lines operating out of a country that has managed to steer clear of the trouble abroad announced its West Indies program yesterday. Its schedule calls for seven sailings between Dec. 20 and March 22, with the voyages lasting all the way from 9 to 15 days.

Ports of Call Listed.

Ports of call are to be San Juan, Porto Rico; Puerto Cabello and La Guaira, Venezuela; Willemstad, Curacao; Port-au-Prince and Cap Haitien, Haiti; Cartagena, Colombia; Cristobal, Canal Zone; Havana, Cuba, and Miami, Fla.

The shore excursion program, managed by an American travel agency, will include visits to the ruins of the Sans Souci palace in Haiti and a tour of the Andes thru Venezuela.

A motorship, the newest passenger liner to take to the Caribbean, will be used for all seven voyages. It is known for its speed, its seaworthiness, and its facilities for sun bathing and entertainment. On these cruises all the passengers will be served in the promenade deck dining room. Each trip will have the atmosphere of a winter holiday in the tropics.

[For the name of the steamship company and travel agency running these cruises, or any further information concerning them, call The Tribune Travel bureau, Superior 0200, local 707, or write the bureau at 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago.]

New York Central to Run Extra Trains for Holidays

In expectation of a heavy volume of railroad travel over the holidays, the New York Central system will run between 150 and 175 extra trains into and out of Chicago at Christmas time. F. H. Baird, passenger traffic manager, yesterday predicted that reduced fares, the long Christmas week-end, and improved trends in business would result in a sizeable increase in travel volume.

A CLIMATE ALL ITS OWN.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 1.—To the Travel Editor: Our attention has been called to an interesting article by you in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 22, entitled: "Here's What You Will Pay to Bask in Winter's Sun."

We think the following facts and figures might be of interest to a large number of your readers.

Victoria, on Vancouver Island in the Pacific coast of Canada, has, for this part of the continent, a unique climate. Most people think of Canada in winter time as a land of snow and ice. Victoria has a climate all its own. The average winter day temperature ranges between 42 and 52 degrees. Some nights there are from 5 to 10 degrees of frost, but this generally disappears at sunrise. The rainfall is exceptionally light—27 inches thruout the year, of which 16 inches falls during the winter months. Of this 16 inches, 11 fall between sunset and sunrise.

Each year sees an increasing number of people coming to spend their winter vacations in Victoria. They are mainly from the Canadian middle west and eastern Canada, but in recent years there has been an increasing number coming from the middle western states and also from other parts of the Pacific coast.

Victoria does not offer a tropical climate, but one which is stated by the medical profession to be exceptionally beneficial for people of the Anglo-Saxon race. Here during winter you can play golf on seaside sunlit courses, fish on the sea, motor, play or watch Rugby and football, hike, and ride.

During the Christmas season the Empress hotel offers old English festivities—carol singing, bringing in the boar's head, and the Yule log.

Prices in Victoria, we feel, compare favorably with those in other parts of the continent.

It might be interesting to some of your readers to note further with regard to Victoria's weather that it is almost identical with that of Tunbridge Wells in the heart of Kent in England, which was first recognized as a health resort by the Romans when they invaded Great Britain and which has held its place as such in the medical profession since that date.

This year the American dollar brings one more in Canada than it would elsewhere, as it is at a premium of about 10 per cent. On the other hand, prices in Victoria have not increased.

GEORGE I. WARREN.

OLDEST HOUSE IN AMERICA WILL BE OPENED AGAIN

St. Augustine, Fla., Dec. 12 [Special].—A building hailed locally as the oldest house in the United States will be open to visitors again this winter and a 20 per cent gain in registrations is predicted.

The coquina structure is believed to date back as far as 1599, when Franciscan friars took refuge in it after their monastery had been destroyed by fire. A chain of titles has been established from 1763 to date; copies of the deeds are still preserved. The building has been under four flags.

Among the relics it houses is a 300 year old royal Spanish bed, bought from the Spanish government in 1893. In the gardens are the wishing well, much visited by newlyweds, and a "Scotch" postoffice, where tourists leave their personal cards and postcards in the hope that acquaintances will write them.

The building has been preserved by the St. Augustine Historical society and Institute of Science.

Southward Rush Is Noted at French Lick Springs

French Lick Springs, Ind., Dec. 12 [Special].—The winter rush southward already is being felt in this resort. Many Chicagoans are stopping here overnight on their way to Florida. The rush promises to become a stampede by the first of the year.

AUSTRALIAN PINS FAITH ON SPELL CAST BY BONES

Strange Accidents Occur to Doubting Thomases.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRISBANE, Queensland, Australia, Nov. 5 [By Mail].—For centuries Australian natives have attacked their enemies by "bone pointing."

The native who wishes to harm a foe gets a bone [any bone will do], and endows it with evil qualities by singing to it. He goes into solitude and, placing the bone on the ground, chants over it some incantation such as: "May your backbone split open and your ribs be torn away."

Next, with the aid of a friend, he seeks his victim. The victim sighted, the friend kneels so that his back forms a platform. The attacker, leaning over his companion, jabs the bone back and forth in the direction of the enemy. While doing this he holds the bone at arm's length. The "poison" or evil qualities acquired by the bone then travel straight to the victim's body.

Victims Spurn Aid.

The pointer believes implicitly that he is working an injury, and the victim holds it quite beyond argument that he will die. As a result, the practice holds considerable danger. For, just as a native black, who has been wounded even slightly by a weapon supposed to contain an evil spell will perish, so will the victim of a pointer. He will refuse aid, will sink into a state of extreme depression, and will waste away.

These things have been regarded by white men as part of a native mumbo jumbo, not to be taken too seriously. Emphasis always has been laid on the fact it is the belief of the native in the power to harm that causes the trouble. But newspapers here have been reporting the case of laborers who found the skeleton of a native in a quarry. The workmen began to talk about bone pointing, with curious results.

Curious Series of Events.

Truck driver No. 1 said there was something in the superstition; truck driver No. 2 said there wasn't. So the first man pointed the shin bone of the skeleton at the second.

An hour later a strange series of events began. Driver No. 2 broke the back axle of his truck. He was annoyed, and, when reminded of the shin bone, pointed it at a quarryman. A few minutes later the quarryman was knocked over by the arm of a mechanical shovel and taken away unconscious.

When he returned he pointed the bone at driver No. 1. This man's truck dived into a ditch and was smashed.

After that it was decided to bury the bone.

A Party Dress Makes Thrilling Christmas Gift

BY RHEA SEEGER.

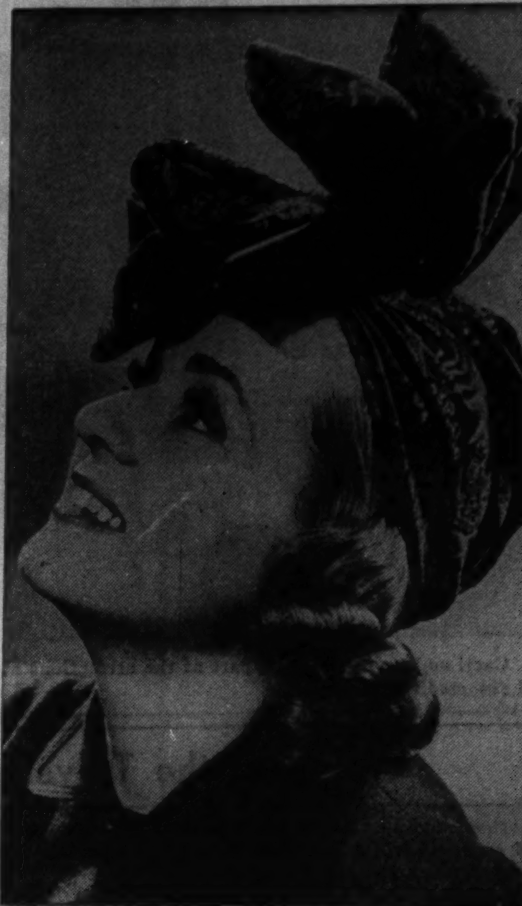
There are no problem personalities among the subdebs wishing for that exciting first long skirted party dress. It's the one gift welcomed with jubilant approval. It's the gift that makes a hit for the future clothes collectors.

Swishing taffetas in snow white go gay and giddy with holly-red velvet bows and sashes; ethereal white nets and frothy tulles flash with dozens of small bow-knots all over the gathered full skirts, the bow-knots made of twinkling silver sequins. The dresses are wonders in glamor because of the full skirted white taffeta slips.

Chiffons and soft silks are used for the plaited affairs that are cut with good looking low necked bodices that are matched with short puffed sleeves. These are the low necklines that easily get by the parental censorship as well as being approved by the subdebs themselves. Bows, shirred insets, shirred waistlines, beading, velvet ribbon, and the gay silver or gold kidskin belts are all details that are the same as in the older sister's gowns.

There are all sorts of short boleros with matching hoods, all kinds of capes, hip length jackets, and long fitted evening coats of dark wool and black velvet. One beauty in black has a hood lined with scarlet velvet.

A Turban from Ribbon



The unusual small bow-tied turban uses green gold brocaded velvet ribbon, with the bows directly in front in huge soft loops. The same velvet ribbon is shirred to follow the outline of the head. This is a perfect hat to go with fur coats or with fur trimmed cloth coats.

Yule Carols Are Music Any One Can Appreciate

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

To me, Christmas music as we find it in carols is the most beautiful music in the world. It speaks directly to the soul. Its simplicity is so utter that one needs no tutoring to appreciate it, tho its beauty will satisfy the musician too. Even the words of the Christmas carols are within the understanding of any one of any age—children as well as grownups.

To help you to an intimate acquaintance with carols, I am giving today some details that, judging from letters I receive, many of you would like to have.

Most of the best known carols are contained in collections put out by music publishing houses. These contain such favorites as:

"Away in a Manger."
"Christians, Awake, Salute the Happy Morn!"
"First Noel."
"God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen!"
"Good King Wenceslas."
"Hark, the Herald Angels Sing!"
"It Came Upon the Midnight Clear."
"Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming!"
"Joy to the World."
"Little Town of Bethlehem."
"O, Come, All Ye Faithful!"
"Shepherds, Shake Off Your Drowsy Sleep!"
"Silent Night."
"We Three Kings of Orient Are."
"While Shepherds Watch Their Flock."

For children who delight to sing and play their own accompaniments there is a book by Mary Bacon Mason called "Christmas Carols Made Easy to Play or Sing." Published by Oliver Ditson company. Any music store should have all of these.

Our own Christmas pageant, called "A Christmas Carol Comes to Life," with dialog and stage direction, is now ready, at a cost of 5c a copy, 7c by mail, at Tribune Public Service Offices.

CHILDREN LOVE the Christmas carol which Mrs. Bevans has prepared in booklet form for enacting as a play in the home, at school or in church. Complete directions for staging and costuming are given. Get a copy at Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, or in Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. Price, 5 cents; by postpaid mail, 7 cents.

Woman Spurned, Rejects a New Beau's Proposal

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: My best girl friend, who is 22, has always spent her days studying for a profession, until this summer, when she experienced the deepest emotion that could befall any one. She fell in love with a man 10 years her senior. They saw a lot of each other, and he treated her with the greatest respect. When he realized, however, that she had fallen too hard for him, he told her she should forget him, because he did not love her. She has tried to forget him, but with no success.

"Miss Blake, my friend has become so melancholy, she thinks about him constantly. There's a professional man who is in love with her, and wants to marry her. Altho she doesn't love the professional man, she respects and admires him. Do you think she would forget the first man if she married the second?

Maybe yes, and maybe no. Only time will tell. From what little you tell me about your friend, I gather she is the studious type, who is likely to take love more seriously than girls do who have had many beaux. Why don't you encourage her to see more of the professional man?

We have seen it work out that the woman spurned eventually wonders what she saw in the man she thought she loved, for the second love often proves to have it all over the first.

We've never seen a lovelier variety of Christmas candles than are being made this year. They will appeal to the most fastidious taste. To enumerate just a few, there are the artistic bayberry tapers that this season are made in the shape of little conical Christmas trees as well as in the standard candle style; there are the beautiful, handmade, twisted candles in deep red and in cream and white, long and slender; there are jolly little fat ones shaped like Christmas trees in white or bright red, and there are several varieties of the large, squatty or tall, tapering candles that burn for 50 hours. There are even candles shaped like stars. Pay your money and take your choice.

Pleads for Liberal Gifts to Corner Santa Clauses

Commander Huldah Smith of the Volunteers of America appealed yesterday to Chicagoans to drop liberal contributions in the chimneys of street corner Santa Clauses. "The need today is expressed not so much in the number of cases but in the extreme need and in the class of American citizens who are in such desperate circumstances," she said.

Grainger Has a Gay Time at Orchestra Hall

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Percy Grainger is the bushy headed, uninhibited Australian-American who has made quaintness and a sort of off-hand gayety his personal and musical trade marks. He goes hatless and coatless, and was once arrested for appearing on the street in winter in white duck pants. He is more likely to write "louden lots" than "molto crescendo" as a performing direction in his music.

He breezed into Orchestra hall yesterday to appear as pianist, conductor, and composer at the fourth of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's Tuesday concerts. He infected his co-workers and his listeners with his own high spirits, and before the afternoon was over the dignified orchestra was gayly tossing off Irish reels and the audience was rocking [inwardly, anyway] to their rhythm.

Mr. Grainger's first duty was to play the solo part of the John Alden Carpenter concertino under Frederick Stock's direction. This he did in his fluent, top-of-the-keys manner. He extracted all of the piece's good humor and kept sentiment resolutely at arm's length.

Next Mr. Grainger conducted his own "Mock Morris" and "Molly on the Shore"—dewy, folkish little pieces whose quaint tunes and infectious rhythms he projected with verve and sureness.

Mr. Grainger returned to his piano to take part in a presentation of his suite "In a Nutshell," which is scored for orchestra, piano, and Deagan percussion instruments. This last classification comprises steel marimba, wood marimba-xylophone, special Swiss bells, and nabimba [a marimbalike instrument with a clarinet tone].

Partly because of these unique instrumental forces, the suite was absorbingly interesting right from the strange, improvisatory "Arrival Platform Humlet" with which it begins to the rollicking "Gum Suckers March" which ends it. In the last movement Mr. Stock, Mr. Grainger, and everybody went to town.

Preceding the Grainger part of the afternoon was a performance of Handel's "Water Music" in the Hamilton Harty transcription. The wonderful melodies which compose the suite drifted through Orchestra hall almost as intoxicatingly as they must have drifted over the Thames on that summer evening, 222 years ago, when George the First sat enchanted in the royal barge and the tide drew king and musicians from Lambeth to Chelsea.

Mayor Kelly Backs Hoover's Plea for Finnish Relief Fund

Mayor Kelly yesterday urged Chicagoans to contribute generously to the Finnish Relief fund. The proclamation was issued in response to a telegram received from Herbert Hoover, in New York. Mr. Hoover asked Mayor Kelly to sponsor the fund here.

In a letter to Mr. Hoover, Mayor Kelly said, "I shall be happy to act as sponsor for the fund. It is my earnest hope that our city will give a good account of itself in this worthy cause."

Return to Youth.

It was a recent gloomy, rainy Saturday. The door of a downtown book collector's shop opened and a little man in a brown derby, with a beard like Gen. Grant's, entered. He was sopping wet.

"I have been told," he said, "that you can find books for people. Now mine is a peculiar request. I want a Robinson Crusoe where the savages have long, skinny legs."

"I have the book," the bookman interrupted. "The pictures are by Ernest Griset. The book just came in from England, but it is in poor condition. I buy things like this to rebind for the Christmas trade."

The old man fondled the book. "It is the very thing I want. How much?" He was told the book cost three shillings in London.

"That's too cheap," he said, stuffing the book in his pocket, "and it's worth much more than the five dollars I am giving you."

Monday morning he was back again.

"I don't blame you," he said, "for thinking me a damn fool for paying you five dollars for a book you would sell for less. You will remember it was raining Saturday. Well, my family were out of town, so I snuggled by the attic window, listened to the rain on the roof, read your Robinson Crusoe and, for a few hours, knocked fifty years off my life!"

Challenge.

There is a rumor, by the way, that Orson Welles will pay a forfeit for any novel called to his attention that he is unable to dramatize. Robinson Crusoe is a novel. . . .

Community Need.

A state leader in 4-H work told Anne Wilkerson about the questionnaire that had been sent to all 4-H girls and boys in her state to get members' reactions to rural problems. The final question asked was, "What do you think is your community's greatest need?"

One boy thoughtfully answered, "More girls."

Mr. Bloch and the Mail.

Ernest Bloch, famed Swiss composer, is now in Berkeley, Cal., after driving from New York to Portland, Ore., to visit his son. The composer of the operas Macbeth and Jezebel hopes to settle in America and be free to create. Chicagoan Paul Hugo Little wrote him last October in Riverdo, Switzerland, and the letter was forwarded to what Bloch calls "another lost village," Chasuble,

Travelers' Aid to Hold Globe Trotters' Ball

BY JUDITH CASS.

EVERY charitable board likes to set the date for its benefit early so that no other organization will choose the same day for a party. Seldom does a board think, however, that any other group will have decided upon the same sort of party, especially if it is a different sort, something out of the ordinary.

Imagine the surprise of the members of the new board of the Travelers' Aid society when they read recently that the Emerson House board was giving a costume dinner-dance at the Union station on Jan. 27.

The young women who count the Travelers' Aid of great interest and importance had been planning tentatively just such an affair, for there is, of course, a definite tie between the work done by the society and railway stations.

The Chicago society cares for between fifty and seventy-five thousand travelers annually, and the work of the new woman's board supplements the work of the professional staff. The board was formed just about six months ago and the party they are planning for Feb. 2 will be their first undertaking of the sort.

Board Members to Give Dinner Parties.

Yesterday at a meeting in the Polo room of the Ambassador East hotel Mrs. Richard D. Vanderwarker, chairman of the board, announced that plans had been completed for a "traveling" party at the Drake hotel that will be international in scope. It is to be a Globe Trotters' ball. All thirty members of the board will give cocktail or dinner parties before the dance, for which the charge will be $7 a couple.

Miss Jane Cummings and Mrs. Jeffrey R. Short Jr. are vice chairmen of the group. Miss Dorothy Drummond is in charge of the members who are taking volunteer training in the Travelers' Aid office and in the railroad and bus stations.

Early Birds Mail Christmas Cards.

Lowell M. Chapin, who lives in Niles, Mich., but who used to live here; Bertha Baur [Mrs. Jacob], Laura and Stewart Harvey, and the John Sheppard Stones and their family are the most forehanded people we know. Already their Christmas cards have been received.

Mrs. Baur's greetings, as usual, are in original verse, and the large, handsome card has a photograph and also a sketch of the winding staircase in her Astor street home. In the sketch the lower stairs are labeled Understanding, Courage, Truth, Faith, Hope, and 1940. What nicer things could one wish for one's friends during the coming year?

Mrs. Harvey undoubtedly drew the clever pictures that adorn their simple but attractive blue and white cards. Not only she and Mr. Harvey but their two boys are indicated. The Stones' cheery red cards carry the names of Dana Stone and the former Lucy Stone and her husband, Eliot Goss. In addition to being greeting cards they are invitations to an at home on Friday, Dec. 22, from 4 until 7 o'clock.

Give Supper Tonight for Koussevitskys.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter are giving a small supper party tonight at their home in Lake Shore drive for Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, and Mme. Koussevitsky.

The orchestra is playing tonight in the Auditorium theater in the fourth concert of the History and Enjoyment of Music series sponsored by the University College of Northwestern university.

The return of Jacques Gordon, who used to be concertmaster with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, always occasions much entertaining for he is popular as a man as well as a violinist. Mrs. Ewald Herbert Siebel of 3920 Lake Shore drive is giving a reception for him and Izler Solomon, conductor, next Monday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock. The Woman's Symphony Associates will be her guests.

Mr. Gordon is appearing with the Woman's Symphony Tuesday night in Orchestra hall. Monday night the Cordon is giving a "homecoming" dinner for Mr. Gordon. Edward Collins, pianist, will give a short musical program following dinner.

Gilbert Osgoods Will Hold Housewarming

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hudson Osgood are giving a small cocktail party from 5:30 until 7 o'clock on Friday afternoon as a housewarming for their near north side apartment. Mrs. Osgood was Miss Frances Bell before her marriage last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Helmuth H. von Erffa of Evanston announce the birth of a daughter last Saturday in the Evanston hospital. Mrs. von Erffa was Miss Eleanor Follansbee. The baby, who is to be named Constance, is the von Erffas' first child and the second grandchild of the Mitchell D. Follansbees. Their son, Rogers, and his wife, formerly Nancy Avery, are the parents of a little girl.

The Charles Edward Browns are disappointed that their daughter, Mrs. Betty Brown Whitman, has had to give up plans for coming out here at Christmas time with her two little boys. The children have been having colds, and their mother doesn't think it would be wise to take them traveling. Mrs. Whitman has transferred her membership in the Junior league from Chicago to New York.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

Have you seen the "perfume clips"? They're wonderful—right at the head of the fashion parade in this season of jewelry and lots of it—and they make a most exciting Christmas present.

Our pets are of sparkling glass shaped like a plump plume, filled with an elegant perfume. The topper is a shiny gold knob. You can buy them singly or in a pair, beautifully boxed.

They look perfectly stunning, either on evening clothes or your little daytime numbers. And we made the personal discovery that they look like a million dollars against black persian lamb, and fit right into the smart scheme of jewelry on furs.

Then, by way of novelty that's Christmassy, pretty to look at, and full of lure for the women who love perfumes, there is the snowball of white velvet, set with a sparkling jeweled crown. Inside it are three little crown bottles filled with perfume.

The three scents are lovely, each totally unlike the others. One has a lilac note; the other two are exquisite, subtle blends.

The same house that offers the snow balls has a purse kit that makes a charming "little" gift to tuck in a stocking. They're attractive and extremely useful pockets of taffeta for keeping your cosmetics in order in those large, deep pocketbooks. There is a miniature bottle of cologne in these, and compartments for vanity, lipstick, or what you will. They're in various smart colors.

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard speeds west by car after finding that the sample of ore sent to him by his sick friend, Dillon, is rich in gold. He picks up two strange companions, Mrs. Sebastian, who owns a Mexican roadhouse, and Louis Mestres, who claims to be a line jumper. In a lonely spot they come upon the pay car of the Golconda mine—all occupants murdered, and three hold-up men still on the scene. They chase Leonard's car with a machine gun. Mestres drops tacks in the road and stops their pursuit. He recognizes one bandit as the mine's paymaster. Paul Collins, a crooked local assayer, tests Dillon's ore and gives him a false report. He enlists the aid of another rascal, Kent, to cheat Dillon. Dillon breaks the sad news to Pat, an orphaned girl who owns an old hotel and who had staked him, then goes off to collect his tools. At Pat's hotel Leonard sees the girl slip out in the night with a gun. Distrusting Kent, Collins sends two hirelings to follow Dillon and locate his claim. Kent, suspicious, puts Papago, an old watchman, on the trail. Taylor, the Golconda's paymaster, arranges with Kent to have Leonard blamed for his crime. In Collins' office Pat finds the correct report on Dillon's ore, but Kent and Collins discover her there. Kent kidnaps the girl in his car—her old Chinese servant clings to the spare tire. Leonard goes to see Mrs. Sebastian and walks into a trap set to capture him. Mestres is hobnobbing with one of the bandits and Mrs. Sebastian pretends not to know him. Leonard escapes only to accept a lift from Kent and be turned over to the Mexican police, but Mestres rescues him. Mestres gets a trusted guide, Plutarcho, to sneak Leonard across the line. As they pass the building where Kent had placed Pat they are hailed by the Chinese servant. It is a marijuana den, run by an outlawed doctor and his wife. Fearing exposure they plan to kill the girl. Leonard and his companions break into the building just in time to save her. They return to Mrs. Sebastian's roadhouse. Leonard and Pat set out to find Dillon. Kent and Collins also set out separately on Dillon's trail.

INSTALMENT XXVII.

THE LITTLE MESA OF THE DEAD.

The road was growing rougher now, skirting the foot of the mountains. There were no foothills, the only graduation between the flatlands and the range was the mesá. The granite flanks rose on their left hand, an abrupt wall. Ahead of them there was an opening. They skirted a promontory where huge boulders were strewn in wild confusion on the bare, living rock, and entered a narrow canyon.

"The tanks," Pat told him, "are around the next turn. There are several pools that hold water from the winter rains. We leave our car now. This is the jumping-off place."

Leonard shut off the motor and he remained silent, looking about him. They had climbed up the bed of the gorge for a distance of less than two hundred yards, and it was as though they had entered the neck of a bottle, for the canyon widened here abruptly. They were on a small mesa, and the gulch forked a little way ahead of them, the turn of which Bat spoke led into the right hand branch. Darkness surrounded them, high overhead, the moonlight splashed steep granite cliffs and ridges. These things he noted, all of them, but there was another thing which he had not seen, for there was no earth to hold the tracks of cars. Nevertheless, he had a feeling of uneasiness.

"La Mesita de las Muertas," Pat said. "That is the name of this spot. 'The Little Mesa of the Dead.'" She got out of the car and he followed her. She was pointing to a solitary ironwood tree which stood in the midst of a little patch of loose soil, the only sign of any earth.

"You understand, the tanks are up the right hand gulch. But there is another pool where we are going, that lies high above the others. In the old days of the California gold rush, this was on El Camino Diable, and the Mexicans, on their way to the mines, used to stop here. It was the only water for 60 miles. But sometimes the lower tanks were dry and the trail to the upper one is hard to follow. They call that one, Agua Escondido, 'the Hidden Water.' There were many who tried to find it and could not. They died down here. You can see the crosses that mark their graves."

He saw them now, there must have been more than 50 of them. They were formed by small rocks, laid upon the loose earth that surrounded the lonely tree. As he was gazing at the spot, a harsh voice broke the stillness. It was a raven resting in the branches, croaking in protest at the headlights. Leonard thought of the luckless men who had lain beneath that tree, listening to the call of the bird while they were slowly going mad from thirst. He was not cursed with over imagination, but he was oppressed. Pat's voice brought him back to the present.

"I'll show you our garage," she said.

If she had not pointed it out, there was small likelihood that he would have discovered it, for the road was on the bare granite and it held no marks. The nook was shielded by an enormous boulder which lay before it. Years ago it had been blasted from the side of the cliff. It was a narrow space, gouged in the solid rock. The entrance passage behind the boulder was so narrow, and it turned so abruptly, that he had to use all his skill to back in without denting his fenders. When he had finished, he got out and looked at the shabby little Ford already parked there.

"Dillon's car?" he asked. She nodded.

"He'll be camped at the high tank. He always hides the car in this old roasting oven where the Mexicans used to treat their high grade ore.' "

He took a flashlight and his revolver from its holster on the driver's seat.

"It's a stiff climb?"

"The rock is slippery and it's hard until you know the way," she told him.

"Then I'll make a separate trip down for the bedding," he announced.

She led the way across the canyon and up the ridge on the opposite side.

"The lower tanks are at the head of the tributary gulch, off to our left, below us," she said. "You can't see them from this trail. One day last summer when I came up here with Dillon there were some men camped down there; line jumpers, I suppose, for they all had rifles. We crawled to the ridge and looked at them but they never even knew we were in the country."

The uneasy feeling which had taken hold of Leonard returned. He was tempted to bid her wait there while he crept to the spot she had indicated and took an observation, but he put the feeling away from him. Had he followed his inclination, he would have been looking down on the nest of boulders where Kent was at that moment fast asleep.

It was a winding trail, and so far as he could see, there was nothing for guidance. Afterward he learned that it was marked by small rocks at the places where it turned. And once there was an interval where the way was so steep that his heart was in his throat lest the girl ahead of him lose her footing. A moment later they emerged into the moonlight and the grade was not so bad. Now the rock beneath their feet was growing rougher, there were some signs of soil in its seams. He caught sight of a cluster of pin oaks above them. They halted to get their breath.

"There used to be more trees," Pat told him, "and the miners in the old days got their wood up there, five hundred feet or so above us. They dragged it down to that garage of ours. It was the place where they roasted the ore, when they brought it on burros from the mine."

"Ever since Dillon sent me that ore," Leonard said, "I've been wondering how he ran onto it. He didn't know anything about rock, he wasn't interested in that sort of thing when I knew him."

"It was Papago who told him about it," she replied. "Dillon had done him some kindness and the Indian had heard the story from his father, of the Mexicans who used to pack down high grade ore. There are old workings there, and those funny ladders made of poles—chicken ladders they call them—and two or three old rawhide buckets which they used to hoist the rock to the surface after they had blasted. And, a little ways up the main canyon, opposite the forks, there's an old arrastra where they crushed the roasted ore."

They resumed their climbing and passed a bit of level terrain where clumps of saccaton were whispering in the evening wind. Then the trail mounted more steeply and took an abrupt turn. At last they found themselves before a low cliff. At its base there was a shallow interstice, a crack which led beneath the overhang. It was hardly wide enough to shelter a good sized hog. Pat dropped on her hands and knees and Leonard followed, but after they had gone less than 10 feet the crevice widened, and suddenly they found themselves in a huge chamber.

Leonard stood, turning the flashlight from side to side, looking about him. The walls were of granite, so highly polished by the erosion which had whittled them out, that they glistened where the light fell on them. They were adorned with the rude pictures of men and mountain sheep, picked out by the stone chisels of some race who had lived here long before the days of the Indians. The rock floor sloped gently downward from all sides toward a placid pool of clear water. Around the edges lay a dozen or more sets of mountain sheep horns.

Pat uttered an exclamation of dismay. She was on her knees, bending over a thick miner's candle set in a niche of stone. The light sprang from it and she looked about her.

"No sign of Dillon!" she cried.

"He must have gone on to the claim," Leonard said.

"And I was looking forward to telling him! It means so much to him! It's hard to think of him up there tonight, alone and disappointed." She turned to Leonard and the tears were near her eyes. "If you'd seen him when he left me, you'd understand."

"I do," he told her gently. "And we'll lose no time in finding him as soon as it is light enough to travel."

He stood there looking down on her, and the feeling which had seized him when he took her in his arms at the house of The Doctor, returned. It was as if he had known her all his life, as if he had always been longing for her, and now she was his to protect. It was her bravery which appealed to him most strongly: the courage which had kept her steady eyed and smiling that afternoon when all her hopes had vanished. It had made her carry on alone in that old hotel, while poverty kept closing in upon her. It had kept her unflinching when death was close to her in The Doctor's house. She was, he thought, a tiny thing to own so much courage.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Veal steaks, unlike beef steaks, aren't cooked by broiling. They are most tender, and best in flavor when they are braised. Cut the meat in suitable pieces for serving, wipe with a damp cloth, and dip in seasoned flour, or in egg and very fine bread or cracker crumbs. Then brown the veal steak on both sides in a little hot fat, turn down the heat, put a cover on the skillet, and let the meat cook very gently until it is tender.

It's very simple. And if you're one who likes veal cooked in sour cream, and a sour cream gravy served with it, add one-fourth cup of sour cream when turning down the heat and more at intervals during cooking. It isn't necessary to add any liquid to the cooking veal, but sour cream, rich and thick, seems to give it a flavor zip and does make delicious gravy.

Salt and pepper the meat as it cooks. A little onion or a tiny sniff of garlic isn't amiss in the composition of the dish. If garlic is used, merely rub the skillet with the cut clove.

Here's the rest of a menu which suits breaded veal steak to a T.

If the potatoes are large, split them lengthwise and allow half to a person. If they are moderately proportioned, bake until tender in a 400 degree oven, then cut off the top of each and scoop out the pulp. Mash it, add salt, pepper, butter, and cream, and beat until smooth. Refill the shells, sprinkle grated cheese over the top of each potato, or dot with butter, if you aren't a cheese fan. Replace in the oven to heat thru again and brown the tops.

By the way, brushing the potato with butter or lard before baking is "proper" if you like a soft skin. If you like a crisp skin, do not grease the potatoes at all.

There is one precaution to take in cooking brussels sprouts. Don't overcook them. Overcooked sprouts are strong in flavor and grayish in color. Besides that, they have a soft, unpalatable texture when overcooked. Soak them an hour in salt water before cooking. Be sure that they are clean and that bad spots are trimmed off. Then drop into boiling, salted water and cook rapidly, uncovered, until the sprouts are barely tender. Drain and add butter, more salt, and pepper.

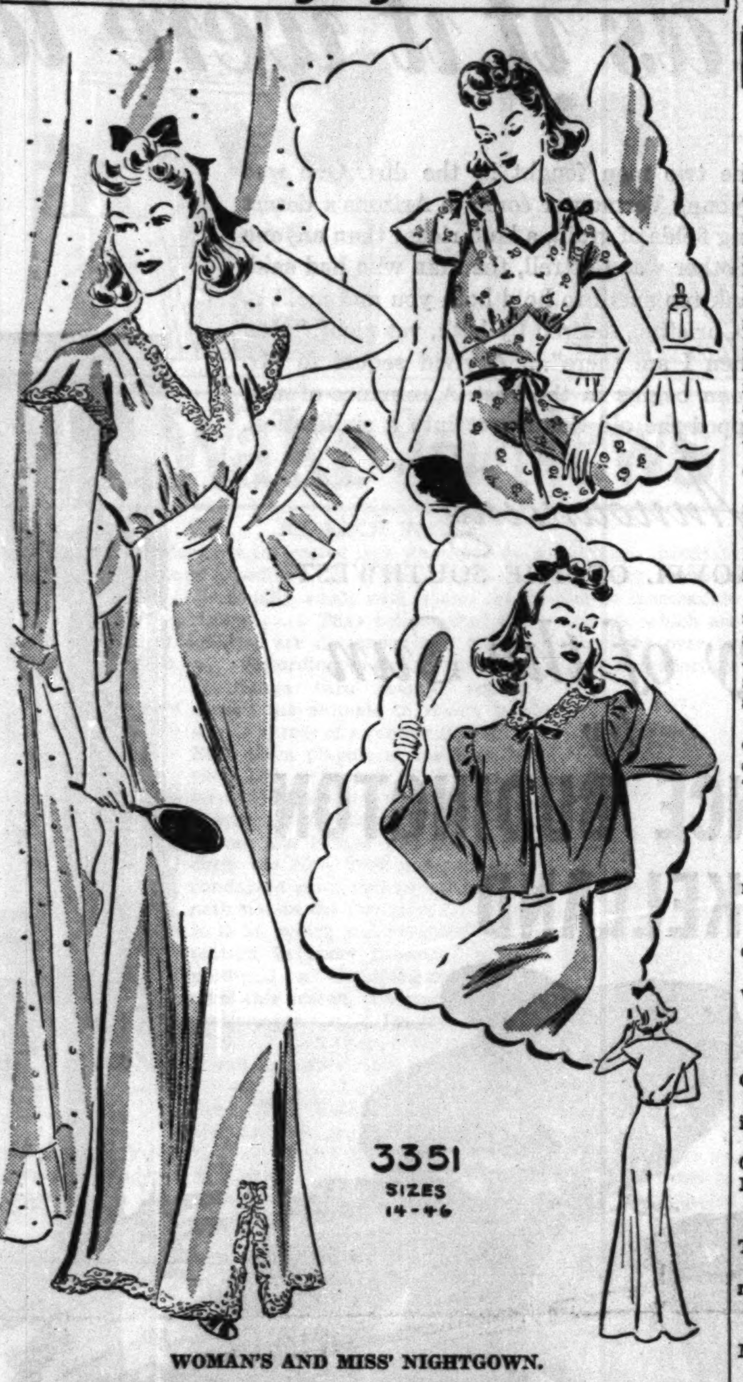
Beautiful Nightgown Ensemble



WOMAN'S AND MISS' NIGHTGOWN.

Lingerie silks are the best mediums for this nightgown ensemble. There is dressmaker detail in this exquisite garment, and it may be as feminine or as tailored as you like. Sketched left is a frothy model with lace-trimmed V neckline and short kimono sleeves. The slim waistline points up into a shirred bodice, and the skirt, molded at the hipline, flares gracefully at the hem, which is slashed and trimmed with more of the lace. Upper right is a version with heart-shaped neckline and ribbon trim. Both of these styles have their companion jackets for "breakfast in bed."

Style No. 3351 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material for nightgown, with 4½ yards of lace; 2 yards of 39 inch fabric for jacket.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

In suit establishment plays the greatest care should be taken to preserve high cards, that is, to knock out adverse stoppers whenever possible without sacrificing honors to those stoppers. Appreciation of this principle would have saved declarer's bacon in the following deal:

South, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
Rubber bridge.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's final bid was a shade optimistic, considering that his opening bid had fully expressed his values. However, he was quite right to "push" like this, particularly considering that he was playing rubber bridge and that it was not desirable to "hang" one short of game.

West opened the spade queen. Declarer won in his own hand with the ace and led a low diamond toward dummy. West correctly ducked, and the king held the trick. Now, with virtually no thought, declarer played a low diamond to his own queen and, by so doing, ruined himself. West won and led a second spade. Dummy's king won, and now declarer hopefully tried to drop the outstanding ten and nine of diamonds under the jack, but had no "luck." Greatly disappointed, declarer now attempted the stratagem of throwing West on lead with a spade in the hope that the defense would open up the heart suit and thereby make it possible for South to establish two heart tricks. But West was not to be caught in this trap. After cashing his spades, he shifted, not to a heart, but to a club, and declarer again was helpless. When he, himself, had to start the heart suit, he could not make more than the ace, hence had to concede a one trick defeat.

The contract had been lost solely thru declarer's unskilful handling of the diamond suit. After the diamond king held, it could be taken for granted that the diamond ace was in West's hand. Had it been held by East, there would have been no point in his holding up the ace. Thus, it required no more than simple logic for declarer to return to his own hand [with a club] in order to lead a second low diamond toward dummy. It was very poor technique to lead up to the queen or to lay down the queen. Either of these plays certainly would present the holder of the ace with the opportunity to capture an honor instead of a low card. There always was the chance [and, indeed, it actually happened] that West had the blank ace of diamonds. If he did, it could be forced out without the sacrifice of an honor.

Obviously, had declarer followed the correct technique and led the second low diamond from his own hand toward dummy, the defenders would have had to throw in the sponge. Now three diamond tricks would have been assured declarer and these, with three clubs, two spades, and one heart, would have rounded out the contract.

France. When the letter arrived in Chasuble Bloch already had crossed the Atlantic, so the letter was returned to New York and forwarded to Berkeley, arriving there Dec. 1. A feat of delivery service in a wartorn world. One of Bloch's greatest works is his Violin Concerto recorded by Szegitl. A new recording of his work is to be released shortly, Schlemo, Hebrew Rhapsody for Cello and Orchestra, which Chicago' audiences have heard Piatigorsky do under Mr. Stock's baton.

Seven Year Old.

The 7 year old daughter of Chicago Composer Radie Britain turned on the radio to hear Barbirolli and the New York Philharmonic. When she heard Beethoven's Seventh symphony announced, some of which she had been studying in a simplified form, she said excitedly, "O, let me get my score. I want to follow this wonderful music."

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Behind the Scenes.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 12. — The movie stars are in receipt of a chain letter from the "Reno Prosperity club," differing from most chain letters because it has a giggle in it.

The letter reads: "Drop the top name on the list of six names below and add your name to the bottom. Send a copy of this letter to five men friends; then bundle up your wife and send her to the person whose name heads this list. When your name works to the top, you will receive 15,175 wives. Do not break this chain."

It's a 3 to 1 bet that 15,175 wives will break the guy who doesn't break the chain.

Fan mail, particularly when it trickles in from small towns in Japan, is always hilarious. . . . Here is one which Don Ameche received from Brazil, however, which matches the best of the Japanese missives: "Dear Señor: Being you my artist incomparable, much pleasure I experience to possess a portrait. Also I have the desire for portrait to come across the ocean with dedication nobly worded, the dedication writings to imply a friendship reciprocated. I admire you intensely, so when can I expect the portrait? It will make me what the American movie comedians call 'Slappy-happy-heigh-heheigh-ho.' The film what was more liked by me was 'Alexander's Ragtime Band.' Am now waiting hardly on 'Swami River.' I admire you most when make love to Loretta Young, which find sublime creature. Please excuse failure to repair the English, for this be first year in which study."

P. S. She got the picture.

No more shocking indictment of war ever was penned than Dalton Trumbo's "Johnny Got His Gun." . . . On Jan. 13, NBC will dramatize it in a broadcast originating from New York as an argument for world peace. . . . Jimmy Cagney will play the part of the "Basket Case" soldier, gratis, as his contribution to world peace.

Now that Bob Hope and Ruby Keeler Jolson have whacked Bing Crosby and Paulette Goddard in a charity golf match, Hope and Crosby have been challenged, and have accepted, another charity golf match.

This time two coast movie reporters will team up in an attempt to flatten the actors. . . . Jimmy Fidler and I are the newspaper columnist team, and the match will be staged at the Lakeside Golf club on Dec. 20, with Marlene [Legs] Dietrich as the referee.

Town talk: Judy Starr and Charlie Butterworth tête-à-tête at the Beachcombers before planing east for personal appearances. . . . Paulette Goddard, on the eve of her New York trip, drinking coconut rums with Charlie Chaplin and Betty Chaplin at the same spot, Charlie consoling Paulette on her attack of stage fright before 3,000 golf fans at Lakeside.

Commonly agreed in skeptical Hollywood is that the truest index of movie star popularity is the annual Chicago Tribune-News syndicate poll, conducted thru the columns of 100 of the greatest newspapers in the country. . . . Two years ago Clark Gable and Myrna Loy were voted tops by newspaper readers. . . . Last year Tyrone Power and Jeanette MacDonald crashed thru as champs.

Box office records proved that these four actually were the No. 1 favorites of the country, and since then the movie colony has watched the annual poll with the most intent interest.

Looking One's Best Should Be a Daily Beauty Adage

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I sing my best when I look my best," says the lovely singer, Gladys Swarthout, thereby delivering a little sermon for all women engaged in work of any and every kind.

Haven't you found it true, householder and homemaker, that on the morning you arose early enough to perfect your breakfast table appearance that that day marked not only better but easier accomplishment? Your mood had much to do with it, as you realize yourself. It's just the old truism that when you feel all is right with yourself, all is right with your world. Everything goes more smoothly because of that happier mood of yours.

We appreciate fully that you women in the home know a terrifically busy early morning program: Getting the youngsters up, fed, and off to school; getting their dad out on time and in "good coffee" humor. We think when you do arrange as many of those personal duties the night before that hasten your morning's toilette and when you do look the adorable wife and mother in the early morning, a million times more credit goes to you than it does to the professional or business person. Because of the nature of your work, it's easy to slip up on this case. The professional and business woman CAN'T slip up on hers or she suffers economic loss.

One of the keenest cosmeticians, whose salons the world over cater to women and their upkeep needs, said not long ago that a good husband is the cause of more divorces than a bad one. Why? A good husband makes a wife careless in her appearance and he soon catches up on her. She advises wives to keep looking at a mirror.

We won't argue the point as to whether or not a good man is bad for a wife. A bad one, we think, would be worse. A better point for women themselves to ponder is involved in that line of Miss Swarthout's: "I sing my best when I look my best."

When a woman knows she's looking her worst, or not even looking her best, a cantankerous demon starts gnawing at her soul. It's no trouble then to work up a case of discontent, injustice, hatred of the job in hand, all of which have a devastating effect on one's looks. Isn't it true?

Housework vs. beautiful hands is one of the subjects treated helpfully by Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor, in her booklet, "Handmade Hand beauty." FIRST 5 SECONDS DECIDE FATE OF GIRL JOB HUNTER

Vital Points Quickly Noted, Says Counsellor.

[This is the last of a series of articles on the problems a girl faces in hunting a job.]

BY MARCIA WINN.

It's the first five seconds that count. The impression made then by a girl seeking a job is the impression that remains.

After that the summing up is an intellectual rationalization, without emotion. Yet it is emotion, responsive or unmoved, that has the deciding voice. Altho they probably would deny it, most people hire on emotion.

This is the belief of Mrs. Mildred Clarkson, new director of the Y. W. C. A. metropolitan service department, 203 North Wabash avenue. In reaching it she goes beyond the employment bureau—which is a part of the Y. W. C. A. service—to the years when she hired girls, the years when she was in the personnel departments of Standard Oil, Remington-Rand, and du Pont in the east, and later in Chicago was assistant state personnel director for the WPA.

First Approach Tells Story.

"Your impression is made in the first five seconds a person comes in the room," she said. "It's that first approach that is vital. Nail polish and hair are just details in the general effect of appearance, posture, modulation of voice, and animation."

These are some of the factors the Y. W. C. A. tries to stress in its employment bureau, to which 8,505 girls came last year asking: "Where can I find a job?" Of these 800 were placed during the year. Others were given vocational guidance and the use of the bureau's practice room to brush up on their typewriting and shorthand.

If a girl is too fat, the bureau gives her a reducing program. If her dress is incongruous or haphazard, the bureau gives her hints and suggestions for improving it. If a girl doesn't know what she can do the bureau gives her a vocational test. Then it tries to find a job and fit her into it.

What Employers Want.

"This," said Mrs. Clarkson, "is what the business man usually will call in and say:

"'I want a girl between 22 and 26 with plenty of sense, who is good to look at around the office, who has had some training and experience, and who really thinks—a girl who will grow on the job.'"

Mrs. Clarkson then will select a girl for an interview with this employer. She may read to the girl the American Banking institute's survey of the discharges of 4,000 persons from 76 large concerns. This shows that 90 per cent of the discharges and 77 per cent of the lack of promotions were traced to character traits. Skill was relatively immaterial. Lack of it caused only 10 per cent of the discharges and 23 per cent of the stagnations.

Carelessness Main Flaw.

Carelessness, the report shows, is the most strident sin, causing 14 per cent of the discharges. Then came lack of coöperation, laziness, dishonesty, attention to outside matters, lack of initiative, and lack of ambition. Tardiness was a large factor.

"Every girl should know this," said Mrs. Clarkson, "so she may discipline herself and correct any flagrant defect. We give the girls books on personality if they need it.

"I think it's a mistake, too, to believe that employers do not want sophistication. Employers want a girl who knows what is going on in the world. They want that mental alertness and personal animation that show that a girl is alive and vital."

This all sparkles out in that first five seconds' impression in which Mrs. Clarkson believes.

She is so convinced of this that she says she can look at any girl walking down Michigan avenue and catalog her as to the type of work or office in which she would fit, if any.

FINED $200 AS WIFE BEATER.

Julius Gunderson, 52 years old, 2916 Monitor avenue, offered an excuse yesterday when he was arraigned in the Shakespeare avenue court on a charge of beating his wife, Agnes. "She forced me to marry her two years ago and has made my life miserable ever since," he said. Judge Stephen Adamowski ruled the excuse insufficient and fined Gunderson $200.

TODAY IS POST DAY

HE WORSHIPED LAND as if it were a woman
HE BARGAINED FOR LOVE as if it were land

LIKE ANIMALS, the two men fought in the dirt. One was Gamaliel Ware, young Vermonter come to Arizona's desert with a vision of waving fields of grain, a land richer than anyone ever dreamed of. The other was Cottrell, the man who had said, "This world has shrunk too small to hold both you and me!"... And watching them, Christine, desired by both, yet aloof: "Men fight many times when I am there"... A vivid sequel to Mr. Kelland's novel Arizona begins in the Post. A romance of men and women who whipped the old Southwest into a civilization.

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 12 [Special].—Notre Dame swept to its fourth straight basketball victory of the season tonight, dealing Wisconsin its first defeat in three starts, 51 to 33. The Irish sank more than 40 per cent of their 27 shots in the first half, while the Badgers were making only four out of 39, to run up a 31 to 10 advantage. Notre Dame's regulars, who played most of the first half, operated intact again for five minutes of the second period to widen the margin to 42 to 13 before reserves started to come in.

Eddie Riska, Notre Dame's junior forward, led both teams with 14 points. Capt. Mark Ertel of the Irish got 12 points, while Don Timmerman, 6 foot 9 inch center, paced Wisconsin with 9 points. Lineups:

PURDUE FACES DETROIT

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 12 [Special].—Upset by De Paul's rangy quintet last night, Purdue's basketball squad, still in the midst of a reconstruction period, tackles an equally formidable foe here tomorrow night in the veteran University of Detroit five led by Bob Calihan, high scoring center.

Despite the loss to De Paul, Coach Ward Lambert expressed himself as being well pleased with the showing in an early game. "The squad as a whole was alert, but unable to overcome De Paul's height advantage," said Lambert. "We need tough competition to get the team in shape and we're certainly getting it."

Purdue's defense is expected to be severely tested as it attempts to halt Calihan, who scored 267 points in 20 games last year. Lineup:

Lorenz Moves to Bar Lane as Big 10 Official

Madison, Wis., Dec. 12 (AP). — Dr. William F. Lorenz, University of Wisconsin representative on the Western conference faculty committee in charge of athletics, disclosed today he had formally challenged eligibility of Frank Lane of Cincinnati, O., for further duty as an official of the Big Ten.

Dr. Lorenz said he demanded an investigation at a committee meeting in Chicago last Saturday after Rowland Hermans of Middleton, Wis., a Wisconsin student, was banned from Big Ten athletics for life because he signed a contract last season with the Muskogee, Okla., baseball club, a farm unit of the National league Cincinnati Reds.

Hermans, Dr. Lorenz added, was offered the contract by Lane, who, in addition to being a Big Ten football and basketball official, is a member of the Cincinnati Reds' baseball corporation.

LANE TELLS HIS SIDE.

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—Frank Lane, whose eligibility as a Big Ten official was challenged because he allegedly offered a baseball contract to a Wisconsin student, told his side of the case tonight.

"The student had several other offers and he asked us what we would offer him for his services," Lane said. "We told him we did not follow a policy of taking boys out of school, but when he finished school we would be glad to discuss a contract."

HORSE breeders are interested in a discovery by a California Institute of Technology expedition. . . . The scientists captured two members of a herd of unusually small wild horses on an almost inaccessible plateau in Arizona. . . . They believe that these animals, which are about the size of donkeys, are descendants of the horses brought over by Spaniards in 1600. . . . According to their theory, inbreeding and shortage of forage thru several centuries caused the animals to revert to the size of horses of a remote period. . . . Each team playing in the Rose bowl gets 33⅓ per cent of the receipts. New York sports writers said the hearing on the Harry Thomas boxing exposé last Friday was the most orderly the New York commission has conducted since memory of man runneth not to the contrary. . . . Texas A. & M., which had received little attention in sport headlines until it produced a championship football team this season, is a major school in every sense. . . . Its enrollment is 6,200, all men, and entrants are required to pass a rigid physical examination. . . . Members of the 1919 Green Bay Packers received $16.50 each as their pro rata portion of the entire season's profits. . . . Erwin Prasse of Chicago, captain of Iowa's football team, who recently won his third letter in that sport, reported for basketball practice a day after the football season closed. . . . He already has won seven major "I" letters and is aiming at nine, a feat accomplished by only five other men at Iowa. . . . Paul Hartnek, former Golden Glove heavyweight champion who fractured his right hand in a bout against Johnny Paycheck, also a former Golden Glove title winner, will return to the ring wars in about five weeks. . . . Michigan's All-Opponent eleven, chosen by letter men, did not include Nile Kinnick. . . . Frank Reagan of Pennsylvania and George Franck of Minnesota were the half backs named. . . . Don Scott of Ohio State was voted the quarter back job and Marty Christiansen of Minnesota was rated the best full back. . . . Dutch Lonborg, who is starting his 13th season as Northwestern's basketball coach, began the campaign with a record of 149 victories and 84 defeats since he joined the Wildcat staff.

Kokomo Sue.

I had fallen pretty hard
For the substitute right guard
Till I saw him with the noonday feed bag on;
He made such outrageous noise
That I lost my mental poise
And my heart beat wildly ever and anon.

He ate oysters in the nude,
But I never saw sea food
Handled with so little tact or savoir faire;
Every oyster was impaled
On his fork, and then inhaled,
And his etiquet was getting in my hair.

How could I have any luck
Carving up my mallard duck
While he zoomed and groaned and gurgled in my ear?
Everybody looked at me
Wondering if I could be
The devoted wife of any one so queer.

So I darted from the place
With about as little grace
As a fire chief who answers an alarm;
When I reached the busy street
My confusion was complete
For I had the mallard duck beneath my arm.

Signs of Christmas.

When Christmas nears, deep mystery
Pervades our domicile,
And ways prosaic hitherto
Take on a secret thrill.

And subterfuge is rife;

Pop out from places queer,
And plots and counterplots crisscross,
When Christmas time is near.

SPORTS EDITOR RELATES STORY OF FAKED BOUTS

Explains How Evidence Was Obtained.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, appeared before the Illinois Athletic commissioners, and Edwin T. Breen, first assistant attorney general yesterday afternoon. He related in detail his information and how it was acquired that the professional fights Harry Thomas had with Max Schmeling in New York and with Tony Galento in Philadelphia had been pre-arranged and faked.

Ward's account to the commissioners, Joe Triner, Sheldon Clark, and J. R. Fitzpatrick, which was related without recourse to notes or affidavits, was substantially the same as revealed exclusively in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Oct. 30, 1939. No portion of that story has been retracted or altered. It was also made in the presence yesterday in the commission rooms, 28 East Jackson boulevard, of Nate Lewis, one time manager of Harry Thomas, who was named as having been a party to the agreement reached in Chicago in October, 1937, to have Thomas lose to Max Schmeling, then managed by Joe Jacobs, now manager of Tony Galento.

Lewis to Appear Monday.

Lewis will appear before the commission hearing next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Lewis and Joe Jacobs denied having arranged Thomas' fake fights and their denials also were printed in THE TRIBUNE Oct. 30, 1939.

Ward yesterday told the commissioners that Thomas also had engaged in a third fixed match, subsequent to the fight with Schmeling on Dec. 13, 1937, but no mention of this or the details was included in Thomas' affidavit. At the request of Breen and the Commissioners Ward said he would forward an affidavit from Thomas to them today.

Summarizes Evidence Sources.

Summation of Ward's sources of evidence by Breen were [1] verbal conversations with Thomas in New York in September, 1939; [2] affidavits by Thomas that the fights with Schmeling and Galento were faked, and [3] personal investigation of Thomas' bank account and conversations with persons who said they had advance knowledge of the fake fights which was substantiated by letters from Thomas.

Breen pointed out that all these sources stemmed from Thomas himself. He then asked if Ward had any other evidence. Ward said he had, but that he was not at liberty to reveal the source until forced to be-

Marchy Schwartz Quits; Creighton Names New Coach

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 12 (AP).—Marchmont Schwartz, former Notre Dame football star and head football coach at Creighton university for five years, will be succeeded on Jan. 1 by Maurice H. Palrang, former Regis college player at Denver, the Rev. Joseph P. Zuercher, S. J., Creighton president, announced tonight.

Schwartz and his two assistants, Line Coach Thomas A. Gorman and Dr. Wilburd S. Eaton, end coach, submitted their resignations today. They were accepted immediately by the athletic board, which signed a three-year contract with Palrang, now coach at Creighton prep.

Schwartz had no statement to issue other than to say "My five years at Creighton have been pleasant ones." He said he had no future plans to announce at present.

Schwartz played at Notre Dame under the late Knute Rockne in 1930 and under Coach Hunk Anderson in 1931. He was a backfield coach at the University of Chicago in 1934. He came to Creighton in 1935.

The Rev. David A. Shyne, S. J., present faculty regent of athletics, will take over the post of athletic director. Schwartz has been both athletic director and football coach.

Armstrong Faces Suspension for Evading Ambers Fight

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—Commissioner D. Walker Wear of the New York state athletic commission said today he would recommend suspension of Henry Armstrong, welterweight champion, for fighting Jimmy Garrison in Cleveland last night after failing to meet Lou Ambers here Dec. 1.

"There is no question but what Armstrong ran out on his fight with Ambers," said Wear.

Armstrong contracted a cold and the bout with Ambers was canceled. The commission cautioned the champion he should not fight Garrison. In last night's bout Armstrong stopped his opponent in the seventh round.

Armstrong's manager, Eddie Mead, was suspended in this state following the September fight in which Ambers regained his lightweight title from Armstrong.

N. B. A. TAKES STAND.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—The National Boxing association, refusing to recognize last night's Al Hostak-Eric Seelig and Henry Armstrong-Jimmy Garrison bouts in Cleveland as championship affairs, said today that Ceferino Garcia was Hostak's logical rival and that Armstrong should take on more legitimate challengers. Hostak knocked out Seelig in the first round.

The N. B. A., it said, recognizes as title fights only bouts between the champion and one of three listed leaders in his own class.

It contended that Holman Williams, Charley Burley, Fritzie Zivic or Pedro Montanez should have a crack at Armstrong's welterweight title by Jan. 12.

Middleweight Champion Hostak, the association said, should defend his title against Garcia as soon as Garcia returns from Manila.

In the featherweight division, the N. B. A. ruled that the winner of the New York's Petey Scalzo-Simon Chavez bout would deserve a title bout with Champion Joey Archibald.

DAY VS. ARMSTRONG

A welterweight title bout may be held between Champion Henry Armstrong and Davey Day in Chicago Stadium Jan. 19. Sam Pian, one of Day's managers, yesterday returned from Cleveland with that information after having conferred there with Eddie Mead, the champion's manager.

"Mead said his fighter probably would be suspended by the New York commission if he went thru with the Jimmy Garrison match Monday," Pian asserted, "but he couldn't help himself."

As a consequence, Armstrong's scheduled title defense against Pedro Montanez in Madison Square Garden Jan. 24 would have to be canceled. At the same time such action would clear the way for a Day-Armstrong encounter, Pian added.

HOCKEY'S VERBAL WAR TO GET AN AUDITION TODAY

The National Hockey league schedule annually consists of 48 regular league contests, followed by the Stanley cup play-off marathon. Today an unscheduled match will be held in New York, but in a suite of the Commodore hotel, rather than Madison Square Garden, where the league's teams ordinarily hold their jousts. Whether both of the principals in the contest will be present is uncertain, but the game will be played in spite of the absence of one or both.

The occasion is the meeting of the governors of the league to consider the case of James Norris, multimillionaire owner of the Detroit Red Wings and operator of the Chicago Stadium, as well as numerous other sports arenas thruout the country, and Referee Bill Stewart.

Norris Started the Argument.

The situation involving Norris and Stewart arose on the night of Dec. 3 when the Chicago Blackhawks played the Toronto Maple Leafs in the Chicago Stadium. Stewart was the referee, while Norris occupied his usual box as a spectator in the center of the rink on the south side of the building.

As the game progressed Norris directed a one man tirade against Stewart, climaxing it by accusing Stewart of being a "homer." Stewart endured the lashing, which was highly audible to newspaper men and spectators adjacent to the Norris box, until the overtime period, when he turned in rebuttal. Stewart said that Norris might have him fired, as the latter repeatedly threatened, but that as long as he was the game referee he would run it, Gov. Norris notwithstanding.

Norris, one of the governors of the league, is expected to attend today's New York meeting, along with Maj. Frederic McLaughlin and Bill Tobin, who represent the Blackhawks on the governors' board. Whether Stewart will be invited to the meeting to speak his own piece is not known.

Seek Answer to Mystery.

Today's meeting is expected to be one of the warmest sessions of recent league history. The principal reason for the gathering is to settle the question of the rinkside relations of one of the league governors and one of its working officials. A majority of the crowd at the Hawk-Toronto game appeared to side with Stewart, one of the ablest and most fearless officials in sport on his record, not only in hockey, but also as a leading baseball umpire in the National league.

The mystery of Norris' "riding" of Stewart still confuses those who follow the game regularly. The magnate's own team, the Red Wings, was not involved in the game, and the Blackhawks are No. 1 tenants of his Stadium, having paid rentals approximating $1,000,000 since they went into the big west side building. As the game turned out, the Hawks lost, 3 to 1.

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—The New York Americans, their injury riddled ranks strengthened with two young defensemen and two veteran forwards, signalized old Nels Stewart's return to the National Hockey league tonight by beating the Chicago Blackhawks, 4 to 0, before the season's smallest crowd, less than 5,000.

And Stewart, the Old Poison of a dozen seasons, who skated out of a brief retirement tonight, took the puck his first time on ice and scored one of the goals—the 333d of his long career. Besides Stewart, the Americans had Doc Romnes, recovered from a broken hand, for their forward line and Pat Egan and Chuck Shannon, up from the Springfield Indians, operating as a unit on defense.

Wiseman Is Head Man.

Eddie Wiseman was the spark plug of the victory that brought the Americans a tie with the Detroit Red Wings for last place, the first time they found company in the cellar since the season opened.

The Hawks appeared tired and their play was listless, giving Earl Robertson an easy time in the American nets for his first shutout.

The Americans went ahead in the second minute, Wiseman scoring from an innocent looking scramble in the Chicago defense zone. Anderson started the play, Sorrell picked it up in front of the defense and dribbled a backhand pass to Wiseman, who golfed the puck thru Karakas' legs.

Stewart Appears and Scores.

Nels Stewart got a big hand from the crowd when he skated on for the first time and the veteran scored on the first play in which he handled the puck. He brought it down all the way with Smith and took the final pass from the latter near the goal mouth, flipping it past Karakas as the goalie came out.

Anderson went off for tripping Demarco, but the Hawks couldn't get organized and Robertson didn't have a hard shot while the team was short. An interference penalty on Shannon a few minutes later gave the Hawks another chance and this time March almost scored on the first rush.

Another for Wiseman.

Wiseman scored his second goal at 2:38 of the second period, batting home a short pass out from Anderson, altho MacKenzie had a stick draped around him. Conacher also drew an assist.

The Hawks' attacks lacked drive and the Americans had little trouble checking them into the corners on the few plays that reached deep into American territory. An interference penalty to Field set the stage for a brief Hawk rally that fluttered out almost before it started.

It's Robertson's Night.

Robertson stopped Gottselig and Desilets and Karakas kicked fast to beat a hard one from Romnes. The Hawks kept trying to the end of the period, keeping the play in American territory most of the time, but without much effect.

Wiseman almost scored his third goal early in the third period, Karakas catching the shot just in time. Allen, Carse, and Demarco came on for the Hawks and tested Robertson without success in a sustained drive, but it was the Americans who scored again, at 7:28. Sorrell got it on a 12 foot shot from the center, where Conacher and Wiseman brought the puck.

Penalties for Each.

Robertson came far out to dive on the puck as Dahlstrom sped up to bat at it. MacKenzie went off for interference, the first Hawk penalty, but a tripping penalty to Wiseman evened the sides almost immediately.

Gottselig jammed into Robertson, fighting for the puck under the goalie, who dived out to smother it, and Gottselig almost came to blows with Anderson and Hooley Smith when they stepped in to get him away from the goalie. The brush passed over without trouble, however.

PRO FOOTBALL IN 1939 SHOWS GAIN OF 250,000 FANS

National League Plays Before 1,456,318.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Davey O'Brien.

The 10 teams of the National Football league played before a total of 1,456,318 spectators thru the 1939 season which began with the Chicago Tribune All-Star game in August and wound up with the championship playoff in Milwaukee last Sunday. This is an increase of 250,000 over 1938 and marks the 10th consecutive year that attendance has climbed.

Figures for the 55 games of the regular schedule, which does not include the playoff and the Chicago, Dallas, and New York All-Star games, totaled 1,279,939, an increase of 10 per cent over last year, President Carl Storck announced yesterday.

Only One Team Shows Loss.

Only one team failed to draw as many fans this year for its home games as it did in 1938. Detroit suffered a 7 per cent drop in attendance, but its receipts equaled those of last fall. Cleveland, with 102,398 for five home games, showed the largest increase, a boost of nearly 50 per cent. The Chicago Cardinals, despite a disastrous season, were only several hundred below their attendance for 1938, but took in several thousand more dollars in receipts.

Green Bay, enjoying one of its greatest seasons competitively, had only a 5 per cent increase in home attendance, but its gross income was reduced considerably because it did not play in Washington or New York this year. The Packers, however, will show a nice profit on the year.

O'Brien Helps Eagles Boom.

Figures on Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia were the source of considerable encouragement to the owners. Davey O'Brien, and more interest in professional football, drew 12 per cent more fans to Eagle games in Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh was able to equal last year's figures despite its second division representative, Storck announced.

New York led the league again in attendance, playing to 233,427 in six home games. Included in this total is the turnout for the Washington game which set a new record of 62,530 for National league attendance and an all time high for professional receipts with $120,000.

Detroit led the western division, attracting 182,561 fans to Briggs stadium for six games. The Chicago Bears were second, 50,000 behind for one less home game. Home attendance for each team, with the number of games and the largest single game crowd, follow:

EAST.

Kiefer Breaks Swim Record for 110 Yards

Adolph Kiefer, who holds all world's and American backstroke swimming records for men, broke one of his own American marks—this one three years old—when he swam the 110 yard event in 1 minute 5 1-10 seconds against time in the Chicago Towers club last night. Kiefer's old record, made in Detroit in 1936, was 1:08.2.

In the final of the lone Central A. A. U. event held during the meet the 100 yard free style swim, two Northwestern university swimmers, Dick Fahrbach and Len Searles, finished ahead of Otto Jaretz, National A. A. U. champion, who swam for the Towers club.

Fahrbach Succeeds Kirar.

Jarez won the first qualifying heat from Searles, and Fahrbach won the second heat. Fahrbach touched out Searles in the final, with Jaretz a foot behind. The time of the final, 54.9 seconds, was slow. Fahrbach succeeded Ed Kirar of the Towers club as champion, Kirar being unable to compete because of a cold.

Muriel Berndt captured the club's 50 yard free style title, with Jane Cloyd, a new member of the team, second, and Mickey Wichser, third. The time was 30 seconds. Betty Harrison took the club's 50 yard backstroke title in 36 seconds.

Two Year Old Girl Swims.

Exhibitions included diving by Arlite Smith, Rose Rutzen, Jean Kessler, and Mary Lou Holmes, members of the Towers club team; swimming and diving exhibitions by Dot and Dolly Flannagan, 7 and 5 years old, respectively, and Audrey Shutte, 2 years old, and rhythmic swimming by Ruth and Mimi Streed.

Johnny Howard, Towers club exhibition swimmer, collapsed while only a few feet short of his record of 413 feet for underwater swimming. He was rescued and resuscitated. Howard swam under the water for more than two minutes before collapsing.

Bruin-Eagle Game to Settle Old Grudges

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The rosters of the member teams of the National Basketball league, being of a highly collegiate complexion, make for many a renewal of old campus hardwood feuds, and tonight's argument between the Chicago Bruins and the Detroit Eagles at the 132d Regiment Armory, Madison and Rockwell streets, is no exception.

Forgetting for the moment that the two foes of the evening are now the only unbeaten quintets in the league, there is the matter of old scores. There is, for instance the case of Irving Torgoff of Detroit against Mike Novak, Wibs Kautz, and George Hogan of the Bruins. Last season, Novak, Kautz, and Hogan, as associate members of the Loyola university quintet, were going along right smartly, winning 21 consecutive games until they met the Long Island team in the final match of the Madison Square Garden tournament. Torgoff and Co. disillusioned the Loyola lads quite thoroly with a 44-32 spanking in which the winners led all the way.

Novak vs. Wintermute.

Novak and Kautz, who will be in the Bruin starting lineup tonight, and Hogan, who is expected to make himself useful before the game is over, aver that Torgoff was one of the best set shots they ran across in their collegiate days.

Speaking of Novak, there was a deal of argument at the end of last year's college season as to who was the greatest center of the year—Mike or Urgel Wintermute, who led Oregon's great team to a victory over Ohio State in the national collegiate tournament final. Tonight may be the solution of the discussion, for Novak probably will have to use all of his 6 feet 9 inches of height to outdo Wintermute, who stands 6 feet 8 inches himself.

The Lineup

Meeting such a crew as Detroit should produce the answer to the Bruins' caliber. Last Wednesday they made their debut with a 28 to 19 victory over the Oshkosh All-Stars in which they were not overly pressed. The Eagles rate a different approach, however, for they scored their fifth consecutive league triumph last night by defeating Sheboygan, 48 to 38. Other members of the Detroit team are Nat Frankel, star of the New York Celtics in last year's American Professional league; Bernie Opper, University of Kentucky guard, and Art Hyatt.

The Novak-Wintermute duel tonight will be a right interesting one, for the former's height makes him the Bruin keystone not only on offensive passing and pivot play, but on defense as well.

Game Is Tipoff on Bruins.

The combination of Kautz and Eddie Oram, former U. S. C. captain at guards, with Frank Linskey and Willie Phillips at forwards, clicked quite well against Oshkosh, but tonight's game can well be the answer to the Chicagoans' future.

The Bruin-Eagle game will begin at approximately 9 o'clock. It will be preceded at 8 o'clock by a curtain raiser involving two north side heavyweight teams composed of former high school stars—the Queen of Angels team of the C. Y. O. and the Davis Paints.

Roy Conacher Hurt, Bruins Defeat Wings

Boston, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP). — The champion Boston Bruins stretched the Detroit Red Wings' losing streak to six straight games tonight, but their 3 to 1 triumph before a 10,000 crowd at the Boston garden cost them the services of Roy Conacher, brilliant left winger, for at least six weeks.

Conacher suffered a fractured left wrist early in the second period after he collided head-on with Jimmie Orlando in the center zone. As he departed for a hospital, Manager Art Ross summoned Red Hamill, one of the Bruins' farm hands on the Hershey International-American league club, to join the parent organization in Toronto on Thursday.

SPORTS EDITOR RELATES STORY OF FAKED BOUTS

Explains How Evidence Was Obtained.

fore a court. He added that Thomas' affidavit had been corroborated by another principal. In response to Chairman Triner's question, Ward concluded that this evidence completely convinced him and attorneys employed in the investigation of the truth of Thomas' charges.

Witness Saw Jacobs.

To other questions Ward said that Thomas "had not been paid one cent for this story," and that investigation produced a witness who saw Joe Jacobs in the Drake hotel in October, 1937, when Thomas said he met with him and Lewis to arrange for the fake bout with Schmeling. On Oct. 30, 1939, Joe Jacobs' denial that he was in Chicago at that time was printed.

Attorney General Breen pointed out the difficulties the commission and he were having to arrive at the truth or falsity of the charges since all those summoned to the hearing except Ward, Lewis, and Monday's witness, Lee Carroll, had failed to appear. Several were not heard from at all, including Thomas and Joe Jacobs.

It was Ward's opinion yesterday that Thomas would appear and testify if he was assured of immunity. Otherwise, he said Thomas probably would decline to add to the information related in his affidavit.

Ward then concluded, "The commission now has more evidence than I had when I started an investigation of Thomas' verbal statement to me in New York last September and I had no difficulty corroborating the account of the faked fights."

N. B. A. FAVORS CLEANUP

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—The National Boxing association agrees with Representative Ambrose J. Kennedy [D., Md.] that the prize fight business should be investigated and supervised by a federal commission.

Harvey L. Miller, N. B. A. president, announced today that only 10 votes had been cast against Kennedy's proposal in a poll of the 39 state and city boxing commissions which comprise the association's membership.

The negative votes, he said, came from Mississippi, Maryland, North Carolina, Illinois, Connecticut, Indiana, Virginia, Oklahoma, Iowa, and Atlanta, Ga.

Kennedy has asserted that boxing is on the downgrade and needs a house cleaning. Even in New York state, he said, attendance isn't what it used to be. He declared that a New York monopoly exists in the sport and that when this monopoly is broken boxing will again prosper.

Miller said such comments as these were made by N. B. A. members on Kennedy's program:

"A properly conducted inquiry, not a fishing expedition, might serve boxing a good purpose."

Kankakee Team Is 17th Entry in St. George Meet

St. Patrick's High school of Kankakee, an entry received yesterday, ran the total number of teams entered in the sixth annual St. George Catholic invitation prep basketball tournament to 17. The tournament opens in St. George gym in Evanston Friday evening.

The Kankakee team will be making its third appearance in the meet.

The belated entry necessitates an extra game to be played in the first round. Pairings will be announced tomorrow.

Play will be concluded on Tuesday night with championship and third place games being held on that night instead of Wednesday, as previously announced. Night sessions will be held Dec. 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19, and afternoon sessions on Dec. 16 and 17.

Duquesne Football Team Books Mississippi Game

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 12 (AP).—Duquesne university's football team, unbeaten this season, will meet the University of Mississippi next year in one of three encounters with southern teams, Athletic Director Aldo Donelli announced today. The game will be played at Oxford, Miss., on Oct. 19.

Miss Marble No. 1 Women's Athlete of '39

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—First choice of 54 of the 63 experts who voted, Alice Marble of California made a runaway of the Associated Press poll to determine the outstanding woman athlete of 1939, her selection marking the first time since 1935 that a tennis player has been so honored.

Miss Marble, winner of this year's Wimbledon and American championships, polled a total of 167 points, based on a count of three, two and one, respectively, for first, second, and third places.

In second place was Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., national golf champion, who was selected for first place by two experts and whose point total was 55, leaving Miss Marble's margin the largest ever compiled by a winner in the history of the annual Associated Press poll.

Patty Berg, despite an appendectomy which cut short her 1939 golf competition, finished in third place with 31 points, although she did not receive one first place vote.

Seven others each received one first place vote, but were far behind in points. Leaders follow:

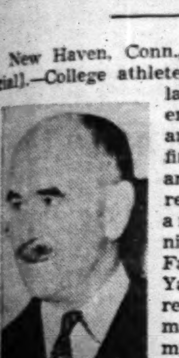
EASTERN GROUP BARS FINANCIAL AID TO ATHLETES

New England Colleges Draw Up Code.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 12 [Special].—College athletes in New England will no longer receive scholarships or other financial aid of any kind under recommendations announced tonight by Malcolm Farmer, retired Yale athletic director and chairman of the committee appointed by the New England colleges for conference on athletics. The code, accepted by 30 of the colleges, demands:



Malcolm Farmer.

1. That the practice of coaches or athletic officials visiting preparatory schools, attending school banquets, and interviewing athletes be stopped.

2. That, if athletes receive scholarships, they shall be based on the scholarship competitive ability of the athlete and never given merely because of athletic ability.

Must Reveal Sources.

3. That every athlete on entering college, must tell the college authorities the sources of all financial aid he has received and give sources of aid during his college course.

4. That reports of the financial aid given to the athletes of one college be available to the public, especially other colleges.

5. When an athlete's filed record shows that he has received financial aid only from those upon whom he is naturally dependent, he shall be declared eligible, barring scholastic or other difficulties.

"It appears that gossip and unsavory rumor reaches those involved last, if ever," the report said, and so it is with stories and accusations about subsidized athletes at the other fellow's college. They are passed around to every one except to the one man most interested to investigate such rumors and ascertain the facts.

Depends on Officers.

"We must decide that the control of the subsidization of student athletes depends upon the courage and integrity of those college officers who are in charge of the conduct of the institution's admissions."

The meeting, at which the report was adopted in Boston last week, was attended by a representative of the midwest conference, who said that this was the most comprehensive act of its kind that he had seen. He said that it would aid other sections to iron out their troubles. The report will be considered at the meeting of the N. C. A. A. in Los Angeles late this month.

Seward vs. Parker—That Means Action

A six round bout between Tom Kenneally, Catholic Youth organization heavyweight, and Ed [Tipperary] Murray of Cleveland was scheduled as the feature attraction in White City Friday, but a six round preliminary match involving Billy Seward and Tommy Parker is overshadowing it because of a previous thriller between them.

Seward won a close decision after four rounds of slugging in the same arena Nov. 17. As a result Promoter Mique Malloy now is billing the Seward-Parker rematch as his wind-up, the Kenneally-Murray encounter being demoted to the semi-final position.

In an additional six round event Johnny Janis, Brighton Park heavyweight, is paired against Selman Martin. Matches of four rounds involve Steve Souris, welterweight protége of George Sullivan, and Harry [Kid] Tunero, New Orleans, and Kenny Cannon, north side lightweight, and Billy Sherman, South Chicago.

TROJAN VETERANS TO TEST DE PAUL QUINTET MONDAY

The Southern California basketball team, runner-up last season for the Pacific Coast conference championship, will start four regulars from last year's squad against the undefeated De Paul Blue Demons Monday night in the Coliseum. Loyola and Carnegie Tech will play the other game on the Coliseum college twin bill.

Outstanding in the Trojan lineup is Ralph Vaughan, a left handed forward who led the scorers on the Pacific coast last year with 180 points and who was chosen on the all-conference team.

Puppies Take Stand Tonight in Own Show

BY BOB BECKER.

A special preview of Christmas puppies will be held in the loop tonight when the Midwest Puppy Match association holds its final 1939 competitive event. The match will start at 8 o'clock in the Hotel Hamilton, 18 South Dearborn street.

Scores of purebred puppies, all under 1 year old, will take part. The breeds to be represented include almost all of those which are in demand as house pets, so parents who plan to have Santa Claus deliver a friendly puppy Christmas eve will have a chance to compare the various breeds.

25 to 30 Breeds.

Henry Mead Hammond, president of the organization which puts on these puppy matches several times each year, said yesterday that 25 to 30 of the most popular breeds will be in tonight's show and that the breeders will be glad to chat with visitors about the selection of a puppy, best age puppy to buy, feeding of puppies, and other aspects of dog care.

The Midwest Puppy Match association, an organization of dog breeders which has been functioning for several years, has as its purpose the focusing of attention on purebred dogs, improving the quality of dogs raised in this area, and encouraging friendly competition between breeders.

Similar to Dog Shows.

Puppy matches are somewhat similar to regular dog shows, with judges selecting the puppies which they consider the best in their respective age and variety groups. Ribbons and trophies are awarded to the winners, and one puppy is selected as the best in the match. Harry Osborne and Alex Stewart, Chicago judges, will officiate. Mr. Osborne will judge toy dogs, sporting dogs, and hounds, and Mr. Stewart will select the winning terriers, working dogs, and nonsporting dogs.

Competition is limited to puppies owned by members of the club, but puppy owners who wish to have their dogs judged may join the club for a small membership fee. There is no entry fee for puppies, the membership fee permitting breeders to show as many puppies as they choose. There is a small admission charge for spectators.

WIN SWIM MEET.

The Chicago Teachers college swimming team defeated George Williams, 34 to 32 yesterday at Chicago Teachers.

BRADLEY PASSES 80TH BIRTHDAY AT IDLE HOUR FARM

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 12 (AP).—E. R. Bradley, nationally known turfman and owner of Idle Hour farm here, was 80 years old today. He spent the day quietly. He was reported in good health.

Bradley, whose horses have won four Kentucky Derbies, recently passed several days in a hospital.

Garcia-Lee Manila Bout Postponed Until Tuesday

MANILA, Dec. 12 (AP).—The middleweight fight between Ceferino Garcia and Glenn Lee of Nebraska was set tentatively tonight for Tuesday, Dec. 19. Garcia is recognized as middleweight champion by boxing associations of New York and California. Promoter Jess Cortes said everything hinged on the arrival of Jack Dempsey, flying to Manila to referee the match, originally scheduled for Saturday.

REVAMPED N. U. LINEUP TO FACE COAST QUINTET

In an attempt to add more scoring punch to the Northwestern attack, Coach Dutch Lonborg yesterday made several changes in the lineup for tomorrow night's game with Washington State's touring basketball squad.

The shakeup sent big Don Kruger, former Fenwick star, to a forward position, and Dick Klein, 6 foot 3 inch sophomore from Fort Madison, Ia., to center. Both have shown marked improvement in practice since the opener with Carleton last week.

Count on Klein.

Klein, who alternates between guard and center, may supply the spark to the Wildcat offense which was lacking last year. The big fellow led the scoring against Carleton with four field goals in addition to playing a good floor game. His height and ability to handle the ball is expected to prove valuable as the Purple seeks to rebuild last year's five, which was hard hit by graduation.

Coach Lonborg still is seeking to fortify the front line with more scoring power. The addition of Klein and Kruger may give the Wildcats the needed punch. The other member of the front line trio is Les Harman, a letterman with two years' experience.

Well Set at Guards.

Carleton did not provide a strong test for the Purple defense but this department appears to be in capable hands. Capt. Ad Vance is one of the outstanding guards in the conference while his running mate, Bob Shepard, a junior, shows considerable improvement over last year's form. George Benson of Hammond appears to be the best of the sophomore guard candidates.

U.S. ATTORNEYS WIN DELAY IN RACE WIRE SUIT

Prospective Publisher Demands Service.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—Federal and state government attorneys today obtained a delay in a hearing on a suit by Walter M. Hagerty to require the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company to furnish facilities for race track information purposes.

Circuit Judge A. D. McNeill set back from tomorrow to Jan. 3 the return date on a writ obtained by Hagerty last week directing the telephone company to show cause why the service should not be installed.

Ask for Extension.

Thomas J. Ellis, assistant to Attorney General George Couper Gibbs, asked for a 30 day extension to allow counsel for the state and the federal government more time to consider questions raised by the suit.

Hagerty's suit related that he proposed to use the wire facilities to receive sports information, including horse race results, for publication in a "scratch sheet."

Revives Wire Case.

The case attracted wide attention because of the suspension recently of the racing information network operated by M. L. Annenberg, cutting off the chief source of information for bookmakers.

LIBBY, M'NEILL COMPLETING PLAN FOR BOND ISSUE

Stockholders Will Vote on Program Jan. 12.

Arrangements for the issue of $11,000,000 of first mortgage bonds by Libby, McNeill and Libby, Chicago, in connection with a refunding and recapitalization program, were reported yesterday as nearing completion. Stockholders will be asked to approve the program at a special meeting on Jan. 12.

The stockholders will be asked to approve the issuance of the first mortgage bonds and to change the authorized capitalization to 4,000,000 shares of $7 par common stock from 100,000 shares of $100 par cumulative preferred stock and 3,353,999 shares of no par common. The recapitalization is made necessary by the forthcoming sale by Swift & Co. of its stock holdings in the company in compliance with a consent decree.

Purposes of Sale.

Proceeds from the sale of the bonds will be used to retire $9,062,000 of 5 per cent 15 year first mortgage bonds and to increase working capital.

A syndicate headed by Glore, Forgan & Co. is expected to handle the sale of the bonds and the Swift stockholdings in the food packing company. Libby, McNeil and Libby is expected to file by the first of the year a registraton statement with the Securities and Exchange commission covering the proposed bond issue.

A banking group headed by Lehman Brothers yesterday was awarded $3,378,000 Detroit non-callable refunding bonds on its bid for a combination of 4 and 3½ per cent bonds, representing a net interest cost to the city of 3.6272 per cent. Reoffering was made in the form of $1,443,000 of 4 per cent bonds, due 1941-'53, at prices to yield 1 to 3.65 per cent, and $1,935,000 of 3½s, due 1953 to 1963, at prices ranging from 100 to 98¾.

Big Loan to Sell at Par.

Northern Indiana Public Service company will offer its $45,000,000 of first mortgage 3¾ per cent bonds at par, an amendment filed with the SEC disclosed.

Kentucky Utilities company announced that it is withdrawing its registration of $6,000,000 of serial debentures because arrangements have been made for a loan of this amount from a group of banks headed by the Chase National bank, New York. A. G. Becker & Co. heads a group which will offer $26,000,000 of the utility's first mortgage bonds. Proceeds will be used to retire existing obligations.

HAY MARKET.

CHILEAN DEBT SERVICE.

I own some Chile bonds. A friend told me that some kind of payment is being made on them. If there is any interest being paid I would certainly like to get it. Where do I apply?—E. H. S.

Answer: Owners of unstamped dollar bonds and notes of the Republic of Chile, the Mortgage Bank of Chile, and the Water Company of Valparaiso have been notified by the Autonomous Institute for Amortization of the Public Debt of the Republic of Chile that they must submit their bonds for stamping under the republic's debt readjustment plan before Jan. 12, 1940, if they desire debt service already available. Interest payments declared under the plan in 1936 and thereafter now total $39.58½ per $1,000 bond.

The institute warned that bondholders who declined to assent to the plan would lose their right to the debt service for the years 1936 thru 1939. Those who assent after Jan. 12 and submit their bonds for stamping will receive current interest payments in the year in which they assent and thereafter. They will be required to surrender coupons for the earlier years but will receive no compensation for them, the institute said.

Holders of Chilean bonds who desire to assent may send their bonds for stamping to the Schroder Trust company, 46 William street, New York City. If the bonds are stamped before Jan. 12, the holders will receive the total payment allowed by the institute, but, in doing so, will waive further claims to interest on coupons surrendered.

The institute has reported that on Oct. 31, 1939, 64 per cent of the total of 169 million dollars of outstanding Chilean bonds, covered by the debt adjustment plan, had been stamped for assenting bondholders.

The debt service on these and other Chilean bonds was resumed by the republic as the result of a law passed in 1935. The statute directed that receipts of the Chilean government from its share of profits in the Nitrate and Iodine Sales corporation and from certain special taxes on copper be assigned to the institute.

One-half of the receipts would be used to pay interest and the remainder to redeem or amortize Chile's public debt. Bondholders accepting the partial interest payments would relinquish further rights on the coupons submitted for payment.

The institute publishes in the first two weeks of January each year a report of the revenues received in the preceding year, and apportions these for debt service and redemption operations.

WORLD COTTON PRICES SOAR ON BUYING SURGE

Report Much Staple Lost at Sea.

Cotton prices soared thruout the world yesterday in the wake of reports that replacements are urgently needed for several cargoes sunk by submarines and mines. Liverpool prices advanced 25 English points [more than $2 a bale in American money] and were halted at the highest levels in 10 years by rules limiting one day's fluctuations to 25 points.

Cable dispatches said the British government was forced to place restrictions on speculative trading in an attempt to avoid the violent fluctuations. Liverpool prices are now around 14 cents a pound. Alexandria, Egypt, cotton prices climbed to 19 cents a pound. In Bombay, India, traders went on strike, fearing government interference with the market. The government did not regulate cotton futures trading, but prohibited trading in "puts and calls," or options on cotton.

Advances at New York.

New York buyers, spurred by prospects of the best market for cotton in many years, pushed prices up 0.28 to 0.40 cent a pound to the best levels since 1937. Spot cotton advanced to 11.21 cents.

The New York gains of nearly $2 a bale were aided by a big volume of buying by shippers, it was reported. The shippers were said to be attempting to acquire large supplies and make as many foreign sales as possible before the department of agriculture decides to eliminate the cotton export subsidy entirely.

The subsidy was originally fixed at 1½ cents a pound in an effort to revive the rapidly disappearing foreign market for American cotton. Exports in the season which ended last Aug. 31 dropped to 3,362,000 bales, the lowest in 60 years.

Sales Much Larger.

Since Sept. 1, however, it is estimated sales have approximately doubled the total for all of last season. Some estimates ran as high as 7,500,000 bales. Meanwhile the subsidy has become more and more useless, and it has been pared down to a mere 0.2 of a cent a pound. American cotton, however, costs about $10 a bale more than before the war.

Accompanying the advance in cotton was a broad demand for cotton fabrics, traders said. Not only has the war hampered shipping greatly, but it has increased the cotton requirements of the belligerent nations.

Stocks of cotton goods at American mills were estimated to be the smallest in a year and a half, due to the big buying movement during the first week of the war. Consumption of cotton by American mills in November was estimated at 700,000 bales by the New York Cotton Exchange service. This compares with 687,000 bales in October and 597,000 bales in November a year ago.

FLAW REVEALED IN SENIORITY PLAN OF UNIONS

Houston, Tex., Dec. 12 [Special].—The seniority system demanded by unions in highly organized industries has disadvantages, and in some cases the worker is becoming a serf of the company that gives him his first job, William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors corporation, said here tonight.

"Seniority is being held up as a great boon to workers, having been obtained in most contracts with unions in our industry," he said. "On the face of it, it seems quite reasonable that men with the longest service shall retain their employment the longest when adverse business conditions require reduction in the working force.

"It has its drawbacks, however. If an entire city is organized, the man is practically becoming a serf to the company that gave him his first job. If he is laid off he cannot go elsewhere unless he starts at the bottom of the seniority list."

MAN TO WORK

If you had worked with this young man for a number of years and knew his ability to get along with people and his capacity to get work out of them—if you had seen him produce in actual selling and examined his record in merchandising and as the general manager of a metal and wood working concern you would know that he can handle any such job. He's genuine—he's sincere—he's loyal. If you would like to talk with a man who is determined to go much further in the selling, merchandising or manufacturing field

Elect Stoll President of West. Electric

Clarence G. Stoll, a farmer's son who began work in the Chicago shops of Western Electric company 36 years ago for $10.15 a week, was elected president of the $280,000,000 manufacturing enterprise yesterday.

The board of directors chose him to succeed Edgar S. Bloom, who in accordance with retirement rules will relinquish the presidency Dec. 31 at the age of 65, after a 43 year career with the Bell system. Western Electric is controled by the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Vice President Since 1928.

Stoll had been Western Electric vice president in charge of operations since 1928. He was sent abroad in 1912 to become shop superintendent of the company's factory in Antwerp, Belgium. When the world war caused the closing of the Antwerp factory Stoll returned to the United States and, after holding various positions as supervisor of manufacturing and technical operations at the company's Hawthorne works in Chicago, was placed in charge of the works in 1923.

Three years later he went to New York and subsequently was elected vice president in charge of manufacturing. He also was elected to the board of directors.

Directed Many Operations.

Since 1928 he has directed all operations of the company pertaining to manufacture of equipment for the Bell telephone system, furnishing of materials, installation of central offices, and purchasing operations for the entire system.

Bloom, the retiring president, joined the predecessor of the New York Telephone company as a $12 a week traffic inspector after receiving a post graduate degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Pennsylvania in 1896.

POLICIES OF NEW DEAL CLASH, SAYS SENATOR

Reciprocal trade agreements of the federal administration and its own farm program combined to form one of the chief inconsistencies of the New Deal, Sen. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] told members of the Motor and Equipment Manufacturers association last night at the Blackstone hotel. He said the combination of "free trade" and production control could not be sensibly justified in the same government.

Imports of about 87 million bushels of corn by the United States during 1937 and payment of 150 to 200 million dollars to farmers in the same year for taking acreage out of corn production, Sen. Bridges asserted, showed nonsensical thinking on the part of the state and agriculture departments.

The senator listed four issues as the main problems facing the nation and business men today. These, he said, are: [1] Centralization of government; [2] economy of government; [3] integrity of government, and [4] peace for the country.

4 CLOSED BANKS REPAYING $226,102 TO DEPOSITORS

Depositors of one defunct national bank and three state banks will receive repayments totaling $226,102, receivers announced yesterday. Harry Joseph, receiver, said a fourth and final repayment of 5.9 per cent is being disbursed to depositors of the Rogers Park National bank. The current repayment amounts to $49,452 and brings the total returned to 39.95 per cent.

Edward J. Barrett, state auditor, authorized repayment of a total of $176,650 to 22,500 depositors of three defunct state banks. Each repayment is 5 per cent. The banks, amounts being repaid to depositors of each, and the total percentage of repayment were as follows: Ashland State bank, $19,588, and 27 per cent; Lincoln Trust and Savings bank, $142,560, and 45 per cent, and Montrose Trust and Savings bank, $14,502, and 15 per cent.

MEXICO GAINS LITTLE UNDER NEW OIL RULE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—The United States held to a minimum today any benefit which might accrue to Mexico under the 50 per cent reduction on the import tax on crude petroleum allowed in the trade agreement signed last month with Venezuela.

This was disclosed when the state department announced allocation of percentages of the maximum quota of crude petroleum imports on which this import tax reduction would be granted. The quota was to be not more than 5 per cent of the total domestic production.

Venezuela was given 71.9 per cent of the quota, the Netherlands 20.3 per cent, Colombia 4 per cent, and all other foreign countries, which includes Mexico, 3.8 per cent.

WHEAT SPURTS AS DUST STORM DAMAGE GROWS

May Futures Reach Seasonal Peak.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Last year.
Wheat	$ .95⅛	$ .94⅜	$ .66⅜
Corn	.55⅛-5	.55⅝	.51⅞
Oats	.37¾	.37½	.28¾
Rye	.62⅞	.62	.44⅞
Soy beans	1.09½	1.07⅞	.81

Dust storms over parts of North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas dominated the action of American wheat markets yesterday. General commission house buying developed as the result of unfavorable weather and crop reports from the dry sections of the winter wheat belt.

Altho there was heavy profit taking on the bulges, closing trades in the Chicago market were near the top with gains of ¾ to 1¼ cents. The May delivery closed above 95 cents a bushel for the first time this season.

December at 3 Cent Premium.

December wheat went to a 3 cent premium over the May in a late wave of buying attributed to cash interests. Winnipeg and other markets posted gains of 1 cent or more.

A weather bureau long range forecast indicated generally fair and warm weather would prevail thruout the drouth area in the next three days. This helped along the upturn in wheat, according to brokers, as did a Kansas City report that 50 per cent of the 12 million acres seeded to wheat had not germinated owing to lack of surface moisture. It was feared that much seed would be blown away by high winds.

At the close of Chicago trading, December wheat was 36 cents and May wheat 31¼ cents a bushel above the low price established in August.

Undertone Weak in Corn.

Corn showed a heavy undertone from the start and the close was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Commission and cash houses sold and support was less aggressive than of late. Part of the selling was said to have been based on the belief that Illinois farmers would sell cash grain freely at 50 cents a bushel at country loading stations. This price compares with a government loan basis of 57 cents.

Trading in soy beans was active with the May future selling at a new seasonal high price.

A scarcity of ocean freight room continued to hamper export sales of North American cash grain, it is reported. The British government is said to have commandeered steamers which had been chartered to transport cotton from American ports to England.

Canadian Plans Disclosed.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 12 [Special].—The Canadian government has decided to keep the Winnipeg grain exchange open and let Great Britain buy wheat in the open market rather than take over all or most of the export surplus in bulk, it was reported today.

Early in the war it was proposed that Canada sell 100 million bushels to the United Kingdom below 80 cents a bushel. The offer was not accepted, however, for Canadian farmers protested the British government was then paying its own farmers $1.25 a bushel. Canadians asserted that to meet costs of production they should realize at least $1.15.

A. M. CASTLE & CO. STARTS BUILDING BIG WAREHOUSE

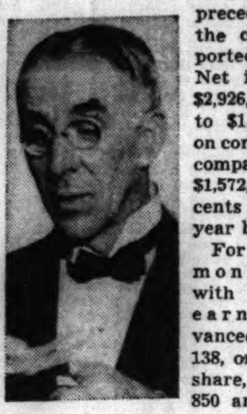
Alfred C. Castle, president of A. M. Castle & Co., yesterday drove the first rivet, a golden one, in a $125,000 steel frame warehouse his company is building on Goose Island.

The one story structure will contain 40,000 square feet of floor space and will be back of the Castle warehouse on the north side of Blackhawk street. It was designed by Shaw, Naess & Murphy and will be used to house heavy carbon and alloy steel bars.

It is planned to have the new unit completed early next year, which will be the company's 50th anniversary.

Servel Income Nearly Double in Fiscal Year

Earnings of Servel, Inc., during the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 nearly doubled those of the preceding year, the company reported yesterday. Net income was $2,926,265, equal to $1.62 a share on common stock, compared with $1,572,469, or 85 cents a share the year before.



George A. Martin reports sale of paint rises.

For the three months ended with October, earnings advanced to $570,138, or 31 cents a share, from $340,850 and 18 cents a share in the 1938 period. The company manufactures gas refrigerators, ice machines, and air conditioning equipment, with its main plant and offices at Evansville, Ind.

Miller & Hart Shows Loss.

Miller & Hart, Inc., Chicago meat packing organization, reported a net loss of $45,194 for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, compared with a loss of $132,577 in the preceding fiscal period. Sales totaled $7,354,597, against $8,602,949 the year before.

George A. Martin, president of Sherwin-Williams company, told stockholders at their annual meeting in Cleveland, O., that the company's sales from the beginning of September to Dec. 9 were 19 per cent higher than in the corresponding period last year. Earnings also increased, he said. The company manufactures paints and varnishes at plants in Chicago and elsewhere.

An advance in raw material costs and lower prices on products sold to dealers reduced the percentage of gross profit since the beginning of the company's fiscal year on Sept. 1, Martin said.

Hecla Mining Reports Gain.

Hecla Mining company, with principal properties in Idaho, reported September quarter earnings of $140,582 after taxes and depreciation, but before depletion. This compared with net income of $51,570, after all charges, for the similar period last year.

LARGE BRITISH AIRPLANE ORDER REPORTED NEAR

New York, Dec. 12 [Special].—Lockheed Aircraft corporation is prepared to sign a contract with the British purchasing commission for airplanes worth $20,000,000, it was reported today. This order would be the largest placed by Great Britain or France in this country since the war began.

Altho no details have been released, it was learned the order will be for bombers. Another order for $25,000,000 of military planes will follow this contract, it was reported.

Between last summer and the start of the war Britain contracted with Lockheed for about $27,000,000 of planes.

It was reported the company may offer additional shares of common stock in the near future, if the British orders are signed. The new capital would be used for expansion of manufacturing facilities.

SEC PERMITS UTILITY DIVIDEND, 'OUT OF SURPLUS'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—The securities commission gave permission today to the United corporation, a registered holding company, to pay a dividend of $1.05 a share on 2,488,712 outstanding shares of its $3 cumulative preferred stock largely out of capital surplus.

The commission's opinion said that while capital ordinarily was "contributed for permanent investment in the corporation," the evidence of United's application "presents a case where the proposed dividend payments are clearly in the best interest of the stockholders and are not detrimental to the corporation."

2 Young Men Active Heads of Walgreen

Two young men, both under 35, will be the active heads of the $27,500,000 Walgreen company, as a result of the death Monday night of Charles R. Walgreen, chairman of the board and founder. One is his son, Charles R. Walgreen Jr., president, and the other is Justin W. Dart, general manager.

However, the two men will have the advice and assistance of the company's board of directors, composed of senior department heads who have been with the drug chain 13 to 29 years. The board is said to have an important part in directing the business of the drug chain which includes about 500 stores in 39 states.

Worked in Store Early.

Associates of young Walgreen said he had been with the company "almost from birth." When he was 4 he was seen toddling about one of his father's stores and when he was a boy he ran errands. They said that during his vacations from the University of Michigan he worked in the stores in various capacities.

Charles R. Walgreen Jr. (left) and Justin W. Dart.

Last summer, when his father's illness became more serious, he became president and his father took the position of chairman of the board.

Walgreen is married and lives in Beverly Hills with his wife and two children.

Dart with Firm 10 Years.

Dart, a graduate of Northwestern university, has been with the company about ten years. On his graduation from college he worked as a drug store clerk for a year or so. He then entered the general offices and went into store operations.

Dart is an aviation enthusiast, and flies his own plane.

As a result of the death of Mr. Walgreen senior, it is planned to adjourn the Walgreen company's annual meeting, which was to have been held today, until Jan. 10.

FLOW OF CRUDE OIL INCREASES IN ILLINOIS, NATION

Crude oil production in Illinois and in the United States in the week ended Dec. 9 was larger than in the preceding week, reports yesterday indicated.

Illinois fields had a daily average output of 337,026 barrels, compared with 332,245 in the week ended Dec. 2, an increase of 4,781 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

The Salem field, largest in the state, averaged 186,378 barrels daily, compared with 182,240 in the preceding week, and the Louden field, 70,621 barrels, against 69,890.

The American Petroleum institute placed last week's production at a daily average of 3,827,350 barrels, against 3,289,200 in the preceding week and 3,245,100 a year ago.

INDICT SHEET METAL GROUP ON TRUST CHARGES

New Orleans, La., Dec. 12 (AP).—Twenty-six firms and officials and the Sheet Metal association were indicted here today by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the Sherman antitrust law in connection with alleged establishment of a clearing house on bids.

The defendants were charged with entering a conspiracy to restrain trade in commercial electrical materials in interstate commerce. The government alleged the defendants agreed among themselves to enter into "joint ventures" in performing electrical jobs.

Federal Egg Buying Plan Is Resumed

Egg futures prices advanced nearly a cent a dozen on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday on advices that the federal government had reëntered the New York cash market for the first time since Nov. 1.

A bid of 18¼ cents for fresh graded firsts was reported made in the Chicago market, but no sales were completed. The cash market closed unchanged to a cent higher with fresh firsts at 18½ cents, up a half cent from the previous closing price.

The government's buying, made in efforts to support prices, was limited to 3,000 dozens of fresh gathered firsts in the New York market, traders said. The expenditure was reported at $600, bidding the quotation up ¼ cent a dozen to 20 cents.

Standards Forced Higher.

At the same time, by an offer to buy 144,000 standard grades, the government forced the quotation on that classification up half a cent to 22¼ cents a dozen. The bidding and purchases were made on the New York Mercantile exchange by Dr. John Huttar of the Grange League of Farmers, acting for the government. The eggs will be used for relief purposes.

On the Chicago market, December storage standards futures gained 0.75 cent to 14.9 cents a dozen. January deliveries sold at 14.75, up 0.65 cent.

Butter futures were again easy, closing 0.05 to 0.02 cent a pound lower, with December sinking to 26.8 cents. New York wholesale quotations were ¼ to ½ cent lower.

Reserve Holdings Fall.

Reserve holdings of creamery butter thruout the United States continued to decline at a more than seasonal rate last month, the department of agriculture's monthly warehouse inventory disclosed yesterday. Holdings shrank 26,447,000 pounds to 128,147,000 on Nov. 1, the third largest November drop on record.

The total supply in storage on Nov. 1, the report disclosed, was 67,116,000 pounds below that of the corresponding date a year earlier, but with that exception, the heaviest for the period since 1933.

Eastern Railroads Given 2 Month Fare Extension

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce commission today authorized a two month extension of the basic 2.5 cent railroad passenger coach fare in the east. The railroads had asked for a nine month extension of the fare, which had been scheduled to expire on Jan. 24.

Under the commission's order the 2.5 rate will continue to March 24. A hearing was called for Jan. 4.

NO. 1 PROBLEM IS JOBS, EX-NRA CHIEF ASSERTS

Solution Is Vital, Says Williams.

America's No. 1 problem is a solution of the unemployment question, S. Clay Williams, chairman of the board of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, Winston-Salem, S. C., declared last night. He spoke before 2,000 members and guests of the Illinois Manufacturers association at its annual banquet at the Stevens hotel.

S. Clay Williams.

Williams, who succeeded Hugh Johnson as administrator of the National Recovery administration, said continuance of the democratic form of government may rest upon the finding of a solution.

Business possesses the only frontier in the United States where may be found work for the people, he said, but in order that this frontier be exploited properly thru new capital business must have confidence.

But Dollars Are Needed.

"The only frontier today is the frontier of the test tube, the inventor's shop, the scientist's research, and even those things fail of developing a new frontier until they are followed by the entrepreneur's adventure with dollars that are willing to venture," he said. "It is to be emphasized—to the greater responsibility of business as well as to its great opportunity—that this new frontier lies wholly in the field of business.

"This country cannot escape the unemployment problem as it is. To continue to temporize within the ways we've been following would seem to be inviting, if not guaranteeing, a measure of inflation that would

The Over-the-Counter Securities Market

A large part of the buying and selling of securities that takes place day in and day out in the United States is transacted in the over-the-counter market. Over 6,000 securities houses and banks, with some 2,000 branch offices, create and maintain this vast market for investments which is under supervision of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

These financial establishments furnish the investing public with convenient, organized facilities for effecting — by "negotiation" — purchases and sales of a large number of public utility, railroad, industrial, bank and insurance company and other corporation securities, as well as United States Government issues and municipal obligations.

Telephone and telegraph lines link the trading rooms of the over-the-counter brokers and dealers within a nationwide network of public and private wire facilities. Over such fast communications, extending from Atlantic to Pacific, experienced and skilled security traders negotiate purchases and sales of securities for institutions, such as banks and insurance companies, and for individuals, estates, trust funds and other investors.

In accordance with high standards of business conduct, the over-the-counter establishments, together with the securities exchanges and their member firms, provide convenient and efficient facilities for buying and selling investment securities and therefore render essential services to investors and to the nation's financial and economic system.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York, Dec. 12 [Special].—Stocks closed irregularly lower today after milling about uncertainly in another dull session. Changes on either side were mostly fractional, and declines were in the majority.

Expansion of "tax selling" was considered the chief restraining factor on the list. Business reports continued cheerful. Strength in commodities failed to give any lift to stocks.

* * *

Early firmness in steels gave way to softness as the session progressed and best prices were pared or wiped out. United States Steel closed unchanged. Bethlehem, Youngstown and others held fractional advantages.

Aviation shares became more firm in late dealings and in most cases early losses were pared. Lockheed was a feature, rising nearly a point on reports the company was getting a $20,000,000 order from the British government.

* * *

Chrysler and General Motors were relatively strong spots, both working fractionally higher. Other motors closed unchanged or lower. Losses in oil shares ran to almost a point in Standard Oil [New Jersey] and Texas corporation.

Aided by indications of improved earnings, railroad shares gave a relatively better account of themselves than other classifications.

Power and light shares closed mixed in a fractional range.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 12 (AP). — United States government loans put on another show of independent strength in today's bond market as corporate issues continued to drift in a narrow, uneven range. Gains running to a top of ½ point in the treasuries were regarded by government dealers as the market's appraisal of the overnight announcement of terms for the refunding by the treasury of 1⅜ per cent notes maturing next March.

Some corporates managed to eke out small gains, but losses generally were a little larger. Down a point or more were Southern Pacific 4½s of '68 at 45⅞, Northern Pacific 4s at 64½, International Telephone 5s at 39, and Illinois Central 5s of '55 at 50½.

Scandinavian bonds tried for further recovery, but slipped again after moderate gains in early trading. Most of the group closed lower.

Transactions totaled $7,665,925, face value, against $5,892,300 yesterday.

Chicago Stocks.

Price changes were mixed on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in a 37,000 share session. Losses numbered 47, gains 32, and unchanged quotations 39, out of the 118 issues traded. The exchange announced that the dollar volume of transactions in November was $14,957,491, down 25 per cent compared with October but 32 per cent larger than in November, 1938.

Bank Stocks.

Continental Illinois advanced a point in bank stock trading yesterday, closing at a bid of 90½. Chicago Title and Trust declined 2 points, closing at 118. Others were steady.

PROBERS ARGUE TWO BIG BANKS 'VIOLATE' LAW

Underwriting Separation Rule Involved.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—Counsel for the monopoly investigating committee contended today that two leading New York banks had retained a "proprietary interest" in underwriting certain security issues after passage of the 1933 banking act, which required banking and underwriting to be divorced. The bankers denied the interest.

Peter R. Nehemkis, securities commission lawyer acting as counsel for the investigation, sought to show that J. P. Morgan & Co. and the First National Bank of New York had retained an interest in 1935 and 1936 refunding bond issues of the Chicago Union Station company aggregating $77,100,000.

Basis of Contention.

Nehemkis based his contention on the manner in which a banking syndicate headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Lee Higginson corporation divided participation in the issues among other investment bankers after the banks originally participating in the syndicate quit the underwriting business.

Henry S. Sturgis, vice president of the First National Bank of New York, denied that his company had any interest in underwriting the issues, but conceded it had been permitted to suggest the companies which were to participate in its stead.

Nehemkis asserted that in the case of J. P. Morgan & Co. a "proprietary interest" was shown by the assignment to the underwriting firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. of the participation formerly held by J. P. Morgan, with a small additional percentage. Morgan Stanley had a number of the same officers and employés who were engaged in the underwriting business for J. P. Morgan before the banking act.

Position of Lee Higginson.

Edgar N. Jesup, vice president of Lee Higginson, said, however, that his company felt no obligation to give a share of the 1936 financing to Morgan Stanley & Co. because of the previous participation of J. P. Morgan.

"Did you regard Morgan Stanley the heir to J. P. Morgan's share of the syndicate?" he was asked.

"Certainly not a legal heir," Jesup replied. "It was something we wanted to do because of the history of the account."

Leon Henderson, securities commission member, asserted that Nehemkis had established a "reversionary interest" on the part of the First National because of testimony that the company hoped to recover its participation in the Chicago business if the law were ever changed to permit it.

W. Averill Harriman, millionaire administration adviser, told the monopoly committee that he and his wealthy family were observing "the letter and also the spirit" of the 1933 banking act. He testified that he and his brother, E. Roland Harriman, exercised no control over a securities underwriting corporation in which they invested more than $5,000,000.

OVER-COUNTER TRADE STARTS "AD" CAMPAIGN

National Security Traders Association, Inc., today is launching what is believed to be the first coöperative institutional advertising campaign for the over the counter securities business. The purpose of the campaign is to inform the public of the scope, importance, and working of the unlisted securities market, according to Leo J. Doyle of Doyle, O'Connor & Co., chairman of the organization's public relations committee.

More than 6,000 investment houses and brokerage firms with 2,000 branches handle daily transactions in the over the counter market which annually total an estimated 20 billion dollars, according to Doyle. This market, like the stock and commodity exchanges, is under the supervision of the Securities and Exchange commission.

FOREIGN NATIONS RESUME HEAVY GOLD SHIPMENTS

Flow Reaches High Prewar Level.

Bolstered by large shipments from Canada, gold imports during the week ended Dec. 6 reached the high level existing before the outbreak of the European war, the commerce department reported yesterday. Imports totaled $141,996,834, the largest amount to enter the United States since mid-September. Imports amounted to 93 million dollars in the last week of November.

Canadian shipments accounted for $115,176,653 of the latest week's receipts, increasing from $58,068,986 the week before.

Deposited Gold Increases.

Along with the increase in gold imports, the department reported the amount of foreign gold deposited under "earmark" at the federal reserve banks rose $88,807,853 during the week. This reversed a recent downward trend and returned the amount of gold on deposit for foreign governments and central banks to the $1,000,000,000 level prevailing in August and the early weeks of the war. Countries owning this stored metal were not disclosed.

Foreign governments and central banks have deposited large amounts of gold in federal reserve banks to build up reserves for the purchase of war materials in this country.

Other Nations Ship Metal.

In addition to Canada other nations shipping gold to the United States during the week included the Netherlands, with $9,039,800; Japan, $5,870,763; Sweden, $4,998,511; South Africa, $2,086,978, and England, $2,083,478.

The government report showed imports of gold during November amounted to $167,990,703, compared with $69,740,356 in October and $326,088,889 in September.

The daily treasury statement showed, meanwhile, the nation's monetary gold stock amounted to $17,421,470,468 on Dec. 9.

ASSOCIATED GAS BOWS TO LAW IT FOUGHT BITTERLY

New President Is Elected; Plan Many Changes.

Roger J. Whiteford.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Associated Gas and Electric company, large utility holding concern, today started reorganization of its management and structure for the announced purpose of conforming to the utility holding company act of 1935, passage of which it had fought bitterly.

Directors of the company, after a meeting here, announced that J. I. Mange had resigned as president, chairman and director "because of ill health."

Roger J. Whiteford of Maryland and Washington, general counsel of the Federal Housing administration from 1934 to 1936, was elected president, general counsel and a director of the company.

Pledges Study of System.

"It is my purpose," Whiteford said, "to give attention at once to the simplification of the corporate structure of the system, the integration or consolidation of its properties and operations, and the adjustment of the voting power of its security holders upon a fair and equitable basis."

Asserting there was need for "far-reaching economies in management," Whiteford pledged readjustments which would have the system "more than a half million dollars a year." He also promised "complete frankness with public authorities and the public itself."

Associated Gas was in the forefront of the fight over the utility act several years ago. In return a senate investigating committee conducted a sensational search for H. C. Hopson, guiding spirit of the concern.

Tax Dispute Settled.

The company also engaged in a tax dispute with the treasury, but this year agreed to pay $8,700,000. The internal revenue bureau then relinquished claim to $53,682,000.

Last month a company subsidiary applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a $26,500,000 loan, one of the largest ever asked of that agency by a private utility.

The holding company act calls for the geographical integration of utilities and in certain cases, simplification of their capital structures.

NO. 1 PROBLEM IS JOBS, EX-NRA CHIEF ASSERTS

Williams Says Solution Is Vital to Nation.

lose everything for us—our form of government and our freedom.

"The only alternative is the expansion of business thru the development of the business frontier, and the expansion of private business to the point where the unemployed can find jobs where pay rolls are washed out every Saturday night and neither go into the public debt nor increase the part of the citizen's dollar that has to go for taxes."

Propagandists at Work.

Williams said that this country is full of propagandists who find a fertile ground among hungry and frustrated men. These men, he said, are in a mood to trade away their freedom, and the nation's, for the false promises of Marxian theorists who offer them an alleged security. Witness the plight of the people in the totalitarian states of Europe, he said, where all freedoms were surrendered.

"Subversive minds of almost every kind are boldly at work thruout the country," he declared. "Propaganda is rife and seemingly has become, at least for the moment, the most powerful instrumentality in all the world. And in the course of it all the business man has been all but continuously pointed to as the scapegoat for all."

Up to Business Man.

It is up to the business man to combat this propaganda and the best way to do it is to help solve the job situation, he declared.

Government spending on hastily prepared social reforms and other measures has complicated the economic situation, Williams said. The government's tactics plus the creation of huge debts which take more and more of the citizen's dollars have contributed to the lack of confidence. This lack of confidence keeps dollars from going to work creating employment. Business, he asserted, must take a greater rôle in forcing government to recognize economic realities.

J. P. McEvoy, author, playwright, and humorist, also addressed the group. Reëlection of W. Homer Hartz as president of the association was announced. Hartz is president of the Morden Frog and Crossing Works.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

An unexpected decrease in receipts of hogs at leading packing centers yesterday brought Chicago buyers into the market for large droves. After a slightly lower opening the market improved rapidly and closed strong with the average of Monday, with spots 5 to 10 cents higher.

Arrivals of hogs at 11 leading markets dropped to 91,000 as farmers held back shipments as a result of the recent pounding of prices.

Cattle buyers showed more preference for high quality and paid fully steady rates for the bulk of good stock, giving higher prices for some of the light steers and yearlings. Short-feds, however, were weak to slightly lower.

Slaughter lambs declined 10 to 15 cents, but offerings cleared quickly on that basis. [All prices are in dollars per 100 pounds.]

Lockheed Officer Refused Place on Air Line Board

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12 [Special].—The Civil Aeronautics authority today denied the application of Lawrence C. Ames of Oakland, Cal., a director of the Lockheed Aircraft corporation, to serve in a similar capacity with Continental Air Lines, Inc. Such simultaneous service, the CAA ruled, "would potentially involve a substantial conflict of interests and, therefore, is not in the public interest."
